Nothing went right for this robbery team

One of the most unsuccessful sprees in the history of juvenile crime was recorded Saturday afternoon at the San Dimas Sheriff's Substation.

It ended 45 minutes after it began with the arrest of two 16-year-old boys, both charged with suspicion of armed robbery and sent to Juvenile Hall, Los Angeles.

Sgt. Pat Shields said one boy driving a "mini-putt-put" provided the transportation while his friend, wearing a mask and carrying a sawed-off .22-caliber rifle, entered Foothill Diary at 130 S. Valley Center Road, San Dimas, at 2:30 p.m. and demanded, "Give me $20."

The clerk, 17-year-old Edward Dauer, grabbed the rifle. The boy's mask fell off. Dauer recognized the boy. "What the hell are you doing here?" Dauer demanded.

The boy ran.

At 2:30 p.m. he appeared at the Stop n Go Market at 130 Glendora Ave., Covina and, armed with his rifle, once again demanded, "Give me $20."

He was handed a $20 bill and he ran back to the mini-putt-putt. But as the boys sped away, the robber dropped the bill and, near the tennis courts of Charter Oak High School on Cypress Avenue, he dropped the gun.

Shields said that at that point, the boys drove to a service station, got off the cycle, and the youth who had carried the gun decided to hitch hike a ride home.

He was picked up by a motorist who remarked, "Look at all the police around the neighborhood."

"Yes," the youth replied bodly, "they're looking for me. I just held up a market."

Then Shields, said the youth ask the motorist, "Will you drive me home?" The motorist complied then called the sheriff's station.

Both boys were in custody at 3:15 p.m.

"What we are very concerned about," said Shields "is that rifle. It was loaded and is dangerous. It is illegal to possess."

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the rifle is asked to call Shields at 599-1261.

Shields said the youth had obtained the rifle at a swap meet and had cut it off himself.

The youth also explained to deputies that he needed $20 to pay off a debt.

Mine blast traps hundreds

700 may be lost in India underground disaster

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — An explosion ripped through a major coal mine in northeastern India on Saturday, setting off flooding that trapped hundreds of workers, according to reliable reports from the scene. The men were feared dead.

Official sources in New Delhi said 250 to 300 miners were caught in the shafts of a colliery near Dhanbad, but other reports reaching here said at least 700 workers might be trapped with little or no chance of survival.

The disaster occurred about 160 miles northwest of Calcutta in Bihar state. The area is a key mining region comparable to the Appalachian region of the United States.

More than 10 hours after the disaster, only four bodies — and no survivors — had been extricated from the mine, which caved in as waters from a nearby reservoir roared down the shafts following the explosion, according to sources in Patna, the capital of Bihar.

"It may take days to pump out the water," said one authoritative source in Patna.

Mining experts said that even if some men had survived the initial explosion, they would have died in the subsequent flooding and the accumulation of carbon monoxide in the shafts.

The national and state governments began a massive rescue operation, but there was no immediate word of any breakthrough.

The Press Trust of India initially carried a dispatch from Bihar saying nearly 900 miners were believed to have been trapped in the colliery.

Indian censors ordered the story killed, and the government issued a brief statement saying only that "due to some accident followed by some inundation, a number of underground miners are trapped in the Chasnala Colliery in Dhanbad district of Bihar."

The chief minister of Bihar, Jaganath Mishra, later issued a statement saying that 250 to 300 workers were in the mine and that "heavy casualties" were feared.

Newsmen in Patna stuck by their earlier accounts, saying that they had been told by officials that nearly 1,000 men were in the mine.

A spokesman for a mining workers' union said in Patna he had received a report from Dhanbad that at least 700 miners were in the shafts when the explosion took place, according to the duty schedule.

Dhanbad, a road and rail junction town of about 22,000, is the site of the Indian School of Mines and Applied Geology and the National Fuel Research Institute.

Concerned for lives of agents --Ford

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford believes the publication of a CIA agent's name was partly responsible for his slaying in Athens and he is concerned about the lives of other agents "whose cover might have been blown," a White House spokesman said Saturday.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen also reported that Ford has waived certain restrictions so the slain agent, Richard S. Welch, can be buried in Arlington National Cemetery next Friday.

"He certainly died in the service of his country," Nessen quoted the President as saying at his Christmas vacation headquarters here. Nessen also disclosed Ford is close to a decision on overhauling the nation's intelligence-gathering apparatus.

Welch was shot outside his home in an Athens suburb Tuesday after an embassy Christmas party. The slaying immediately became an issue in a current controversy over public exposure of CIA activities, because Welch had been identified as an agent in the Athens Daily News and Counterspy, a Washington-based publication critical of intelligence activities.

Asked if the President felt the publication of Welch's connection with the CIA was responsible for his death, Nessen replied: "The President feels the publication was partly responsible .... The President also is concerned about the lives of other agents whose cover might have been blown."

Nessen noted that the President, CIA Director William Colby and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger had urged congressional committees not to permit disclosure of the names of agents.

HELD IN SLAYING OF 2 CHILDREN

Robber, market owner exchange shots

Ontario police today are still seeking the identity of a robber who held up the Cherry Avenue Market of $2,300 and exchanged gunfire with his victim in a foot race to a getaway car about 10:10 p.m. Friday.

George E. Lawson, 40, owner of the market told officers that he was working at the rear of the store when he was surprised by a male Negro, 40-45, 5-11, 200 pounds, with short braided hair.

The robber came around to the other side of the counter pointed a .38 cal. revolver, and commanded: "Lay down. This is a holdup."

Lawson said that when he didn't comply, the robber grabbed him and threw him to the floor.

The robber was unsuccessful in getting open the cash register, and forced Lawson to open it.

Two customers who came into the store during the holdup also were forced to lie on the floor, Lawson said.

Lawson told police the robber took about $1,900 in cash from the register, about $400 from his billfold and cigarettes, watches and rings from below the counter.

Lawson said that as the robber fled out the front door, he grabbed a gun from behind the counter and fired twice at him.

Lawson said he chased the robber who was about two-thirds of the way to F Street and Cherry Avenue when the holdup man turned and fired a shot.

As the pair ran westbound on F Street, the robber fired twice more at Lawson, but missed each time.

The robber got into a waiting car which sped away.

The getaway car was described as a 1967 to 1970 white Chevrolet.

Couple arraigned in deaths of 2 children 'lost' Christmas Eve

NEW YORK (AP) — "Two little kids, two tiny little kids," said Cynthia Ramon, 28, as she watched police comb through the cold weed-strewn Harlem lot where the bodies of Rodell Mackall and his half-sister, Candy Cunningham, had been found.

"They're innocent," said another woman, Charlotte Esther, 37. "They did nothing. They couldn't have harmed nobody. And look what happens to them — they get killed."

Debra Mackall, 20, the children's mother, and her boyfriend, Alfred Forte, 30, stood silently during their arraignment Saturday on two charges of murder each.

Mrs. Mackall was ordered to King County Hospital for psychiatric examination, and Forte was ordered held without bail pending their next court appearance, Jan. 8. Earlier, acting Chief Medical Examiner Dominick J. Di Maio completed an autopsy on the children.

Di Maio said Saturday the autopsy determined that both children died as a result of being beaten. He said that in addition to multiple bruises on both bodies, the boy suffered a severe brain injury and the girl choked to death when she regurgitated from the effects of being beaten.

National television viewers had watched as Mrs. Mackall pleaded on news programs for the return of her two young children she said were missing in a Christmas Eve department store crush.

Police say the children already were lying dead in a cardboard box.

Shaking with sobs, Mrs. Mackall told her story of leaving 2-year-old Rodell and 4-year-old Candy to wait while she and Forte bought their toys. The children were gone when they returned, she said.

Police say the small naked bodies had been dumped and burned and were lying frozen in the Harlem lot as she spoke on camera.

The break in the case came Friday when police were driving Mrs. Mackall and Forte to the Police Academy where they had agreed to take lie detector tests. They turned around and went back to the precinct.

While declining to say what the couple disclosed, Queens Detective Chief Edward Dreher said, "We found both children after interviewing their mother and Forte. You can draw your own conclusions."

Shortly after 7 p.m., police found the two bodies in the lot — the site of a recently demolished building on East 118th Street, just off Fifth Avenue.

"They were dead Christmas Eve," said detective chief Dreher. He said they believed the children had probably been beaten to death sometime Monday or Tuesday and the bodies dumped, then burned to cover the beating.

Still 10 cents to mail letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — It still costs 10 cents to mail a first-class letter despite attempts by the Postal Service to increase the rates.

Postal officials had scheduled an increase to 13 cents effective Sunday but the price hike is still unresolved in court.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica said that the Postal Service ordered the temporary increases for Dec. 28 without first submitting a valid request to the Postal Rate Commission to make the increases permanent. He said a similar request was needed for other postal increases scheduled for Jan. 3.

The Justice Department appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court for the District of Columbia, which will hear arguments on Monday. It was not clear when the court would reach a decision.

A spokesman for the Australian embassy said Shaw, who had been ambassador here for less than two years, was stricken at his home and was dead on arrival after being rushed to Georgetown Hospital.

Argue over who's going to drive patrol car

Cop, woman officer in shootout

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A policeman and a policewoman were wounded Saturday in a shootout during an argument over who was going to drive their patrol car, police say.

Investigators said Walter Kalberer, 34, was in fair condition at Flint's Hurley Medical Center after being shot in the left thigh by his partner, Madeline C. Fletcher, 20.

Miss Fletcher was shot once in the chest and was in the intensive care unit at Hurley. Police said it was not yet clear whether Miss Fletcher was shot by Kalberer or other officers at the scene.

Miss Fletcher, who is black, and Kalberer, who is white, were not regular partners, but they were assigned to the same squad car Saturday, police said.

Police Chief Herbert Adams said he is satisfied after preliminary investigations that the incident was not racially motivated.

Capt. William Bannister, commander of the Patrol Bureau, said: "As far as we can determine now, it was not a racial confrontation or a sexual one. It was just a dispute between two officers."

Police said the argument over who would drive began as the two officers walked to their patrol car, parked behind Flint Police Headquarters, at the beginning of their shift Saturday morning.

Miss Fletcher got behind the wheel of the vehicle, and Kalberer tried to forcibly remove her, investigators said. Kalberer then decided to go into the station and get the shift supervisor, police said.

Miss Fletcher got out of the car, approached her partner and swung her night stick at him, police said. Kalberer, in turn, pulled his night stick and knocked Miss Fletcher's stick to the ground.

Police said Miss Fletcher started to walk away, but turned, pulled her gun, a .38 caliber revolver, and fired two or three times, striking Kalberer once in the leg.

Kalberer fired four times at Miss Fletcher, police said.

Adams said at least three other officers were in the vicinity when the shooting took place and two of them fired at Miss Fletcher when she allegedly pointed her gun at them.

Adams said it was not clear which of the officers fired the shot that struck Miss Fletcher, but state police were conducting ballistics test to determine from which weapons the shots were fired.

Miss Fletcher finished her one-year probationary period Dec. 15. Kalberer is an eight year veteran of the force.

Rape, torture in Africa, say Jehovah Witnesses

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The Jehovah's Witnesses says its members are being subjected to a new campaign of beating, rape, torture and detention in Malawi because of their refusal to join President Kamuzu Banda's Malawi Congress party.

The religious sect, which believes that all governments are sinful, also claims it is being persecuted in Zambia and newly-independent Mozambique, now ruled by a pro-Marxist regime, for refusing to give allegiance to the ruling parties there.

The Witnesses are also unpopular with the white rulers of Rhodesia and South Africa — both involved in low-key guerrilla wars with black nationalists — because they refuse to serve in the army.

Western newsmen are barred from both Malawi and Mozambique and so cannot confirm independently the sect's reports of persecution there. But the reports reaching South Africa of maltreatment of Witnesses are numerous enough to give them credence.

Awake, the sect's newspaper, gives this account of the sect's troubles in Malawi and Mozambique:

Violent attacks on the Witnesses began in Malawi in 1964. President Banda's supporters burned the homes of 1,081 members of the sect and more than 100 of their meeting places, called Kingdom Halls.

Banda banned the sect as "an unlawful society" despite a guarantee in the Malawi constitution to "recognize the sanctity of the personal liberties enshrined in the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights." The banning touched off a countrywide attack on Witnesses. Homes were ransacked and burned. Kingdom Halls were wrecked. Thousands were beaten and thrown into prison. Many Witnesses fled to neighboring Zambia and Mozambique.

The 1972 convention of the Malawi Congress party adopted a resolution declaring the Jehovah's Witnesses "hindered the political and economic development of Malawi." It demanded that all members of the sect be fired from jobs in government, commerce and industry and said all who lived in villages "should be chased away."

This set off a new wave of terror in which young girls were raped, men were beaten unconscious and a variety of tortures were used.

"Forms of torture that could come only from sick minds, such as driving six-inch nails through men's feet and forcing them to walk, were used to try and force these people to violate their religious convictions and conscience and buy a (Congress) party card," Awake said in its Dec. 8 issue.

Thousands of homes were destroyed, and 36,000 men, women and children fled to Mozambique, where the Portuguese colonial authorities gave them land on which to establish refugee camps.

When Mozambique became independent on June 25 and Frelimo — the Front for the Liberation of Mozambique — took over the government, it demanded that the refugees in the camps demonstrate their allegiance by shouting "Viva Frelimo" and other political slogans.

The Witnesses refused, and thousands were driven back into Malawi.

Frank Muller, the sect's presiding overseer in South Africa, says about 18,000 moved into southwest Malawi, and another 6,000 are being held in camps on the border along with 20 busloads of Mozambican Witnesses expelled from Lourenco Marques, the capital.

Officials of the sect said that on Aug. 27 a circular from the district secretary of the Malawi Congress party in Nkhotakota ordered branch leaders to "make sure, along with your village headman, that each Jehovah's Witness buys a party card."

When the Witnesses refused, violence resumed, Awake reported, and more than 4,000 again fled the country, this time to Zambia.

"But by October the Zambian government had forced them to leave, sending them back to Malawi, where the other thousands of Witnesses were undergoing brutal treatment," Awake reported.

The sect says its Watchtower Societies in southern Africa have collected detailed evidence of organized violence against its followers by the members of the Malawi Congress party's Youth League.

Officials said numerous deaths have resulted. They said these incidents were typical:

In the villages of Bundu, Nyanga and Phatha, south of Lilongwe, a mob of more than 100 armed men drove Witnesses from their homes, stripped and beat them, and then tried to make the men have sexual relations with the women.

In Kanchenche, a village northwest of Lilongwe, members of the Youth League stripped and beat women Witnesses and burned their pubic hair with torches. Five married women were raped, and one 17-year-old girl was raped by three men. The local party chairman led the assaults.

At the village of Chimasongwe, in the same area, men and women were bound together to try to force them to commit adultery. A 60-year-old man was tied to a young girl, and a young man was tied to his sister.

Witnesses who appealed to a policeman in one village were told, "Go and tell God. Let him help you. If he does not do so, you will be finished this year."

According to Muller, President Banda has said he will decide finally what to do about the Witnesses in Malawi before the end of January. The church official said he is not optimistic.

He urged Witnesses all over the world to write to Banda and members of his government asking them to stop the attacks on the sect.

Despite urgings, states not using halfway houses

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Despite recommendations for using halfway houses and other community programs, all but four states continue to send most juvenile offenders to training schools and detention centers that cost at least twice as much to operate, says a national report on juvenile corrections.

Further, says the report, states using programs such as halfway houses employ them as supplements rather than substitutes for traditional juvenile institutions, thus negating possible savings.

The report — Juvenile Corrections in the States: Residential Programs and Deinstitutionalization — was prepared by three University of Michigan social researchers as part of a federally funded project, the National Assessment of Juvenile Corrections.

The researchers surveyed juvenile programs in all 50 states during 1974. Among the findings in the report released Sunday were:

—States vary by as much as 20 times in their rates of locking up juvenile offenders in training schools. Wyoming had 41 juveniles in such facilities for every 100,000 residents; New York had two.

—Nationwide, it costs an average of $11,660 a year to keep a juvenile in a training school. By comparison, halfway houses and group homes cost an average of $5,500 a year per offender.

—Seventy-eight per cent of the heads of state juvenile agencies said most deliquents don't belong in institutions at all; 54 per cent said community-based programs are better than even the best traditional training schools.

—Despite the potential savings of halfway houses and the support such programs have among juvenile administrators, the report concluded that "only a handful of states assign significant proportions of their young offenders to these facilities."

The discussion of community-based programs was sparked in 1967 by the report of a presidential commission that said traditional institutions had failed in rehabilitating young offenders. The commission recommended the development of extensive community programs as an alternative.

Despite that recommendation and others, the Michigan researchers reported that on an average day in 1974 there were 28,001 juvenile offenders in state-run training schools, camps and ranches and only 5,563 in community-based program.

In 1974, their report said, the states spent $300 million on closed juvenile institutions and $30 millions on community-based programs that offer convicted youths a chance to attend regular schools or hold jobs, situations experts say are favorable to rehabilitation.

Only four states — Massachusetts, South Dakota, Minnesota and Utah — sent more than 50 per cent of their juvenile offenders to halfway houses or other community programs in 1974, the report said.

Six states reported no such programs — Alaska, Indiana, Louisiana, New Hampshire, New Mexico and North Carolina.

"Nothing we learned in this study challenges the criticism leveled against traditional institutions ... or the argument that community-based corrections are more economical and probably at least as effective," the report said.

"... if states wish to pursue this direction of juvenile corrections reform they are able to do so without possessing special resources but with confidence that important cost savings are possible," it said.

State to take action if doctors quit work

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If doctors stop working because they refuse to pay soaring malpractice insurance rates, the state is planning to use disaster legislation to insure emergency medical care.

The state Health Department has advised all county boards of supervisors that if they declare an emergency, doctors who work under county direction would be exempt from malpractice liability under the state Emergency Services Act. The exemption would not cover wilful acts.

Telegrams were sent to the counties Friday through facilities of the state Office of Emergency Services.

William McLarty, supervisor of disaster services for the Health Department, said Saturday it would not be a question of impressing doctors.

Many doctors without malpractice insurance would be willing to work under an emergency situation if they were relieved of liability, McLarty said.

The law also exempts hospitals, nurses and dentists from liability during an emergency.

He said the Emergency Services Act, first passed in the 1950s, has never been used in such a situation.

Weather hampers search

GRANBY, Colo. (AP) — Heavy snowfall and high winds hampered ground search efforts Saturday for a missing plane with nine persons aboard.

The twin-engine propjet with eight passengers and a pilot vanished Friday on a flight from Denver to this small Rocky Mountain town.

The search centered in the 10,758-foot Milner Pass area of Rocky Mountain National Park northeast of Granby after a Colorado Civil Air Patrol search plane picked up a weak emergency transmitter signal in that area Saturday morning.

Ground search parties were moving in snowmobiles from both sides of the rugged mountain area in an attempt to find the plane.

National Park Service officials estimated the overnight low in the Milner Pass area about zero.

Lee Hollingsworth of Denver was the pilot. Passengers were identified as Stuart Nelson, 42, his wife Myrna, 36, and their two children, Tiffany, 5, and Sabrina, 2; Bobbi Ross, 60, Bob Petersen, 10, and his brother Ritchie, 9, and Gary Nuhivrian, 28.

All the passengers were believed to be from the Los Angeles area.

Lebanon civil war

Fighting rages on but accord near?

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sectarian fighting continued fitfully through a winter storm Saturday, despite reports that politicians were nearing an agreement to settle the country's civil war and the top Arab League official saying he was ready to come to Lebanon to mediate.

Christian and Moslem neighborhoods in Beirut bombarded one another with mortars and rocket-propelled grenades. Private militiamen fought with mortars, rockets and machine guns in Tripoli, Lebanon's second-largest city 60 miles north of Beirut, and in Zahlah, a mountain town 35 miles east of the capital.

Police reported 43 persons killed and about 50 wounded during the previous 24 hours. The fighting persisted despite a cease-fire that all sides have promised to respect.

Officials identified one of Saturday's victims as Mother Superior Catherine Porro of the Congregation of Notre Dame of Nazareth, an Italian nun on an inspection visit from Rome. Police said she was wounded by sniper fire at a school run by her order near a Beirut combat zone. She was reported in satisfactory condition after surgery.

Since the civil war began in April, it has killed what is estimated at more than 7,000 persons and demolished Lebanon's economy.

Mahmoud Riad, top Arab League official, said by telephone from Cairo he would come to Beirut if his current talks with Arab countries about a Lebanese cease-fire produce "fruitful results."

Lebanese newspapers have said Riad was expected in Beirut soon to help implement a Syrian formula for ending the conflict.

Lebanon's Moslem and Christian leaders reportedly have agreed to the formula, which revises an old agreement on sharing power by Moslems and Christians.

Press reports say the new agreement would, among other things:

—End a traditional Christian majority in key institutions and divide parliament, the army and the civil service equally between Moslems and Christians.

Films show something there in Loch Ness, says zoologist

WASHINGTON (AP — A Smithsonian Institution zoologist said Saturday that films shot underwater at Scotland's Loch Ness show "flipper-like appendages of aquatic animals" as well as an object appearing to be the head of some unknown animal.

Dr. George Zug, curator of reptiles and amphibians at the National Museum of Natural History, was among scientists who viewed the movies earlier this month while attending a London conference on the fabled Loch Ness monster.

Zug said that while many participants at the symposium believe there is evidence indicating a population of large animals in the Scottish lake, extensive and careful investigation is needed to determine just what kind of animals may be involved.

The films shown in London had been shot by a research team from the Boston Academy of Applied Science. To accentuate dim images, some of the movies were subjected to special electronic computer techniques.

While he was still in London, Zug had told reporters that he believes "the data indicate the presence of large animals in Loch Ness — but are insufficient to identify them."

Also, he said one frame from a 1975 film "shows an object with a bilaterally symmetrical profile which indicates that it is the head of an unknown animal."

At the London conference, Americans representing the Boston academy were angered because scientists from London's Natural History Museum contended the pictures prove nothing about any Loch Ness creature.

"They've been hoaxed in the past and they have to be careful," said Robert Rines, the academy's president. "But their hostile and emotional attack is unwarranted."

Experts from the London museum said in a statement that the photos "do not constitute acceptable evidence of the existence of a large living animal."

DRAGON WATCHER

A young boy eyes a gold plated dragon, priced at about $600, in a Tokyo shop Saturday as the Japanese prepare to usher in the Year of the Dragon. A plethora of dragons, fifth in the 12-animal Chinese zodiac, can be found all over Japan now.

1976: Year of the Dragon

TOKYO (AP) — Asians hope the Year of the Dragon, beginning Jan. 31, will be influenced more by its animal symbol than was the fading Year of the Rabbit, which saw the world languishing in an economic recession instead of bounding forward as many had hoped.

The Chinese year beginning on the eve of 1976 is fifth in a 12-animal zodiac that begins with the rat and is followed by the ox, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, rooster, dog and pig.

The dragon represents great celestial power and symbolizes life and growth. It is said to be the carrier of blessings, riches, harmony, virtue and longevity, and dragon years are thought to be times of change with strong potential for good.

The ancient Chinese almanac tells those born during a dragon year that 1976 "can lead to great changes. It is wiser to refrain from undertaking any new ventures, moving or changing occupation."

During the last Year of the Dragon, in 1964, China exploded its first atomic bomb, France established diplomatic relations with Peking and the Soviet presidium ousted Nikita Khrushchev and named Alexei Kosygin premier and Leonid Brezhnev first secretary of the Communist party.

The previous cycle, in 1952, saw Queen Elizabeth II begin her reign in England and Gamal Abdel Nasser overthrow King Farouk in Egypt.

But a list of major events in previous dragon years also can read like a catalogue of disasters. They include a yellow fever epidemic that killed an estimated 20,000-25,000 persons in 1810 in Cadiz and Barcelona, Spain; an earthquake that hit Aleppo, Syria, in 1822, with a death toll of about 20,000; fires that destroyed the Houses of Parliament in London in 1846; and a cyclone and tidal wave that killed an estimated 100,000 persons in Bombay, India, in 1882.

People born in the Year of the Dragon are said to be healthy and energetic but short-tempered, excitable and stubborn. They are honest, sincere, brave, and sensitive and also inspire confidence. They don't like to borrow money or deal in flattery and tend to regard those who do as weak and dishonest.

Dragon people have strong likes and dislikes and are somewhat fastidious, the Chinese sages say. They worry a lot for no good reason and often deceive themselves about people they like and lack a sense of tact and diplomacy.

Famous people born in the Year of the Dragon include British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his rival Edward Heath; Spanish surrealist painter Salvador Dali; Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin; and entertainers James Cagney, Bing Crosby, Gary Crant, Glenn Ford, Gregory Peck, Marlene Dietrich, Eartha Kitt, Gina Lollobrigida and Claudia Cardinale.

Doesn't even know it

Solzhenitsyn: West existence at stake

PARIS (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn said in an interview published Sunday that the Western, democratic world is coming to a decisive moment in its existence and that it does not realize what is happening.

In an interview with the news magazine Le Point, which named the exiled Soviet writer its man of the year, Solzhenitsyn said of the West:

"The existence of the civilization it created is going to be at stake in the next years. I think it is not aware of this."

The problem, he said, was not economic, because he felt the present crisis could be overcome, but political.

"You have the impression," he said, "that democracies can last. But you know nothing about it. Democracies are lost islands in the immense river of history. The water is always rising. The simplest laws of history play against democratic societies. But this evidence doesn't strike you."

Talking about what he called the Soviet threat, the writer continued: "Interior will is more important than a policy. If the leaders of the East felt there was the slightest flame in you, the slightest drive to make freedom to survive on your side and spread, if they understood you were ready to sacrifice your life, then at that very second they would give up. Every time that you really showed resolve — Berlin, Korea, Cuba — each time the Soviet leaders retreated."

Solzhenitsyn said it was false to think that there were only a small number of dissidents in the Soviet Union. "I tell you that 80 per cent of the Russians know what the Soviet regime is and what it's worth. They think as I do. Simply, they've chosen to obey."

California training force to help local police in emergency

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California is training a special "civilianized" National Guard force to help local police in emergencies.

The goal is to train a 1,000-man force within six months, said Guard Information Officer Mike Tielmann.

He denied it is a reaction to the recent San Francisco police strike, and claimed the special force is designed to supplement local police, not replace them.

However, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. was reported to have been unhappy with his alternatives if he had been forced to act in the San Francisco strike. Those alternative were to send in the highway patrol or the regular National Guard.

The highway patrol might have resisted acting as strikebreakers and the National Guard might have represented "an intolerable level of escalation," said Douglas Cunningham, executive director of the state's Office of Criminal Justice Planning.

He said the new special force could "go in and appear on the streets without making everyone think that Armageddon is here."

Bill Stall, Brown's press secretary, said creation of the special force has Brown's approval.

"The purpose," said Stall, "is to have a guard unit that can come to the assistance of local authority when needed — to be trained in police methods rather than traditional military methods and avoid a Kent State sort of thing."

Tielmann said the guard is applying for a onetime federal grant of $249,067 to buy equipment to "civilianize the appearance" of the special force.

Members will wear guard uniforms, but will be equipped with highway patrol-type helmets, police-type badges, nightsticks and revolvers and ride in sedans with red lights and sirens.

Congress' drive to gain control of budget

Confrontation with Ford eased, but not resolved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The confrontation between Congress and President Ford on a government spending ceiling was eased but not finally resolved by a compromise in the dying hours of the congressional session. It marks a critical point in the lawmakers' drive to gain control of the budget.

Congress experimented all through 1975 with the machinery set up by the Budget Reform Act of 1974. Such a trial period was provided by the law. Next year the act comes fully into force, with teeth.

House Speaker Carl Albert said Congress had achieved firm control over federal spending." If Republicans had had their way, he said, "the implementation of the budget act would have ended in failure."

But Ford, vetoing a big labor-social services appropriation, said Congress' final budget resolution "approves a $50 billion ... increase in federal spending in one year."

"Such an increase," he added, "is not appropriate budget restraint."

The chairmen of the House and Senate Budget Committees, Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, estimated that the new fiscal machinery, though incomplete, resulted in a $10 billion to $15 billion holddown in spending.

Republican Rep. Bill Frenzel of Minnesota suggested, however, that they "probably saved a little more than the combined staff salaries of the three offices." He meant the staffs of the two budget committees and of the overall Congressional Budget Office.

The Democrats thought the new budget procedures substantial enough to use them as an argument against Ford's tax cut-spending reduction package.

Ford sent to Congress a plan for a $28 billion tax cut in the 1976 calendar year, to be matched with a $28 billion spending cut in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1977. He said repeatedly he would veto any tax reduction bill that did not contain a pledge of dollar-for-dollar spending cuts.

The Democrats said his proposal was politically motivated, since the taxpayers would receive their benefits promptly, while those who would be hurt by the cutback of federal programs would not feel the pinch until after the 1976 election.

The other argument, emphasized in the congressional debate, was that Ford's proposal essentially undercut the budget reform. Democratic lawmakers said they were being asked to promise a future reduction on the basis of a budget they had not seen and that would not go into effect for 10 months — during which economic conditions and needs might change drastically.

They argued that a realistic present spending ceiling is in effect — the $374.9 billion limit set by Congress' final budget resolution effective through June 30.

Ford contended Congress could take the spending cut pledge and tailor its future budget operations to the agreed figures.

Trying to avert a tax jump Jan. 1, when temporary tax reductions were to expire, Congress put an elaborate tax bill on the shelf until next year and passed a measure simply extending the 1975 tax reductions for six months. It did not contain the spending ceiling Ford demanded, and he vetoed it. The House failed to override.

With adjournment time approaching within hours, and Jan. 1 not far behind, a second compromise was rushed through — the same bill with non-binding language endorsing spending cuts in principle but retaining for Congress the final decisions.

Ford signed the bill. The White House proclaimed a victory.

Adams told reporters the language does not commit Congress to anything it would not have done anyway under the Budget Act.

There the matter rests until next year.

The law that will be fully operative in 1976 has two main objectives:

—To enable Congress to look at the budget as a whole.

—To put Congress in a stronger position to set national priorities in spending and taxation, in accordance with economic conditions.

Everyone agrees that the old procedures verged on the chaotic. The President submitted, each January, a budget reflecting his views of the country's needs. It was the only available overall fiscal policy plan.

DEATH PARTS THEM

Amanda James, 104, shown here with her husband, John, also 104, said she wished only for good health after they were robbed of their month's rent. People nationwide sent over $2,000 to the Philadelphia couple when they heard of their plight, but they couldn't give Amanda her health. She died of pneumonia the day after Christmas.

Boy, 13, shot in his foot accidentally

A 13-year-old Los Angeles boy was reported in fair condition Saturday at County-USC Medical Center where he was taken after he was wounded in an accident with a shotgun in Pomona.

The victim, Salvador Franco, was shot in the left foot with a 12-guage shotgun late Thursday afternoon at 1313 Murietta St.

Police said Salvadore A. Fierro, 19, who lives at the Murietta Street address, was picking up his shotgun from the living room floor when it fired, striking the victim who was seated on a sofa. Fierro earlier had inspected the shotgun and believed it to be unloaded, they reported.

Man's body found in car; drug overdose?

The body of a 21-year-old Whittier man was found slumped over in the front seat of his car early Saturday off Fullerton Road in La Habra Heights.

Sheriff's deputies said they were investigating the possibility that the victim, Michael Cruz, might have taken an overdose of drugs.

Cruz' body was found about 1 a.m. in his 1964 Ford, off Fullerton Road north of East Road in a remote area, deputies related.

Authorities were called to the scene by witnesses who heard the car leave the road.

Sheriff's Lt. David Hagthrop indicated that Cruz was dead before the "accident." Since there was no evidence of a shooting or stabbing and no marks on the body, officers are investigating the overdose possibility, said Hagthrop.

A coroner's autopsy was scheduled for today.

Hot ashes start fire in garage

Fire, caused by hot ashes left in a residential garage, inflicted $1,500 in damages to the garage at 3817 Alicia Ave. in Chino early Saturday.

Chino firemen said the 8:43 a.m. blaze was extinguished by a passing motorist, using a garden hose.

The fire was a result of hot fireplace ashes left in the garage. Damages were confined to one wall of the garage and the rafters. No one was inside the garage when the fire broke out.

Post-Christmas sales high

Holiday shoppers still on the loose

By The Associated Press

In Burlington, Vt., it was a $150 pants suit for a down parka and a pair of mittens. In Dallas, Tex., an 86-year-old man returned a set of brightly-colored patchwork sheets because "they're too loud for me to sleep on."

But at the famous Neiman-Marcus department store in Dallas, a store spokesman said there were no returns on the sale of the store's $30,000 trip to Utah to dig for dinosaur bones.

With the pre-Christmas shopping spirit that sent sales into double-digit figures continuing, large crowds filled stores in many parts of the nation on the last weekend of the year. Many merchants said the number of buyers surpassed the "returners" Saturday.

In Chicago, a spokesman for the Greater North American Avenue Association, representing such stores as Marshall Field & Co., Lord & Taylor, said crowds on that street were "overwhelming," with sales high.

Store managers in Raleigh, N.C., reported post-Christmas sales 20 to 30 per cent higher than last year. Several of the managers said because the good sales were anticipated they didn't mark merchandise down as much as last year.

"Last year we cut down on our inventory when everyone thought the world was coming to an end," said Gene Pruitt, manager of a Raleigh department store.

"Today is the biggest after-Christmas sales day we have had since 1955," said Charles Chadwick, superintendent of Castner-Knott's downtown store in Nashville, Tenn.

"Maybe people have just loosened up and let their money fly," said Mrs. Nannie Pomeroy, division manager of the Sears store in Nashville, where business was reported good.

In Greensboro, N.C., shoppers at one of the area's largest malls had trouble finding parking space before they could return gifts or take advantage of sales.

"I've never seen anything quite like this," a department store clerk in Greensboro said Saturday. "We've been two or three times busier today than we were before Christmas and we were really busy before Christmas."

The press and the American Revolution

The battle of Long Island

By Dr. Francis G. Walett
Worcester State College

Even before the British evacuation of Boston in March 1776, General Washington had sent General Charles Lee to prepare defenses of the strategically located New York City. The American commander guessed correctly that the British would strike there next. After he had studied the islands and waterways about New York, Lee wrote that he did not think the city could be defended indefinitely. He did feel, however, that the Continental Army would be able to hold off the enemy for a time without undue risk.

Washington considered the importance of New York so great that he ordered that it be defended as best possible. "For should they get that town, and the command of the North (Hudson) River," he wrote, "they can stop the intercourse between the northern and southern colonies, upon which depends the safety of America."

Lee and other Patriot generals set about erecting defenses to hold the city as long as possible. Cannon were placed on both sides of the Hudson River, forts were erected on Manhattan Island, and artillery was set upon Brooklyn Heights (on western Long Island). It was hoped that British ships would not be able to go up the Hudson and that the batteries in Brooklyn overlooking New York would prevent an approach to Manhattan by way of the East River.

When he arrived in New York (having hurried overland to Norwich, Connecticut, and then by boat along Long Island Sound), General Washington wasted no time on ceremony. Assessing the situation quickly, he proceeded to strengthen the forts and other military defenses laid out by General Lee. The commander-in-chief evidently thought that the Americans could hold their position on Brooklyn Heights, because he ordered the entrenchments strengthened and the colonial lines on Long Island extended. About 9,000 colonial soldiers were positioned there while the remainder of Washington's forces were left on Manhattan or along the New Jersey shore.

On July 2, 1776 — the very day that the Continental Congress voted for independence — General Sir William Howe landed his advance troops on undefended Staten Island, across New York harbor, south of Manhattan.

As more British forces gathered, General Howe waited until he was sure that he had unquestionable superiority before he attacked the Americans. By the time he was ready for action, Howe had over 40,000 men, twice the number Washington commanded, and the largest invasion force of the war. In addition, British naval forces would enable them to establish complete control of the waters around New York.

Washington surely had misgivings as he saw the huge enemy force assemble. It soon became clear that the American position on Long Island was insecure. The British might force their way up the East River and Washington would be cut off from Manhattan Island or the mainland. In retrospect it seems that if Howe had acted quickly he might have captured all of the colonial forces on Long Island including the commander-in-chief.

As events developed the battle of Long Island proved disastrous for the Americans. When Howe began the attack he landed about 20,000 troops on the island in the late August; he planned and executed a flanking movement to encircle the colonial forces on Brooklyn Heights.

It had been a serious mistake for the Americans to occupy Brooklyn at all; and it had been foolhardy for them to extend themselves so far on Long Island. As the battle began, British forces engaged the American right side commanded by General William Alexander (called Lord Stirling). At first this was intended to divert attention from Howe's Flanking movement, but then the redcoats attacked in earnest.

Faced with far superior forces, Stirling "fought like a wolf." It was a futile effort, however, and before the day was over he had surrendered his sword. Watching Stirling's brave fight through a glass, Washington exclaimed, "Good God! What brave fellows I must this day lose!"

Hessians under General de Heister attacked the center of the colonial outer positions near Flatbush. Here fierce fighting developed as the Americans sought shelter in trees to fight Indian fashion. Although they fought valiantly, even using muskets and rifles as clubs, they were no match for the Hessian bayonets. One German officer, Colonel von Herrington, wrote, "The greater part of the riflemen were pierced by the bayonet to the trees. These dreadful people ought rather to be pitied than feared; they always require a quarter of an hour's time to load a rifle, and in the meantime they feel the effects of our balls and bayonets." Groups of Americans, unable to defend themselves, laid down their weapons; many were slaughtered in cold blood.

Meanwhile Howe's flanking movement around the American left, led by General Sir Henry Clinton, sent the panic-stricken colonials who escaped the Hessians scrambling as fast as they could to the Brooklyn entrenchments. General John Sullivan, trying to control the American rout, was taken prisoner by the British in a cornfield.

With the colonials defeated on all sides, Howe might have immediately attacked and carried the fortifications on Brooklyn Heights. Many of his officers wanted to push forward at once, but the British commander (perhaps recalling the horror of Bunker Hill) refused to risk a frontal assault. Instead he planned to build entrenchments and to advance on the American position by siege tactics.

Washington saw there was no time to lose. With British entrenchments getting closer and the danger that British warships might move up the East River to isolate the American forces, the commander-in-chief knew that he must withdraw his army from Long Island hastily or lose it.

Gathering scores of craft of every description he planned to move his men to Manhattan Island under cover of darkness, Aug. 29, 1776. Quietly and swiftly, undetected by the British, seamen from the regiments of Colonels John Glover and Israel Hutchinson of Massachusetts ferried the army across the East River. Struggling feverishly against a strong tide and contrary winds, the men somehow managed to transport about 9,000 troops across the mile-wide river by dawn.

Near daybreak the covering forces that had been left on Brooklyn Heights were withdrawn and brought over to Manhattan. Washington himself was in one of the last boats to leave. The surprise had been so complete that the British captured only a few stragglers on the beach in the morning.

It had been a costly experience for the Americans, who suffered 1,500 casualties in the battle of Long Island. Fortunately, the British had not pursued their advantages, and washington had been able to accomplish a remarkable withdrawal. By occupying Brooklyn, however, General Howe made New York untenable and the Continental Army would soon have to retreat again.

While American spirit was shaken by the Battle of Long Island, attacks on the British in the press continued. "Fair battle" in the PENNSYLVANIA EVENING POST Sept. 7, 1776 berated General Howe and praised American efforts: "The courage of these men (Americans) baffled your hopes who after laying great numbers of their enemies dead, that opposed their retreat, more than two - thirds reached their own lives in safety; therefore, we think you have no cause to exult."

Americans may have taken some comfort in harangues like this.

Suspect killed, 2nd flees as cop interrupts robbery

MARYSVILLE (AP) — A policeman interrupted a robbery in a downtown cafe and shot and killed one of two men who had forced 20 patrons to lie on the floor early Friday, police said.

Officer Jack Houser said he fired his shotgun as one of the robbers wheeled towards him as he entered the door of the Nugget card room shortly after 1 a.m.

The second robber was just starting to pack patrons' wallets into a pillow case, but fled without any loot, Detective Bill Kauk said.

Bar manager Buster Welch and waitress Ruth Oliver suffered minor wounds from stray gunfire. Kauk said doctors at Rideout Hospital said Welch's shoulder wound looked like it was made by a bullet, rather than a shotgun pellet.

Several patrons said they thought the second robber fired his pistol.

Nobody recognized either robber and the dead man had no identification.

Vietnam: top story of '75

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The top news stories of 1975 reflect what appears to be a nation, still stung by unbelievable daily events, trying to deal with the debris and delusions of a decade.

The top story of 1975 was the fall of Vietnam and Cambodia — so voted by the editors and news directors of Associated Press member newspapers, radio and TV stations.

Second was the assassination attempts on President Ford by two women, leftovers from the fringes of the radical '60s. That was closely followed by the capture of Patty Hearst.

Fourth was the fiscal crisis of New York City, nearly tied by (5) inflation, recession and the economy.

The others in the top ten were: (6) the Mayaguez incident; (7) the Watergate aftermath; (8) the questionable CIA activities; (9) Ford's new aides and Rockefeller's decision to drop out as a vice presidential nominee; (10) the disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa.

The events that peaked in the top stories of the year had begun long before — a war finally over; the radicalism and youth culture of the '60s playing out a strange, almost pathetic ending; the plight of cities overreaching their revenues to pay for goals fashioned in a wealthier time; the adjustment of the nation to new economic imperatives; the rearrangement of government caught between Watergate and an election year.

The year, as the editors saw it, appeared to be one of reassessment and turning inward.

Aside from U.S.-involved stories — the war, the Mayaguez, CIA activities — there were no major foreign stories in the top ten, not the Sinai Pact, nor Franco and Spain, Portugal, Gandhi, Northern Ireland, the Suez Canal opening, the Faisal assassination, the Helsinki summit, although all were on the ballot.

By a wide margin, the top story was the end of the war.

1. For the 30 years since the Japanese surrendered in 1945 Indochina had been locked in war. Governments rose and fell. Religious refugees fled to safety, and religious dissidents burned themselves to death in protests.

Ceasefires evaporated. Millions died. A French presence was frustrated and diminished. An American presence took its place and shared its fate.

Now the stage was set. The last American troops and the last American POWs were home. The last ceasefire had withered away. The last agreement was dead.

By New Year's Day, 1975, there was light at the end of the tunnel — but only for the Khmer Rouge of Cambodia, the Vietcong of South Vietnam, and the North Vietnamese.

Like silent dominoes on a felt pad, provinces fell one by one. First Phuoc Binh 40 miles northeast of Saigon, hardly a shot fired. Then Ban Me Thuot, capital of Dar Lac Province in the Central Highlands.

President Nguyen Van Thieu decided to abandon the central highlands and to defend the coastal enclaves and Saigon. And more provinces fell without a shot fired. Thieu was in isolation in the Independence Palace.

Down went Hue, the ancient Imperial capital. Down went Danang, the second largest military base. Two thirds of South Vietnam fell in just three weeks, and it was early April.

South Vietnam drew the line at Xuan Loc, a little provincial capital 35 miles east of Saigon. It put in place part of its 18th division and crack paratroops, pledged to stand and die. They did, and they inflicted the only major casualties of the entire offensive.

The Communists were in no hurry. They moved into place. The signal was clear: Surrender or face a massive and devastating attack. President Thieu resigned and others took over the job of negotiating. In the last week in April, the last 5,000 Americans were airlifted out, leaving a land where 55,000 Americans had died in 13 years from 1961 to 1973.

On April 30, Saigon fell.

In Cambodia, the final offensive began on New Year's Day 1975.

Already 80 per cent of the countryside was in Khmer Rouge hands, while 60 per cent of the people had fled to government-held but shrinking territory. Before it was over, the capital of Phnom Penh, once a city of 500,000, was choking with two million refugees.

The city was cut off by road and river, sustained only by a U.S. airlift of supplies. The noose tightened with up to 30,000 Communist troops ringing the city. They moved slowly, deliberately. Some 70 rockets a day burst in the city's streets, meant to terrorize the civilian population, which held out in hope of U.S. help to the end.

But on April 1, tears in his eyes, Premier Lon Nol left Cambodia, just escaping artillery shells zinging into the airport. On April 11, U.S. Marines and helicopters flew into the capital in "Operation Eagle Pull," to remove the last Americans.

On April 17, the Khmer Rouge entered the city.

2. Americans seemed to want to turn away from Indochina and the other traumas of past years. Events would not allow it.

Twice in 18 days of September 1975, there were attempts on the life of President Ford. In each case the suspect was a young woman with roots in the dissidence of the 1960s. Each case had bizarre elements.

On Sept. 5, a Friday, in Sacramento, Calif., the President was walking with secret service agents from the Senator Hotel to the state capitol. A crowd lined the way. He saw hands extended toward him. Suddenly in one hand he saw a gun.

Secret Service agent Larry Buendorf saw it too, and grabbed the wrist and arm, twisting the gun loose. He forced the would-be assailant to the ground. It was a young woman in a long red dress.

Her name was Lynette Alice Fromme, 26, of Sacramento, a red-haired, freckled daughter of a well-to-do Southern California family, a college dropout better known as a member of the infamous Charles Manson Family. Manson had called her "Squeaky."

In November she became the first person convicted under a 1965 law specifically aimed at those who attempt the lives of Presidents.

After the attempt President Ford said the event would not dissuade him from seeing the American people face-to-face.

On Sept. 22, a Monday, in San Francisco, the President was coming out of the St. Francis Hotel. A man in the crowd, an ex-Marine named Oliver Sipple, had waited three hours for a glimpse of Ford.

As he started to clap for the President he saw a chrome-plated gun in the hand of a woman near him. He shouted "gun" and grabbed her forcing it downward. The gun went

Ayuda escolar —$4.2 million

Este ano estos programas contribuyen a los fondos del presupuesto $4.206,164, ampliando los fondos del presupuesto general 1975 - 76 adoptado el pasado agosto de $32.799,932 a $37.006,096.

Todos los miembros del Directorio recibieron un comprensivo esquema de cada programa, explicada por el Sr. Ray Thomas, asistente en funciones del superintendente de los servicios educacionales.

La Sra. Patricia A. Ramp informo como coordinadora de evaluacion de educacion compensatoria.

El miembro Ken Pine duda si las evaluaciones de los programas especial del estado y estatal fueron honestas o meramente para ayudar a continuar gastando.

Pomona empieza una campana promocional

El Municipio de la ciudad de Pomona contribuira con la cantidad de $10,000 para una campana promocional de "Descubra A Pomona" por diez meses y medio, en conjuncion con el Distrito Escolar Unificado de Pomona, la Camara de Comercio de la ciudad y negocios y comercios locales interesados.

La campana incluira el uso de todos los medios de propaganda disponibles, TV, radio, presa, marbetes para uso en autos, cartas y otros materiales para crear una imagen positiva de Pomona como el lugar indicado para vivir y trabajar.

La votacion municipal para la aprobacion de la distribucion de los $10,000 fue por unanimidad durante la reunion del lunes de los senores concejales.

"Necesitamos un programa como este", dijo el alcalde Sr. Ray Lepire, que actuo en representacion del municipio en el comite que formulo la campana.

"Me siento mal y estoy cansado de oir a gente hablar desfavorablemente de Pomona. Cuando usted les rebate lo que estan diciendo, usted se encuentra con que ellos no saben de lo que estan hablando. No me agrada tener que gastar $10,000 — pero ello vale la pena si podemos mostrar todas las cosas buenas que tenemos en Pomona." dijo el Sr. Lepire.

off, the bullet missing the President.

The woman was Mrs. Sara Jane Moore, a 45-year-old divorcee who called herself "Sally." She was so many things — a sometimes informer to law enforcement officers, the mother of a 9-year-old son, once a suburban matron with a country club membership, and a sometimes advocate of radical causes who had worked on the Hearst-kidnap food giveaway demanded by the Symbionese Liberation Army.

She was charged with attempting the life of the President.

3. The 19-month saga of newspaper-heiress Patty Hearst was full of dismaying questions.

It began with the apparent kidnap of the half-naked screaming girl from her apartment. It was punctuated with threatening tape-recordings from the Symbionese Liberation Army, a massive food giveaway demanded by the SLA and paid for by Patty's father Randolph A. Hearst.

And then — a picture of Patty holding a gun during a bank robbery, word that she had changed her name to "Tania" and joined her abductors, a shootout with police in Los Angeles that left most of the SLA leaders dead but Patty still at large.

Finally on Sept. 18, 1975, Patty Hearst and her remaining comrades were arrested. Thin, her hair dyed red, her hands cuffed, she laughed and smiled. Now, perhaps the questions would be answered.

But months after her arrest, with high-powered F. Lee Bailey conducting her defense, Patty Hearst remained as much an enigma as before. Was this a brain-washed child who buckled under threats and deprivation? Or was this a convinced and dedicated radical who did, as charged, willfully rob a bank?

The answers await her trial.

4. It sounded like the story of Chicken Little. But this time it was New York crying out that the sky was falling.

The city, deeply in debt, cutting its employment ranks, faced default. It would simply not be able to pay its bills and, further, would not be able to pay its debts when they came due.

In the long maneuvering, there were bitter words, and bitter economies. New taxes were passed, and finally — despite his early refusal — President Ford offered $2.3 billion in federal loans, which with budget cuts and new revenue should enable the city to survive its crisis.

The President said in May: "We must stop promising more and more services without knowing how we will cover their costs."

In November, explaining his earlier stand as he announced the new loans, he said: "If we had shown any give, I think they wouldn't have made the hard decision that they made in the last week or so."

The city, with help from the state and other interested parties, he said, "have bailed themselves out."

At year's end, New York's plight seemed to presage the plight of other American municipalities.

5. The nation itself was trying to shake off the combined effects of inflation and recession.

The stock market showed a strong recovery in 1975 after wallowing in the depths. The nation reduced its oil imports and by October had registered its ninth monthly trade surplus in a row. But there were still millions out of work. Inflation, though slowed, continued. Farm prices were falling. Farm costs were not. Fuel costs still rose. There have been signs of recovery in the U.S. government's various indicators, but those signs have shown some wavering.

The country was making some large adjustments, not the least of these Detroit's new emphasis on super-small cars and gas economy. The assembly lines were rolling again as the United States moved with caution toward its 200th anniversary and an election year.

6. "Have been fired upon and boarded by Cambodian armed forces at 9 degrees 46 minutes north, 102 degrees 53 minutes east. Ship being towed to unknown Cambodian port."

That message from the unarmed U.S. freighter Mayaguez kicked off a three-day rescue that saw Marines land on a Cambodian island and U.S. bombers strike at Cambodian air and naval bases to cover their landing.

It was a strange coda to the recently ended Indochina war. The 39-member crew and their ship were recovered — at the cost of 38 servicemen killed, three missing and 50 wounded.

The Ford Administration came out early saying the United States had reaffirmed freedom of the seas. Seven Cambodian gunboats were destroyed and most of the little air force was left unflyable.

But a study of the operation revealed a delay in getting word to the President, inconsistent reports on casualties and confusion over Cambodian intentions which the Pentagon blamed on "the fog of war."

8. The Central Intelligence Agency came under the scrutiny of the Congress and the Rockefeller Commission in 1975, and Americans were given a rare peek behind the cloak that hides the danger.

But the inquiries left many questions unanswered, especially about the future course of U.S. intelligence. Just how far should a democratic society let its spies go?

9. It all happened so fast, Washington was left gasping.

President Ford, with the notion of putting "my guys" in and getting some discordant voices out, reshuffled his cabinet in November.

Out went Defense Secretary James Schlesinger with White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld nominated for the job. Out went CIA chief William Colby with George Bush, head of the U.S. liaison office in Peking, named to take his place. Elliot Richardson, who has been everything from Attorney General to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary, was called back from his post as ambassador to Great Britain to be the next Secretary of Commerce.

10. And finally, the man who never drove a truck, yet rose to head the Teamster's Union and build it into the nation's largest, disappeared mysteriously on Wednesday, July 30, a case rampant with Mafia overtones.

Jimmy Hoffa's vanishing was rumored to be tied to his bid to reenter union affairs and battle for Teamster leadership. Hoffa, convicted in 1964 of mail fraud and jury tampering, was banned from union activities until 1980 as a term of clemency granted by President Nixon in 1971. Hoffa was 62 and fighting the union ban in the courts.

It's history with a flair

By NICHOLAS C. POLOS

RANCHO CUCAMONGA and Dona Merced, by Esther Boulton Black. San Bernardino County Historical Association, $7.50.

For some California historians the history of the El Dorado has been "the saga of growth and progress usually quantitatively measured."

While this is basically true the persistence of inaccurate cliches about California history has tended to prevent a full realization of the recency and swiftness of emergence upon the modern scene.

Many of the books on local or regional California history are often plodding and pedestrian in style, overburdened with local and unimportant minutiae and very short on color, humor, excitement, or connected relatedness to the history of the state in general.

This handsome book by Esther Boulton Black which is endorsed by the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of California proves once again that truth is stranger than fiction and often more exciting.

The story of Rancho Cucamonga, "the sandy place," and Dona Merced has all the essential elements of a Greek tragedy with an Hispanic-American overtone.

In rich historical detail the author vividly describes the life and adventures of Dona Merced, "the once rich heiress of Rancho Cucamonga," who between 1856 and 1876 was caught in the web of murder, hardship, the struggle to keep her rancho, intrigue, and the burdens of ranch life in the 1860s. In the end she lost everything — "her cattle, her land, her home — that is everything except her pride, her dignity and her self-respect." The latter qualities, author Black explains, "were qualities which she had inherited from her Spanish ancestors."

The book has research in depth, and it is more that the story of the life of one person, a tragic central figure. Mrs. Black, while painting the story of rancho life in transition, attempts to provide us with convincing answers to the unsolved mysteries which surrounded the rancho.

It is heavily salted with valuable photographs, maps, letters, journalistic gems of the period, and architectural drawings. The notes at the end of each chapter attest to the author's careful scholarship, but the text which is lively, often dramatic, reveals that the writer has a firm grasp of her subject plus a delightful sense of humor which makes the historical characters spring into real life.

Mrs. Black gives our environment meaning, enriches the present, and helps provide roots for strangers on the land.

This book is not about "a sandy place," or "a fable of contents," but a carefully carved out piece of history which is a part of our heritage.

Truck driver proves hero

DIAMOND SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Claude Ong, a propane truck driver who had been on the job only three months, discovered a liquid propane gas leak while making a home delivery.

A potentially deadly explosion was in the making. Ong discovered the leak in fitting a hose on his truck.

He "immediately went back to the house and turned off all sources of ignition, such as pilot lights," said Ong's boss, Dan Huntley.

A close look at America

Books

By CLAY BRYANT

(Clay Bryant is a former Pomona City Councilman)

Mr. Benson is a political scientist who has taught at Harvard, Northwestern, and other universities. He was the founding President of Claremont Men's College and was deputy ass't secretary of defense (education). Mr. Engeman has taught political science at Scripps College and Claremont Men's College, and is now in the department of political science, Loyola University of Chicago.

Amoral America is a clear and uncomfortably close look at America's nerve-endings, with a constant thread of cause and correction. It is also a scholarly and penetrating analysis of crime, its causes, and the direct relationship to learned ethical standards from shoplifting to Watergate.

The study is extensively researched and documented. Moralizing or pontificating is noticeably absent. The single exception is the call for greater responsibility in the mass media, particularly television, to be more concerned with the effects of violence, even to the extent of programming sympathy for the victims of crime.

The message comes through clearly: The media must recognize the social responsibility entailed in a wide ranging coverage which presently disclaims and ignores any impact upon individual ethics.

Of particular significance; and a startling revelation in itself, is the comparison of the U.S. crime rate with that of Europe. The major felony crimes per capita in the U.S. far outstrip the total in foreign countries.

One is compelled to ask: Are Europeans more instilled with ethical standards? Is national religion in any way responsible for the difference? Is our First Amendment, (separation of church and state) contributing to lower ethical standards?

The crime rate increases between 1968 and 1973 (a 55 per cent increase in rape alone) lead to speculation concerning the period in question: permissiveness, pornography, radical student unrest, general looseness in court decisions, plea bargaining zenith, tolerance and probation for serious crime rather than punishment.

All of this is summed up in the author's comment: "In two years we murder as many people as were lost in eight years of the Vietnam war".

Amoral America will hardly excite or espouse the ACLU or those of liberal bent who still subscribe to the doctrine of permissiveness in everything except religous training. Neither will the schools or churches suddenly remember their responsibility to American youth for the instruction of ethics.

The strongest indictment falls upon the strata of university intellectuals for creating social concerns, i.e. racism, militarism, economic exploitation, which tolerate criminal reaction to those conditions with a corollary decay of individual ethics. The churches have followed the intellectual theory to the extent that social action and psychological views of individual unhappiness have replaced the Judeo-Christian ethics which were the cornerstone of American Constitutional law and the guide of the founding fathers.

With the teaching of the "new morality" on one hand, "situation ethics" on another, and existentialism on a third, one wonders if even Poor Richard or King Solomon could survive in today's hodge-podge of confused moral (or immoral) standards.

The authors' conclusion illustrates that the most logical channels of individual ethics education (church, school, mass media) are in default, leaving only the penal and civil statutes as the school-master of ethics. Justice becomes the club of morality, instead of the torch of equality.

In the epilogue, the authors condense a study in depth to a poignant paragraph: "As political scientists we have not been merely content to trace the course of the decline in ethical instruction and its correlation with increased crime. We are also interested in analyzing methods by which ethics can be encouraged . . . It is important that the institutions of our society take up ethical reform because the long-run maintenance of our democracy depends upon a citizen body which is politically and ethically responsible."

THE COMPLEAT AMERICAN HOUSEWIFE 1776

This delightful book was compiled by "a Lady" of the times and extensively illustrated. The volume contains nostalgic recipes, pages of Colonial philosophy and sage sayings by famous people of the day, household hints, a bartender's guide of our founding fathers' day and a look into the diary of a 1776 housewife.

The old fashioned prose, the old-style type face, pen and ink drawings and 'antique' stock combine into a beautiful salute to our Bicentennial celebration.

Fundamental school: Chino board likes idea

Briggs' proposal patterned after Pasadena's plan

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino school trustee Lyle Briggs believes in good manners, patriotism and, most of all, basic education.

Briggs' proposal for a fundamental school to be established in the district — which would emphasize his philosophy — has received a favorable response from the school board.

The board has directed Supt. Royce Lapp to prepare a feasibility study on the fundamental school, which might be patterned after those in Pasadena.

Briggs, a conservative trustee elected to his seat last March, said he proposed the idea because, "I've had evidence of parents not satisfied with the present choices of education offered in Chino.

"Many parents are unhappy about the education their kids received, but were pleased with the more basic education they themselves had."

The fundamental school stresses the three R's — basic education. It also fosters moral teachings, manners, strict discipline, and letter grades at all levels.

Classes may be grouped according to ability of students, he added. Also, homework is assigned in each academic subject, grades reflect accomplishment, not just effort, and no student is passed to a higher grade without mastering minimum requirements.

In fundamental schools, a strict dress code is enforced, Briggs related. Neatness and cleanliness are mandatory.

Students may be punished by "coercive inducements" (corporal punishment) allowed by law, Briggs explained. Detention assignments will be upheld and not excused for minor reasons, he added.

Briggs noted he would like to see a fundamental school established in Chino by the 1976-77 school year. Pasadena educators claim test scores are higher in their district since the alternative schools were started, he told the board.

The Riverside campus in the Chino district could be converted to a fundamental school, said Briggs. "Also, I would favor a textbook for every kid, teachers volunteering (not being forced) to serve in the new system, and no combination classes (different grades lumped together)."

The fundamental concept is "part of my own philosophy," Briggs declared. "Kids shouldn't be pampered too much. They should receive the best possible education, so they can face the realities of the world."

Pete VanderPoel, another Chino board member, said, "There seems to be some interest in fundamental schools throughout the state. Some districts are getting away from the frills."

While indicating he wanted to see the feasibility study before deciding the issue, VanderPoel said reviews of the program have been "pretty impressive. If this is a school that a large part of the community might be interested in, I would favor it."

"We want the best possible education for everyone," he noted.

Lapp, meanwhile, said he will be completing a "full blown" study of the fundamental concept.

The study, he said, will include the economic ramifications and the student housing problem.

Lapp indicated the report should be ready by mid-January, but added, "we're not dropping everything and working on that."

The superintendent declined to say whether he personally favored the fundamental concept or not.

He emphasized, however, that a fundamental school would involve "a major change in the philosophy of the district."

Current district goals, adopted several years ago, include a "knowledge of the arts and sciences," which Lapp said might not be a goal of the fundamental school. Also, the goals specify that students develop a "sense of humor" and a "plan for pleasurable leisure time activity."

"My understanding is that the fundamental concept does not go beyond academic subjects," he added.

Among the wide variety offered this winter are programs in arts and crafts, interior design, knitting, macrame, stained glass, sewing and painting.

In the area of sports, the programs include bicycle motocross, basketball, fencing, karate, and tennis.

Cooking enthusiasts can enroll in cake decorating, gourmet cooking on a budget or Italian cooking classes.

Programs are also planned for the developmentally disabled, senior citizens and tiny tots.

Classes are held in locations throughout Upland, including the recreation hall, Magnolia Center, the old public library, schools and parks.

Most classes are free and registrations will be accepted at the first meeting. For those classes with a fee, interested persons are asked to preregister at the Upland Recreation Dept. office, 404 N. Second Ave., Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Claremont board to discuss writ

The Claremont school board will hold a special meeting at the district education center Monday at 7 p.m. to consider pending litigation against the district.

The board will immediately go into executive session with the district's new legal counsel, Mrs. Elaine Canty, to discuss the board's action in answering a writ filed by Citizens for Quality Education and Ralph A. Spaulding.

They are asking that the district file an environmental impact report on the proposed closings of Sycamore Elementary School and La Puerta Intermediate School as schools.

The school board at its June 2 meeting decided that Sycamore School should be closed as an elementary school site at the end of the present school year, and that effective the 1977-78 school year the present intermediate school program at La Puerta be discontinued.

The court hearing on the case is scheduled Jan. 27 at 9 a.m. in Dept. A, and will be handled by Judge Paul Egly.

The school board will take no public action Monday night.

Heslop named V.P. at Men's College

Alan Heslop, dean of the faculty at Claremont Men's College since July 1974, has been named executive vice president of the college effective immediately.

The new position, created last week by the board of trustees, is the second highest administrative position at the college.

In making the announcement, President Jack L. Stark said Heslop will continue as dean of the faculty but will have additional administrative responsibilities.

Born and raised in England, Heslop is a graduate of Magdalen College, Oxford University. He holds a master's degree from Oxford and earned his doctorate from the University of Texas. He has served as a legislative aide to Senators Hugh Scott and Richard Schweiker.

U.S. detente needs spine

Underlying our problems with the Soviet Union is a lack of confidence in what we are and what we believe. We do not have that self respect necessary in dealing with a strong and determined adversary.

We have, therefore, over the past few years, attempted to bribe the Soviet Union to end its aggressions and its military buildup.

But bribery does not work, even in a good cause. The Russians take the bribes and come back for more.

This is why detente is failing.

No one, least of all Leonid Brezhnev, has respect for men who show little respect for their own beliefs.

Item — We have repeatedly insisted that detente rests on a change in Russian actions, that we will not go along with continued Soviet aggression in countries around the world. In that context, we have issued strong warnings on Angola, where the Russians have openly moved in on a civil war. No sooner had Moscow ignored our warnings, than we leaked word of new SALT concessions, though we'd said we could go no further.

Item — We averted our eyes when the Russians, using technical evasions known to every shyster lawyer, evaded the spirit and meaning of the SALT accords, while holding to a twisted interpretation of the letter. The administration not only accepted these violations, but defended the Soviet actions, though they directly contradicted published U.S. understandings at the time the treaty was signed, a clear signal to Brezhnev we do not have the moral courage to stand on what we believe.

Item — In Vietnam we made a deal with Moscow concerning restraint in the supplying of war materials. The Russians broke their word, watched us back out under a face-saving ploy.

Item — Though we have time and again reaffirmed our alliance with Taiwan, the men in the Kremlin know Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has in effect promised the Chinese that one of these days we will turn Taiwan over to the Peking government, wash our hands of the matter.

Item — The U.S.S.R. has seen us formally agree to recognize as absolute the Russian conquest of Eastern Europe, gaining in return only a promise of certain individual freedoms, a promise the Soviet Union promptly ignored, most publicly in the person of Andrei D. Sakharov, the great Russian physicist, not allowing him even a trip to Oslo to receive the Nobel Peace Prize.

As noted above, our answer to these Russian violations — in Angola, in SALT, in the case of Sakarov, has been to cave in, to promise further concessions in SALT and to offer more technical secrets.

In the name of heaven where do we stand?

It is not necessary to be belligerent. To be firm and to stand on what we believe does not require we call the Marines or move aircraft carriers. This might not, in any event, impress the Russians who have seen us regularly back down in the crunch.

We can, however, say deal or no deal. We can leave the door wide open for detente — when the Russians decide to live up to their promises.

This is what a man does who has respect for himself.

It does require that we don't issue warnings we are unable or unwilling to back up.

It does require we don't reward Russian violations and Russian aggressions with new cave-ins.

It does require that at some point we say — and mean — that we will not make further one-sided concessions, knowing that living together in the same world peacefully requires some measure of reciprocity — mutual giving and restraint.

Dear Editor:

This is the season recognition should be given to those who have made us happy during the year.

We had remodeled our office and barely had it in order including telephone service the day before VIPs were expected. This was also the day Wally Allen did his bi-weekly cleaning of our office. Not really expecting that he could do so, I took the chance and asked if that evening he could strip and wax the engineering room floor from where we had removed some furniture. He simply did not have time inasmuch as he had other offices to clean after he finished ours, which we completely understood.

However next morning at 8:00 a.m. Wally and his crew were moving the drafting boards back to their proper places after arriving at 2:00 a.m., stripping and waxing the whole room.

Words cannot express our appreciation and amazement that Wally would put himself out to do this strenuous job because he sensed we were disappointed. He made no mention of extra pay. He simply got the job done beautifully.

After our frustrations in arguing and coaxing for months with suppliers for our company business as well as our new home, with promises made and not kept it is one of our greatest pleasures to know at least one man, Wally Allen, who would be so unusually considerate of his customer! — N. W. Richardson, Chino

Signing re-enacted

Dear Editor:

It is July 4, 1976. Thomas Jefferson sits in a straight-backed chair on a platform in front of Pomona City Hall. He looks over the crowd . . . nods . . . takes pen in hand and signs with a flourish the Declaration of Independence! Alongside him is Benjamin Franklin, looking on in approval, awaiting his turn. There is a line of anxiously awaiting would-be signers, waiting to put their names to the document.

Our Thomas Jefferson, of course, is but a resident of Pomona Valley bearing the same name as that long-ago leader of men. Beside him are other valley residents who sport the same names as those famous Americans who signed the Declaration of Independence.

The idea, of course, would be to have the Progress-Bulletin start a publicity campaign in search of valley residents having the same name as the signers of the Declaration of Independence and have the Declaration re-signed and re-avowed by Pomona.

I would appreciate knowing what the public thinks of the idea. — Gale W. Donahue, Montclair

The small trucker

Dear Editor:

As the widow of a former trucker, and as a consumer and voter living in the state of California, I wish to express my support of a bill introduced into Congress by Senator Domenici of New Mexico on August 1, 1975 to amend the Interstate Commerce Act by exempting the independent owner-operator from the requirement of obtaining ICC operating authority.

I feel that it is about time this country paid attention to the plight of the American trucker who despite repeated cries for help is at this moment in our history struggling for survival. I sincerely support the only Federal legislation that has ever been introduced that would help the small trucker. Here are a few points I would like the public to consider. Are they for:

1. The survival of justice and free enterprise in America?

2. Helping to rid this country of inflation by keeping food prices down?

3. Fighting the energy crisis by conserving fuel?

4. The owner-operator becoming an owner-operator?

If so, I strongly urge them to support S. 2271. — Gloria F. Hartridge, Ontario

Report on spying censored

WASHINGTON — The Rockefeller Commission heavily censored a report on Soviet spying, which had been intended to put the KGB under the same spotlight with the CIA.

The commission was given an exhaustive account of Soviet espionage activities in the United States but boiled down the original detailed draft to three slim pages.

Thus, the final report made the point but left out the substance. The result was to advertise CIA abuses but to cover up even worse KGB abuses.

In the secret sessions, some members fought to include the full story of KGB spying. They contended that the menace of the KGB had triggered the CIA excesses. The details were deleted, however, on the grounds of national security.

Some members also feared the anti-KGB data might make it look as if the commission were trying to justify the CIA abuses.

The FBI provided the commission with a comprehensive document, giving names, dates and details of Soviet penetration into the United States. The document told how the KGB pressured Soviet citizens in this country, including newsmen, students and tourists, to serve as part-time spies.

The Rockefeller Commission also withheld details of Soviet electronic spying, except to mention that the Soviets are able to "monitor and record thousands of private telephone conversations."

Actually, the commission was told that the KGB can eavesdrop on some of the U.S. government's most confidential calls. Most White House numbers, for example, start with 456. In the Soviet embassy within easy range of the White House switchboard are supersnooping devices which can select and record all calls to or from numbers beginning with 456.

These devices feed the calls into a computerized system which has its main terminal in Moscow. There, hundreds of trained employees ultimately translate, transcribe and summarize the calls for the KGB.

WATCH ON WASTE — With slick accounting tricks, the Bureau of Reclamation has bilked the taxpayers out of millions of dollars that were never supposed to be spent.

This is the conclusion of a confidential staff report of the House Conservation, Energy and Natural Resources subcommittee. Here's how the books were juggled:

Congress usually includes an "inflation clause" in its spending authorizations for reclamation projects. The purpose is to permit the construction to keep up with inflation.

But the bureau "abused the inflation latitude," the report charges, by "estimating inflation increases on costs long after the cost is expended and, of course, no longer subject to inflation."

Stated more simply, the bureau added inflation charges for projects that were already finished. This sleight of hand has congressional investigators fuming.

Footnote: A spokesman claimed the Bureau of Reclamation had done nothing improper. He claimed the congressional charges amounted to no more than honest differences in bookkeeping procedures.

WASHINGTON WHIRL — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has reported that Communist China is making a "major investment" in Cambodia to counter Soviet influence in neighboring Vietnam. Kissinger also disclosed, according to confidential White House minutes, that the Chinese have "urged us to improve relations with Cambodia."

Fiddling while Romes burn

President Ford, in a classic case of reversal, has signed into law a bill providing $2.3 billion in emergency loans to keep New York City — the Big Apple — from falling off the tree.

For the moment then, it looks as though the city of New York is saved. In the process, it has had to pinch and squeeze pennies, to lay off city employes, to consider abandoning or curtailing many city services, and worst of all, had to surrender much of its ability to run its own affairs.

Other cities will, no doubt, face similar circumstances soon, and the Congress is now trying to develop a national policy for impending urban bankruptcy.

Typically, neither Congress nor President Ford want to approach this problem from the other end: to develop a national urban policy designed not just to stop our cities from going under, but to promote their viability and livability too.

New York, like other cities, has problems that will remain when its current difficulties cease. Unless a national policy is constructed soon, the rest of our cities will go the same way.

We can begin now to assign blame to the members of Congress and the President, who, like a modern day Nero, stand fiddling while our Romes burn.

Alaska, Colorado, Maine, Ohio, Oregon and California — these are the states which have sharply reduced the penalty for the possession of marijuana.

It has only been 60 years since California and Utah became the first American states to prohibit the unlawful possession of this substance that has given both pleasure and pain to so many. The laws were passed first in these western states because of the fear that its use by Mexican immigrant workers would spread to the white population.

Later, as marijuana became associated with hot music and cool people, it summoned up fears of sexual licentiousness in lawmakers, and had to be banished from legal commerce. Now, the pendulum is shifting slightly again, and the pot penalty of the future appears to be a small fine for simple possession.

This doesn't mean that we are going to become a nation of potheads. But it does mean that hundreds of thousands of Americans who are occasional users can smoke with a bit more relaxation than they did in the past.

This wave of liberalization gives some people reason to pause, fearing that all our standards of ethical and moral behavior are slowly slipping away.

The only pause involved here is a pause in law enforcement against an essentailly harmless act, and the chance for our lawmen to turn their attention toward more serious crimes now left unattended while our police forces chase smoke.

Just in jest

What price a college education? Why worry about such a mundane matter? Apparently price is no object so long as there is no work involved in meeting the price structure. A recent survey in California colleges shows that students are ready, willing, yes, even eager to accept outright scholarships. But the federally funded part time job program for would-be college students is going begging. And, since nobody seems to want to work for an education, the money is being returned to the government.

Nixon no worse than forebears

WASHINGTON — It has become a commonplace of political rhetoric to refer to Watergate as the "political crime of the century" — a piece of hyperbole echoed by the media, by callow high school orators whose historical memory goes back no farther than the Beatles, and by Democratic politicians. Even the soundtrack of a porno film which has been playing in Washington for many years belabors "King Nixon."

For the sake of the national sanity, then, it would serve us all if a committee of men of unchallenged probity should be set up, financed perhaps by the Ford Foundation's billions, to re-study Watergate, to set it in proper context, and to give the American people some sense of balance.

When all the charges and the hysteria which surrounded them are examined, what precisely were the "crimes" of Watergate? Did they merit the Pharisaic indignation of the media?

The Democrats planted political spies in Sen. Barry Goldwater's camp when he was running for president and engaged in "dirty tricks" of far greater magnitude than those of the (Nixon) Committee to Re-Elect the President.

President Kennedy hid from the American People the Soviet missile build-up in Cuba until the nation had reached the edge of catastrophe.

The full facts of the criminal scandals involving Billy John Estes and Bobby Baker were suppressed by President Johnson and his associates though they involved the highest levels of government.

And the very members of the Senate Watergate Committee, as they held President Nixon up to obloquy, were receiving political contributions from the same sources that they decried.

I recite this partial catalogue not to excuse the transgressions of former President Nixon's subordinates but to note that the actions of Democratic administrations were accepted with tolerance and allowed to go almost unnoticed by a media which later screamed for Nixon's blood.

And, when all is said and done, the only "crime" attributable to Nixon was that he covered up for his political family after he had learned of its transgressions — out of motives identical to those of President Truman when he honored the deceased leader of the nation's most corrupt political machine — the machine that made him a U.S. Senator.

The impropriety of Nixon's actions should have been censured, but were we living in a world of fairness, that censure should have been no greater than that accorded to his predecessors by the national media and Democratic congresses.

Think on these things

Not many of us know how to let something go out of our lives. We cling to friendships, philosophies, ideas — even people — that time and circumstance have moved out of our range. We hold on for dear life because we believe that if something was once ours it is ours forever.

In a sense, it is true that we take with us something of everything and everyone — frequently coming nearest to owning something dear in a brief few moments than we do in a lifetime of lesser things. It is not easy to let go, but necessary, for we only keep that which we give the freedom to move away.

Ann Landers

To girl, 16: yes, it's possible

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old girl and although I like to pretend to know a lot, I really don't. I need an answer to my question and I can't ask anyone because they will put two and two together and get five. Especially my mother.

I hope you will reply in the paper because thousands of teenagers must be just as ignorant as I am. Here's what I need to know: Can a girl get pregnant even though it is the very first time she has had sexual relations?

Thanks for your help, Ann. — Wishing Information

Dear Wish: The answer to your question is yes. And I'm glad you wrote, because your letter gives me an opportunity to quote some startling figures.

Did you know that six out of ten teenage mothers are unmarried or get married just before their babies are born? Over 70 per cent of the pregnant teenage girls interviewed did not use any contraceptives and didn't realize they could become pregnant. More than 55 per cent of the girls said they thought they were too young to become pregnant.

Most teenage mothers and their babies face greater health risks than older mothers. Teenagers who marry as a result of pregnancy are more likely to be economically disadvantaged and to be divorced.

Three conclusions were based on statistics from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and a survey by the Census Bureau.

Maybe I told you more than you wanted to know, but I believe these figures underscore the pressing need for sex education in the public schools. It is apparent that a great many teen-agers get no sex education at home. Information does NOT get young people into trouble. Ignorance DOES.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife has a 26-year-old bachelor brother who is becoming a real pain in the ankle.

Six months ago we moved into this great new apartment. My wife gave Horace a key. When I asked her why she did it she said, "Because he might want to stay overnight when he's had too much to drink rather than drive to his apartment on the other side of town." I couldn't fault her for that — especially after she added, "If I said no and he got picked up for drunken driving, or God forbid, if he should have a terrible accident, I'd never forgive myself."

Now it has reached the point where I need advice from Ann Landers. At least three nights a week when I come home from work I find Horace sitting in my chair, smoking my cigars and drinking my Scotch. Last night he was wearing my new bathrobe.

The big gorilla never brings anything but his unquenchable thirst and an enormous appetite. How can I put an end to his freeloading without running into a buzzsaw, namely my wife? — Mr. Sucker.

Dr. Mr.: Tell your wife you've had it from the big gorilla and next week you are changing the locks on the doors. She should inform her brother that his key will no longer fit but if he gets into a jam and wants to sleep over he can phone and there will be a bed ready for him.

Marmaduke

"We didn't catch the cat Marmaduke was chasing, but we found a new way home!"

Dr. Miller

Staring cat friendly or not?

DEAR DR. MILLER: Love Pot, my cat, who's getting on in years, seems to be changing. I don't know whether it's for the better or not. She never turned out to be as mushy a cat as I had hoped but lately, well, what she does is sit and just stare. Sometimes she'll just stare into space or nowhere at all. Lots of the time, though, she'll sit and stare at me. It makes me kind of nervous. If only I knew! Is she getting friendly or ferocious? — V.P.

DEAR V.P.: Maybe neither. Your own veterinarian would be in the best position to determine if Love Pot's possibly pre-senile stare signifies a special mood, or perhaps, a lack of one. If her current behavior is actually related to senility, there may be a lot less behind that look than you think . . .

DEAR DR. MILLER: Do kittens and puppies ever have congenital cataracts? If they do, would the cataracts ever clear up without an operation? — Y.R.

DEAR Y.R.: Congenital cataracts are very rare in kittens but more common in puppies. Some of these are spontaneously reabsorbed within a few months. Visual acuity in these cases is variable, depending not only on the degree of cataract reabsorption, but on other possibly related factors affecting the eyes.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I was just given a very unusual parakeet. Her bill is broad and flat, kind of like a duck's bill. It doesn't curve down like any others I've seen. This guy who gave her to me tried to tell me her grandmother was a duck, but I know no ducks are that small. Besides, it's feet aren't webbed; they look like any other parakeet's. But her bill is very intriguing, and I wondered if it was some inherited quirk or whether she is some special breed. — G.L.N.

DEAR G.L.N.: Her heredity may have had a hand in her mouth problem. More likely, though, your budgie's beak is malformed as a result of mite damage at its base. Regardless of its cause, this broad bill is a severe handicap to the bird, since it seriously interferes with its eating a normal seedy diet. Your veterinarian should determine what, if anything, can be done to help the problem, though the beak could never be restored to normal. Diet modifications including whole grain bread, small amounts of hard boiled egg yolk or cottage cheese may be helpful, provided the bird can be taught to eat such foods.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When a dog gets a blue eye from the hepatitis virus, will he always be blind in that eye? Why would a doctor say not to use salve to help heal an eye like that? — D.R.

DEAR D.R.: The corneal opacity, or "blue eye," as related to hepatitis virus exposure will, in most cases, heal spontaneously. If complications occur, medication may of course be required. Some ophthalmic (eye) preparations may actually slow or prevent healing of the cloudy cornea. As with any other eye problem, medication should be used only under the doctor's instructions.

Bills, not ring, solve problem

On an emotional scale, my husband is somewhere to the right of Mt. Rushmore.

He speaks about six words a year (four of them to me), has a face that reveals nothing, and gave in to giddiness on only one occasion. (On the birth of our first child, he punched me in the arm and said, "There will be a little something extra in your paycheck this week.")

Just before Christmas I read an ad that was to solve my problem. It read, "Get him the ring that betrays his every emotion. Find out whether he is relaxed or under pressure, inhibited or aggressively passionate. The ring that lets a woman know where you're coming from."

On Christmas morning, he put the Mood ring on his finger. It turned black and has been in a holding pattern ever since.

"Why are you tense and inhibited?" I asked.

"What makes you think I am tense and inhibited?"

"Your ring is black. If it were yellow you would be unsettled; green, serene and calm; or violet blue, emotionally charged and vivacious."

"That is a lot of rubbish."

"It is not a lot of rubbish and just once before I pass over, I'd like to see you turn blue."

Every day since Christmas, the family and I have dedicated our lives to making that funky little ring turn color.

"Hey, dad," said our son, "here are your car keys. I just filled up the tank for you." (We looked at the ring. It remained black.)

"I've just been going through our tax deductions," I said, "And I think the government owes us $2,000." (Still black.)

Our daughter perched on the arm of his chair. "All my girl friends think you look like Robert Redford." (She grabbed his hand. The ring never changed.)

"This is my best shot," I told the kids as I zipped up my flowing caftan and spritzed myself with perfume. "Dear, I thought we'd spend a nice quiet evening at home . . ."

The ring turned yellow . . . then blue . . . then green . . . and finally WHITE!

"You don't have to get that choked up," I said. Then I noticed that he was reading a stack of Christmas bills.

"What does white mean, mom?"

"Get the respirator! Your father is going into ring failure!"

About Parkinson's disease

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you tell me something about Parkinson's disease? My mother, age 65, has been diagnosed as being in the early stages of this disease. She has a slight tremor in her leg and has gotten herself into a complete panic and depression over this. She is afraid to go out of the house alone and worries constantly that she'll become a burden for the family.

My mother has always been in excellent health and always look much younger than her years. Now suddenly she is assuming the role of a very old woman. Is it possible that this disease could become acute this quickly.

DEAR READER — Parkinson's disease is caused by abnormal functions with the brain. Remember the brain is a giant switchboard for all our functions, from thought to movement.

The changes in the brain commonly cause tremor, of either the hand or foot or even the head. The characteristic tremor is of the hand, with peculiar movement of the fingers known as "pill rolling." The muscles become rigid and involvement of some of these leads to the bent over posture that is so troublesome to some patients. The face may take on a mask-like expression become rigid and eye blinking disappears.

It is sometimes hard to diagnose, particularly when only one feature is noted, and it is true that the tremor can be in the leg. Tremors can be caused by many things other than Parkinson's disease, including so-called senile tremor that is not associated with any muscle rigidity or muscle weakness.

Parkinson's disease and its tremor is not caused by changes in the arteries to the brain with age. Rather most cases of Parkinson's disease have no identifiable cause or in other instances are caused by infectious diseases that occurred years earlier, or as a complication to the use of various drugs for medicinal purpoes.

Most cases are first evident between age 50 and 65 and the disease progresses slowly. A case where the patient becomes disabled within five years is considered unusual. Most require 10 to 20 years to become disabled after the onset of the disease is first noticed. So, I am very skeptical that your mother is suddenly old or that her disease itself has really incapacitated her this soon, assuming that the diagnosis is correct.

The treatment of Parkinson's disease is mostly symptomatic or supportive. The goal is to relieve muscle spasm and maintain mobility. Heat and massage help to relieve painful muscle spasms or cramps.

Some patients get dramatic relief from L-Dopa, but despite the popular reporting of its miracles, it is not indicated except in selected cases. In fact, it is dangerous in patients with heart disease, irregularities of the heart or any evidence of a disorder of circulation to the brain, as may be seen in a "little stroke."

Surgery is also helpful in some selected patients who do not respond well to medical management and are severely limited.

Putting all of this together, if your mother does have Parkinson's disease, remember that does not mean she will have any impairment of her mental abilities, and she should be able to function normally for a number of years. At that point if she needs it there are medicines that may be very useful for her.

Weatherproofing shoes made easy

By NORMAN H. STARK

Dry feet are essential for anyone who enjoys being outdoors. And it needn't be raining or snowing to get wet feet. Ask any hunter or golfer who walks through grass covered with dew in the early morning. Here's how to make a good dressing to waterproof boots and shoes.

Measure five tablespoons of neatsfoot oil into the top of a double boiler (you can get this in any boot, shoe or leather store). Now add one tablespoon of beef tallow (from a butcher shop) and one and one-half tablespoons of white mineral oil (from your druggist). Apply heat and stir until all ingredients are melted and mixed. Pour into metal, plastic or glass container. Apply to leather and rub thoroughly, especially over seams. I find that an old toothbrush is excellent for impregnating dressing between soles and uppers.

The cost for making your leather boot and shoe waterproofing formula is about six cents per ounce. To determine your savings, divide the cost of your store-bought brand by the number of ounces it contains. Then compare the per ounce cost — you'll be surprised at how much you can save for so little effort.

Note: Material costs are based on the prices at retail outlets of national drug, grocery and hardware chains. These costs will vary, depending on the geographic area. If you wish to make up a larger quantity — and save even more — buy your materials at a chemical supply company.

Like any product you make at home, you should store this one safely, label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions — and keep it out of reach of children.

East's trump is demoted

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The reverse of the trump promotion play may well be called the trump demotion play. The man perpetrating this crime against the defenders tries to get one of them to waste an apparently valueless low trump on an unnecessary ruff.

South wins the heart lead with his queen. The five wants to make one more trick. An overtrick means 30 points in rubber bridge; it may mean a top score in duplicate play.

At trick two South crosses to dummy's ace of diamonds, leads the ace of hearts, discards a low club and continues with the king of hearts.

East doesn't think his deuce of trumps is worth anything so he uses it to ruff that king. South overruffs, leads a trump, bumps the ace and king together and makes six for a top score.

Intelligence agencies

Spying around the world

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

While the United States wrestles with its conscience over the activities of the CIA and the FBI, most other nations accept the dirty business of spying as a matter of course.

An Associated Press survey of world spy activity shows that most nations have intelligence organizations, but few permit the public to know much about them.

The public investigations in the United States this past year — involving even presidents in the misuse of the CIA and the FBI for political purposes — have ranged farther than any comparable spy scandal in the rest of the world. They surpass even the 1954 "Lavon Affair," in which it was revealed that Israeli spies sabotaged British and American property in Egypt, or last year's West German scandal, in which that nation's intelligence service, limited like the CIA to activities abroad, was found to be gathering dossiers on domestic politicians.

The AP survey showed:

—There is almost no parliamentary oversight on spy activities in other countries. West Germany and Holland are exceptions. Most intelligence agencies answer only to the chief of state, or occasionally the defense minister.

Intelligence operations in Turkey, Greece, Denmark, France, and a few other nations have been criticized recently, but the criticism hasn't resulted in change. Usually it's ignored.

—Few spy organizations appear to spend as much as the United States does on the CIA and FBI. But whatever the budget, in most nations it is clouded and lost within the budgets of other agencies the intelligence community serves — defense, interior, state. The CIA's annual budget, estimated by some as high as $1 billion, is hidden in other budgets, including those for State and Defense. The FBI's $468.7 million budget this fiscal year is public record.

The spy agency has a thousand names. In Turkey, it's MIT. In Italy, SID. In Chile, DINA. In Denmark, MET. In Thailand, ISOC. In Brazil, SNI. In Venezuela, DIM.

In Britain, call on DI-5 or DI-6. In Israel, MOSSAD and AMAN. In Iran, SAVAK. In the Soviet Union, KGB.

In Great Britain, Defense Intelligence 5 (internal security) and Defense Intelligence 6 (external operations) are so secret they are neither established by statute nor recognized by the common law.

British publications are covered by the so-called defense notice or d-notice, under which they are asked not to publish certain security information, including anything about DI-5 and DI-6.

So when Newsweek magazine and other foreign publications reported this year that Maurice Oldfield, a 60-year-old bachelor and career intelligence officer, had been named Britain's top spy, the first notice the British public got of it was when British newspapers picked up the foreign report.

As director-general of DI-6 and general overseer of both intelligence departments, Oldfield reports directly to Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

The only other insight the British get into the activity of their spies is in the annual "supply estimate" which the government submits to Parliament. It simply lists the amount of money a given operation will require for the year. The treasury estimated 22 million pounds ($46.2 million) for security forces.

But Parliament knows that this is only part of the action. There is more spy money hidden in other appropriations, notably the defense budget.

The government rarely tells parliament anything about security matters. Inquisitive MPs are rebuffed.

Like Britain, most countries have separate intelligence agencies for internal security and espionage abroad, roughly corresponding to the American FBI and CIA.

China's foreign espionage comes under the international liaison department, which reports to the central committee of the Chinese Communist Party. The service is headed by Keng Paio, 66, former ambassador to Burma, Sweden and Pakistan. Most of the information gathering is done by journalists and diplomats stationed in other countries. One Chinese newsman has been expelled from India and Mauritius, and has served in Africa and the United Nations.

Inside China, intelligence activities come under the Ministry of Public Security, which refugees call the most feared organization in the nation. It is headed by Hua Kuo-feng, but little is known of him except that he was vice governor of Hunan Province and became vice chairman of the Hunan Revolutionary Committee during the cultural revolution.

Russians aren't told much about their KGB, Committee for State Security, which operates at home and abroad. Funding is secret. But the Soviet constitution specifically sets up this function of government in Article 14.

The KGB is headed by Yuri Andropov, a Politburo member. He keeps a low profile, and is the only figure known to be KGB who appears in public.

Allen Dulles, one-time head of the CIA once called Israel's secret services

Old soldiers having trouble in civilian life

CHEVY CHASE, Md. (AP) — After 17 years and two months in the Army, Maj. Jerry Brown, a highly-rated career officer, has been fired; forced at age 39 to enter a civilian job market shrunken by the recession.

A college graduate who served three tours in Vietnam, Brown believes that he and thousands of other Army officers are being forced to retire without pensions because the Pentagon wants to economize on retirement pay, now costing $5.4 billion annually.

Had Brown achieved 18 years of service, he would have qualified for a pension. But he was passed over twice for promotion and Army regulations required his dismissal.

"I am not really bitter about the situation," says Brown, "because that would only be self-defeating." Many others are.

Brown did receive $15,000 in taxable severance pay when he was mustered out last month, but he has two teenage daughters, a mortgaged house in this Washington suburb, and no job, so far.

Aside from officers forced out because they were not promoted, the armed forces also have released since 1971 more than 12,000 career officers no longer needed in the post Vietnam era. All left without pensions. By next summer, the figure will reach nearly 16,000, the Pentagon says.

The Pentagon acknowledges that it is under pressure to reduce the officer corps of a peacetime military. The same pressure existed after World War II and the Korean War.

While the thousands of former officers without pensions struggle to make a living, another former officer, living in Florida, supplements his $1,551 monthly Army pension with state unemployment benefits of $296 a month.

The former lieutenant colonel, who retired eight months ago after 29 years' service, uses the unemployment checks to help pay the maintenance costs for his $70,000 split-level home, with a swimming pool in the rear. He is 47 and he insisted on anonymity, in part out of fear that his acceptance of unemployment benefits — while legal in Florida — might prove embarrassing, or might damage future job opportunities.

Jerry Brown and his anonymous Florida counterpart represent extremes among 37,000 Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine officers who have left the service this year through retirement, denial of promotion or outright firings.

For the first time since World War II, the Army has been dropping regular officers, not just career reservists, including some West Point graduates.

By next June, the Defense Department expects to have 281,000 officers on active duty in a peacetime military force of 2.1 million. This compares with 419,000 officers in 1969, just before military manpower began to decline. The number of retired officers has risen from just over 690,000 in 1969 to 1.1 million last June. And many of those 1.1 million say they're bitter about what has happened to them.

An indication of the depth of that bitterness is court action by Jerry Brown and 500 other ex-officers who say the Army ignored federal laws governing the way promotion boards should be convened; boards that passed over the 500 for promotion. An estimated 2,300 former career men could be affected by cases pending before three different federal judges.

The court suits represent the first serious challenge to the military "up or out" promotion system, used since World War II.

The Army says it "regrets the loss of the officers, most of whom have fine records of military service." But in a time of retrenchment, an Army statement said, "it is necessary to retain on active duty only those officers who are best qualified ..."

Interviews with two dozen former officers of various services show wide variations in how they are faring.

Professor Stanley Hyman of Catholic University in Washington teaches a course accredited by three colleges designed to help career military men adapt to what is for many an alien civilian environment.

Over the last eight years, Hyman has taught 2,200 military people about to leave the service. He has sought to persuade them that the civilian community won't necessarily welcome them with open arms.

A former test pilot who retired in 1966 after 20 years in the Air Force, Hyman tells his students that many employers won't even consider applications from former military officers.

"If they think you were in the military," he says, "it is an automatic garbage can item."

"Civilians out there are convinced you are high-priced incompetent help," Hyman says in lectures at the Pentagon. "They are convinced that as career military officers you haven't worked in years, that you have just been sitting around passing papers back and forth."

Lou Kish, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, now a successful stockbroker in Clearwater, Fla., agrees there is an anti-military bias among businessmen, but says it is frequently justified.

"Military people become complacent once they get out," he says. He argues that with military retirement benefits tied to the cost of living, some ex-officers want little more than a safe nine-to-five desk job free from real competition. Often, he says, "The employer is getting a 40 to 45-year-old guy with no useful experience."

Says Bert DeMeter, Printer, 2619 Alvira St., L.A., "I have been suffering from an ulcer for many years and spent lots of money for treatments and all kinds of diets, but it keeps coming back. In 5 weeks under Dr. Wing, I felt like a new person. I did not lose any time from work. No more poached eggs and milk, and I can eat all my meals in restaurants. It is a blessing to order regular meals again. It has been over 6 years and I am still feeling fine."

Spying...

"among the world's best." They were set up before the Jewish state was born in 1948, and now law governs their operations. It wasn't until 1957 that the late Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion told Parliament of the existence of Shin Bet, the department of internal security.

But even before that Israeli agents had established a reputation for exploits like Hijacking Czech weapons bound for Syria and sinking the ship that carried them. Before the establishment of Israel, agents had duplicated the entire files of the British police force in Palestine.

After Israeli agents kidnaped Nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann in Argentina and brought him to trial in Israel, the government publicly outlined the secret services.

The Israeli spy services report to the Prime Minister and the Minister of Defense. The MOSSAD is responsible for intelligence and special operations abroad. AMAN is the department of military intelligence. Shin Bet is a domestic operation against subversion. The Police Special Branch reinforces Shin Bet with its powers to make arrests and searches.

The public knows that MOSSAD handles at least some antiterrorist activities, chiefly in Europe. But the name of the public servant who heads MOSSAD is unknown. He heads a secret committee which receives reports from all the services and reports in turn to parliamentary committees on foreign affairs and defense.

Spy funds are concealed in the defense budget.

There has never been a parliamentary investigation of the secret services, nor any public expose with the exception of the 1954 "Lavon Affair."

In that fiasco, Israeli agents sabotaged British and American property in Cairo to discredit the Egyptian government and persuade Britain to keep its forces in Egypt. Two agents were executed, six were jailed, and two committed suicide.

A subsequent inquiry concluded that the scheme had been hatched by Defense Minister Pinhas Lavon and his military intelligence chief without the knowledge of MOSSAD or the government.

The Egyptian intelligence operation, foreign and domestic, is provided for in the constitution, is responsible to the president and is funded by his office. The Director usually comes from the military or police ranks.

Currently, he is Kamal Hassan Ali, 48, a former major general in charge of armor. He could be replaced or kept on by a new president, and except for presidential investigations there is no system for review.

Under President Gamal Abdel Nasser, the secret service was active at home and abroad. Newspapers, now free to print material from that era (1956-1970), have attacked that former service for political killings.

Elsewhere in the Mideast, Syria has the reputation of being most concerned with intelligence gathering. The National Security Bureau, which shelters at least seven separate services, reports only to President Hafez Assad.

Nowhere in the Arab world are there legislative or parliamentary controls over intelligence services.

France maintains three intelligence organizations, all created by executive action without approval of the national assembly or senate.

In West Germany, the 1974 arrest of Guenter Guillaume, aide to Chancellor Willy Brandt, brought Brandt's resignation and exposed the security forces to intense public scrutiny. The German intelligence service, which like the CIA is limited to activities abroad, was found to be gathering dossiers on domestic politicians.

Dutch intelligence follows the world pattern of secrecy, even to its funding, but it is controlled by a permanent commission of parliament representing all the political parties with the exception of the Communists.

Some countries have only internal intelligence activities, but no foreign espionage, or very little. Malaysia is an example. So are Mexico, Poland, Belgium, Switzerland, Austria, and Norway, although all have effective internal security forces.

Best coiffured women named for 1975

When it comes to hair, 1975 was the year of the mane. Long, flowing styles in well-shaped layers are preferred by the majority cited among the year's Ten Best Coiffured Women.

Celebrities named to this year's best-coiffed list are: film actresses Julie Christie, Faye Dunaway, Brenda Vaccaro and Raquel Welch; television stars Valerie Harper and Mary Tyler Moore; figure skater Peggy Fleming; Metropolitan Opera diva Beverly Sills, and singers Olivia Newton-John and Connie Stevens.

Selected in the 19th annual voting by the Helene Curtis Guild of Professional Beauticians, these women are chosen for their well-coiffed heads and well-groomed appearance. While their hair lengths vary from lip to shoulder levels, all agree they need versatile looks to adapt to their career roles.

One of this year's winners, Sills, also received the Ten Best Coiffured Award in 1970 and 1971. As a three-time recipient, she is elevated to the "Heads of Fame" category and will no longer be eligible in future years.

Blessed with naturally curly hair, Sills wears it in a soft tousle of curls to show off the vibrant auburn shade. She finds the professionally - shaped short length can be easily dressed up or down — depending upon the occasion. When performing, she adds wigs or hairpieces to suit her look to the role she's singing.

Talented British actress Julie Christie prefers a longer, straighter look with bangs for easy conversion to various styles — which she chooses from "interesting illustrations in old books." For a curly change of pace, she sometimes has her hair wet set on permanent wave rods.

The once blonde Bonnie of "Bonnie and Clyde" fame, actress Faye Dunaway has gone back to her natural ash brown color, and let her natural waves grow to shoulder length. Now filming "The Voyage," she feels her hair gets over-worked in movie roles so likes to give it a complete rest when not acting. She accomplishes this with frequent cleansing, gentle massaging and natural drying.

Another fan of longer hair is screen and television actress Brenda Vaccaro, who wears a layered look that can be styled up, back or in a full effect to the shoulders. As her hair is baby fine, her hairdresser conditions it regularly and perms it for extra body.

A more controlled style with gentle waves is preferred by versatile performer Raquel Welch, seen on screen, television and now in night clubs. Her full-mane of chestnut brown hair is professionally highlighted with lighter tones to show off her striking facial features.

Because of her busy travel and entertainment schedule, Ms. Welch has her hair cut into versatile, layered lengths that offer four or five style variations. Her hair is wet set twice a week and touched up with hot rollers in between.

Another celebrity who requires a versatile cut is Emmy-winner Valerie Harper, TV's popular "Rhoda." She needs to wear a variety of styles for her weekly show, so her stylist recently changed her hair from a blunt-cut page-boy to a more feminine coif done in soft layers.

Since her naturally curly locks are professionally straightened, they are roller-set only once a week, then touched up with electric curlers when filming her TV show. At home, she styles her hair with a blow dryer.

Her good TV friend, Emmy-winner Mary Tyler Moore, also made a hair-do change this year and went to a shorter, semi-layered bob with "convertible" bangs — worn on or off the face.

Moore also relies on a good professional cut to achieve a full-bodied style on her fine, sun-streaked hair. To create various effects, her stylist uses the blow dryer, hot rollers and curling iron.

Favoring a natural style that's easy to manage is Peggy Fleming, Olympic gold-medal figure skater and star of TV specials. She gets her long, shoulder tresses salon-shaped every few months to create a style that she can handle herself at home in San Francisco or when traveling — using tips learned from her hairdresser. For skating performances, she usually adds a fall or hairpiece.

Pop songstress Olivia Newton-John, honored as Female Country Vocalist of the Year, also has a professionally-designed hairstyle she can manage herself, due to her frequent travel on concert tours. Her current coif is an easy-care, layered cut with bangs that can be flipped into soft curls with a curling iron or heated rollers. She explains, "I change my hairstyle regularly, but only if it suits me and is easy to handle."

Bubbly vocalist Connie Stevens opts for the layered, windblown effect, which she has professionally lightened by her stylist. Frequently seen in TV and night club performances, she likes the longer back lengths to give styling options. To control her curly tendencies, her hairdresser sets hair on rollers after it is partially dried.

Quilting

Quilted jackets, long-sleeved or capsleeved, provide up-to-the-minute styling with that Oriental look and can be worn over skirts, pants, sweaters and shirts for a variety of looks.

Rams too, too much for Cardinals

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Sunday, December 28, 1975

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Coach Chuck Knox, whose offense has been frequently criticized this year unveiled more new wrinkles Saturday than an old prune!

The Rams promptly proceeded to outflash the flashy St. Louis Cardinals and outscore the high-scoring Red Birds, 35-23. It was a crowd-pleasing mixture of high powered offense and the usual excellent Ram defense.

Everyone can now sit back and watch today's battle between Minnesota and Dallas (Channel 2, 10 a.m.). If the Vikings win, the Rams play at Minnesota next Sunday. If the Cowboys win, the Rams will be the home team next Sunday at 1 p.m.

Ron Jaworski and Lawrence McCuthceon spearheaded the Rams attack against the luckless Cardinals Saturday. Jack Youngblood and Fred Dryer led a charged up defense that forced the visitors into five costly turnovers.

Jaworski, the kid quarterback in only his second pro start, completed 12 of 23 passes for 203 yards including a 66-yard TD bomb to Harold Jackson his first pro touchdown pass. The Polish Rifle also carried six times for seven yards including a five-yard TD sprint.

McCutcheon, back in action after missing last week's game with Pittsburgh because of a muscle pull, set new personal, club and NFC playoff records.

The 6-1, 205-pounder carried the ball 37 times for 202 yards. The 202 yards is an NFC playoff mark broke a new record established by Franco Harris of Pittsburgh. Harris gained 153 yards as the Steelers defeated the Colts.

Keith Lincoln of San Diego holds the old American Football League record with 206 yards against Boston in 1963.

Youngblood intercepted a Jim Hart pass and ran it back 47 yards for a touchdown, his first ever on an interception. The 6-4, 240-pound defensive end also blocked a conversion attempt and sacked Hart once.

The Rams won the toss and Knox put Ron Jessie in to receive the kickoff. On the first offensive series, McCutcheon lined up at tailback, instead of fullback, in the power I.

There were some interesting plays too. McCutcheon gained 12 on a reverse. The 74,156 in attendance loved it. For the second week in a row, the fans were sky high . . . except for the 1,506 no shows.

Only Knox remained his usual phlegmatic self. The Rams coach had not showed any sign of excitement all year except after the Pittsburgh game.

"No matter how many new wrinkles you put in, it all depends on blocking and tackling," Knox said quietly. "That's what we did today. Again, it was a case of some reserve people filling in and doing an excellent job."

Rookie Doug France again filled in for Charlie Cowan (ankle sprain). McCutcheon, Cullen Brant and Rob Scribner went all the way at running back.

Rookie Dennis Harrah again played some tight end when the Rams used two tight ends.

Jaworski learned he was going to start just about two minutes before the game. "I think I proved I can do the job," he said. "Maybe people that didn't know much about me before know something about me now. The old adrenalin really started flowing."

Jaworski scored his touchdown for the first TD of the game to climax a 13-play, 79-yard drive that took the first 6:32 of play. Just 57 seconds later, Youngblood picked off Hart's swing pass intended for Jim Otis, and, with a key block by Dryer, bolted 47 yards for another.

On the very first play of the second quarter, Bill Simpson picked off a Hart pass intended for Mel Gray. Simpson raced 65 yards for a TD with his seventh interception of the year. Dempsey's kick made it 21-0.

The shell shocked Hart finally got his team untracked and drove the Cards 60 yards in eight plays with Otis going three yards for the score. But Youngblood blocked the conversion.

But the Rams came right back again. On the first play following the kickoff, Jaworski launched his "bomb" to Jackson and it was 28-6.

Jim Bakken finally booted a 29-yard field goal to make it 28-9 at the half.

The Rams held Otis, the NFC's leading rusher to just 38 yards on 12 carries. Terry Metcalf, a great offensive weapon, gained just 27 yards on eight rushes. But Metcalf led St. Louis receivers with 95 yards on six receptions. He also returned three kickoffs for 105 yards.

The only unhappy Rams appeared to be James Harris and Merlin Olson. Harris was a disconsolate figure on the sidelines.

Olson spent the afternoon evading, or trying to evade, the clutches of Conrad Dobler, the Cards' offensive guard. All Dobler did was grab and hold all day long.

"I've played against some great holders, but he's something else," said Olsen disgustedly. I talked to the officials and they didn't do anything. But somebody will get him someday."

Steelers survive turnovers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "We like to think our defense can win a game by itself," linebacker Andy Russell said after the Pittsburgh Steelers survived a rash of turnovers Saturday to beat the Baltimore Colts 28-10 in their National Football League American Conference playoff opener.

"I'm not taking anything away from our offense. They've carried us at times," added Russell, who ran 93 yards with a fumble recovery for an insurance touchdown in the final minutes. "But if our offense isn't functioning, like today, we do whatever we have to do."

The Steelers, who captured the AFC Central crown with a 12-2 record, played like anything but champions on offense for most of the game. Although they moved the ball consistently, powered by Franco Harris' 153 yards on 27 carries, they coughed up three fumbles, two by Harris, and Terry Bradshaw had a pair of passes intercepted.

Russell's touchdown and a pass interception by cornerback Mel Blount provided the spark in a 21-point second-half surge by the defending Super Bowl champions, who host the AFC championship here Jan. 4, facing the winner of Sunday's game between Cincinnati and Oakland.

"Pittsburgh's defense doesn't have seven guys in the Pro Bowl for nothing," said Marty Domres, the Colts' reserve quarterback, who called the signals most of the way after starter Bert Jones was hurt in the first period.

Neither was able to move the ball steadily and the Colts finished with just 154 total yards, bringing down the curtain on the biggest comeback story in pro football this season. Baltimore had risen from the ashes of a 2-12 season in 1974 to win the AFC East title this year with a 10-4 record and gain a playoff berth for the first time since 1971.

"I told my players we got beat by a better football team," Colts' Coach Ted Marchibroda said.

"I think we're the two best teams in football," insisted Baltimore running back Lydell Mitchell, whose 26 rushes netted just 63 yards, a 2.4-yard average per carry. "I felt if we won this game, we'd win the Super Bowl."

Capitalizing on those turnovers, the Colts held a 10-7 lead midway in the third quarter on a 21-yard field goal by Toni Linhart.

But one series later, Blount, the league's interception leader with 12 during the regular season, grabbed a Marty Domres pass and returned it 20 yards to the Baltimore seven-yard line.

On the next play, Rocky Bleier bolted up the middle for the touchdown that put Pittsburgh ahead to stay at 14-10.

Bert Jones, the Colts' starting quarterback who missed most of the first three quarters after injuring his passing arm in the opening minutes, returned in the fourth quarter to lead a fruitless last-ditch effort.

Bradshaw, who played the second half with an injured shin, ran two yards for a touchdown that gave the Steelers a 21-10 lead with six minutes left in the game. The score climaxed a 39-yard, seven-play drive following a Baltimore punt.

Baltimore got the ball back and Jones hit Glenn Doughty with a 58-yard pass-run play to spark a march that carried to the Pittsburgh three-yard line.

In the final seconds of the first half, Bradshaw scrambled 13 yards before he was knocked head over heels by Colts' linebacker Tom MacLeod. Bradshaw had to be carried to the locker room.

Cardinal game plan went out window

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We got behind in very rapid fashion," pointed out Coach Don Coryell of the St. Louis Cardinals, 35-23 losers to the Los Angeles Rams Saturday in the opening National Football Conference playoff game.

"Our game plan went out and we had to try to play catch-up ball," he added.

The Rams had grabbed a 14-0 lead in the first quarter and ran it to 21-0 just 14 seconds into the second.

"It's a tough situation to be in against a very fine defense. But we even thought we could win the game until that final Los Angeles touchdown.

"We put our defense in embarrassing positions," Coryell continued, "but I'm proud our people had the competiveness to battle back when we were behind."

St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart completed 22 of 41 throws for 291 yards, but had two of his passes intercepted and run back for touchdowns. Jack Youngblood carried one for 47 yards and Bill Simpson took another 65.

"Youngblood was blocked, but he probably was playing the coverage on the back of that side and he made a great effort on the play," Hart acknowledged. "I couldn't see Simpson. He was behind some people when Mel (Gray) got behind the linebacker and I threw it."

Still, Hart said, "If we could have scored on a couple of series later, we could have still pulled it out. We've been behind that far and pulled it out before this season."

Hart said he thought the Rams have "a good chance" to go all the way. "The defense is tough and it looked like they move the ball well."

Hart said he kept saying in the huddle, "We've got to score fast, we've got to score fast."

Fullback Jim Otis, held to 38 yards on 12 carries after leading the NFC in rushing during the regular season, said, "I don't care who you play—you start 14 points down and they can dictate your offense. When they know you're going to pass, those defensive linemen tee off on you. We would have run more than we would have passed today. I guarantee you, we'll be back again. We've got young people who are just peaking."

On the Youngblood interception, Otis said, "I saw the linebacker (Ken Geddes) take off right away. It was a swing pass. I might have cut my pattern too short. We didn't realize Youngblood would react so quickly. He's the best defensive end we've played against."

Terry Metcalf, who gained just 27 yards rushing and added 94 on pass receptions, told newsmen he had cramps in the second half, adding, "It's frustrating, very frustrating. We gave them 21 points."

Chino, Alta Loma advance to semifinal round

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Chino High rolled past its second-round opponent in the Cowboys' annual Christmas basketball tournament Saturday night, and coach Bob Elder says it's because his Cowboys are playing as a unit.

"I'm excited because we're really going," said Elder after watching his squad dump La Canada, 62-53.

"We think we have a pretty good club, and its mainly because we play as a team.

"We had a meeting to discuss individual charts, and the kids decided they didn't want to have individual charts," continued Elder. "The kids really think of themselves as a group."

Chino (3-5) will meet Mt. Carmel of San Diego in a semifinal game Monday at 8:30 p.m. "They're good," Elder said of the Sun Devils, who topped Santa Ana, 74-65, Saturday night, "but I think we'll do pretty well."

Alta Loma also advanced to the semifinals, and meet North of Riverside Monday at 7 p.m. The Braves beat Edgewood, 62-55, and North clobbered Escondido, 77-54.

Three San Antonio League teams vanished from the tournament by losing Saturday, but Ganesha and Upland survived and will meet in a consolation game Monday at 12:30 p.m. Ganesha eliminated Temple City, 54-42, and Upland did the same to Pomona, 50-41.

Claremont bowed out of the tourney with a 56-50 loss to Cerritos while Montclair went home after falling to University, 56-51. Cerritos and University will meet in the consolation bracket Monday at 2 p.m., Edgewood and Escondido will clash at 3:30 and Santa Ana will meet La Canada at 5.

Chino led just 28-26 at halftime, but the Cowboys stretched that two-point lead to eight points after the third quarter and to nine by the final buzzer.

Reserve forward Roger Hairston lead the Cowboys in the second half with 14 of his 16 points. Forward Jimmy Love tallied 17 for Chino, tying him with La Canada's Reed Hatch for game scoring honors. Love also pulled down 17 rebounds, seven more than anyone else in the game. The Cowboys outrebounded La Canada, 44-29.

Alta Loma had to come from behind to win its ninth game in ten starts. The Braves found themselves behind, 43-39, after three quarters, but center Rich Davis scored eight and guard Matt Roberts added six to pace a 23-point final period for the Braves, who held Edgewood to 12 during the fourth quarter.

Coach Jeff McCall got another balanced scoring effort from his Braves. Davis finished with 13 points, while Roberts, Anthony Vasquez and Jamie Eagle each scored 12.

North (8-1), the squad Alta Loma will meet Monday, established itself as the team to beat in the tourney with a 77-54 thrashing of a strong Escondido team. Guard James McCloud of North scored 30 points, giving him 63 in two tournament games. He tossed in 11 of those points in the second period, when North took the lead for good.

Santa Ana had four players in double figures, but they were no match for Mt. Carmel center Rod Dingler, who pumped in 30 points. Mt. Carmel, under John Marincovich, who coached Garey from 1966-68, will take a 6-4 record into its semifinal game with Chino Monday.

Ganesha guard George Terry scored 11 points in the fourth quarter to pace the Giants' consolation-bracket victory over Temple City. Terry scored more than the entire Temple City team in that period as Ganesha turned a four-point lead after three quarters into a 12-point final margin.

Terry finished with 22 points, guard Ken Dudley added 12 and forward James Verdon chipped in 10.

Forward Bob Coughran scored 11 points and center Dave Holgate contributed 10 to lead Upland past Pomona for the Highlanders' first win of the year against six losses.

Sills leads Poly past Biola, 87-67

By DOUG SPOON
PB Correspondent

LA MIRADA — Joe Sills and Paul Newton provided the spark for the Cal Poly offense and the defense played consistently as the Broncos downed Biola College, 87-67, here Saturday night.

Poly's record stands at 4-6 and the Broncos will now be off until Jan. 9, when they face Cal State Dominguez Hills at Compton Junior College The layoff will give Coach Don Hogan a chance to evaluate his team's progress as the Broncos prepare for the rugged CCAA season.

"We've got to generate enough consistency to play two good halves," said Hogan, who feels his players can improve over the long haul. "We've shown confidence, and in some ways that's positive, but in some ways it's a detriment.

"I think the guys take a lot of schools lightly, because we've established the fact that we can play," added Hogan.

That may have been the case for a short while in the first half, in which the Broncos saw a 31-19 lead dissipate quickly to 34-27 before Hogan called time out and ordered a four-corner offense for the next few minutes, a move which changed the tempo of the game and eventually gave Poly a 38-29 lead at halftime.

The Broncos dominated the second half behind the hot shooting of guard Sills (26 points to lead all scorers) and the consistent scoring and rebounding of Newton (15 points, 15 rebounds).

Forwards Rob Webb (25 points) and Jim Worthy (16) kept the Eagles in the game throughout the first half, but the Bronco defense shut them off well enough in the second half to preserve the victory.

"Our concept on defense is that as long as we score, it's going to be all right," noted Hogan.

That concept worked against the Eagles as the Broncos were able to score enough to make Biola chase them, at which time the defense did its job. Poly also enjoyed an edge in the rebound department, 45-35.

Hogan says that he has decided not to switch forward Jack Gamulin, who had eight points against the Eagles, to a guard position. The possibility of such a move was discussed after the team returned from its week-long road trip back east.

"Jack's got great range, but he lacks some of the tools of a guard," explained Hogan. "He's not a playmaking guard, and we've decided that we need one man making the decisions on offense. That's Sills."

Will home teams win today?

By Associated Press

Both home team favorites delivered Saturday as the Pittsburgh Steelers and Los Angeles Rams advanced to conference championship games with National Football League playoff victories.

That set Pittsburgh as the host for the Jan. 4 AFC title game against the winner of today's Oakland-Cincinnati game. Los Angeles will play the winner of the Minnesota-Dallas game for the NFC championship.

Now the other playoff favorites, the Minnesota Vikings and Oakland Raiders, two teams tired of their bridesmaid roles, set out on Sunday for another shot at the Super Bowl.

The Vikings, perennial powerhouse of the National Conference Central division but losers in the last two Super Bowls, host the wild card Dallas Cowboys in an NFC semifinal game.

Meanwhile, the Raiders, owners of pro football's most impressive won-lost record for the last decade but still without a championship trophy to show for it, go against wild card Cincinnati in an AFC semifinal.

Minnesota and Oakland both earned the home field advantage by winning their division races with two of the best won-lost records in the league.

The Vikings opened with 10 consecutive victories at the start of the season and finished at 12-2 for their seventh NFC Central title in eight years. They have played in three Super Bowls and haven't won the championship game yet.

The Raiders finished with an 11-3 log to nail down their fourth straight AFC West crown and eighth in the last nine years. Since 1963, Oakland has a record of 126-45-11—the best in pro football. But they've made it to the Super Bowl only once, washing out in the playoffs every other time.

Today's games will be nationally televised, with CBS showing the Dallas-Minnesota clash beginning at 10 a.m. PST and NBC beaming Cincinnati Oakland at 1 p.m.

Both games present intriguing matchups.

Dallas' offense, operated by quarterback Roger Staubach, scored 350 points, third most in the NFC. The Cowboys averaged 358.9 yards per game, the NFC's best over-all offense, using Staubach's passing and the running of Robert Newhouse and Preston Pearson, who rushed for more than 1,400 yards between them. They will be facing a Viking defense that permitted only 225.2 yards per game—best in the league.

Staubach finished second among NFC passers, and the man he trailed was Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton. Besides Tarkenton, the Vikings' offense is dominated by Chuck Foreman, who led the NFC in touchdowns with 22, and was the NFL pass catching leader with 73, the most ever by a running back. He also rushed for a Minnesota club record of 1,070 yards, second best in the NFC.

The Vikings were the NFC's highest scoring team with 377 points and on defense, Minnesota led the conference with 41 sacks and 28 interceptions.

Those impressive statistics explain why the Vikings rate as eight-point choices over the Cowboys.

The Oakland-Cincinnati game also has similiar statistical showdowns. The Bengals, who posted an 11-3 record, owns the AFC's best passing attack with explosive Ken Anderson, who threw for 3,169 yards and 21 touchdowns. But he must solve an Oakland defense that led the AFC with a yield of only 259.2 yards per game.

While Oakland's over-all defense was the best in the conference, the AFC's best pass defense belonged to Cincinnati and that will be a problem for Raider quarterback Ken Stabler.

The balanced Oakland attack finished third in over-all offensively and scored 48 touchdowns, 16 of them by veteran running back Pete Banaszak.

The Raiders rate as 5½-point favorites in that one.

The winners of Sunday's games advance to conference championship games Jan. 4. The Super Bowl is scheduled Jan. 18 at Miami.

Vikes run to finals

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Garey High over ran Costa Mesa Saturday night 81-68 as the Vikings upped their season record to 8-4 advancing to the finals of the Orange Tournament.

Garey will face the winner of the Orange-Marina contest Monday at 8:30. Either team will be a tough match for the Vikings.

The Vikings outscored Costa Mesa 8-0 at the beginning of the second quarter and raced on to a 39-28 half time advantage. The Viking's point margin could have been much larger but at times they played sporadically which resulted in turnovers AND wild shots at the hoop.

Garey controlled the boards and hit a majority of its outside shots despite many of them being the type that makes a coach an old man.

Costa Mesa hung in despite playing lazy defense. They were riddled down the middle of the court as Garey drove through the lane for several easy lay ups. Also the Mustangs' top offensive player, Stan Miller got in early foul trouble. He picked up three fouls in the first four minutes of the game.

Garey's rough karate type defense which is somewhat reminiscent of last season's NCCA Kentucky Wildcats rough and tumble ball. The Vikings usually pick up a lot of fouls but they pressure the other team into many errors.

Costa Mesa outside shooting was affected by the Viking defense and they turned the ball over numerous times with careless ball handling.

Garey in the second half hit 20 of 35 shots for a percentage of 57 and outrebounded the Mustangs by eight. Garey speeded up the action and began getting down the court quicker than Costa Mesa.

"No I wasn't pleased with our performance tonight even though we played well in spurts," said Coach Mike Wells. "We're still too radical a team though and we'll be a better team when we start to play all together as a team.

"We should of put Costa Mesa away sooner than we did, but we made too many mistakes and took several poor percentage shots."

Kent Jordan was the Vikings top scorer with 20 points as he took on the Costa Mesa defenders by himself at times and fired the ball through the hoop. He hit 40 percent of his long range jumpers. Center James Loftin followed Jordan with 17 points and Milton Banks and Stan Webster added 14 points.

Costa Mesa's top point man was guard Mark Oman with 19 and his backcourt partner Gary Spink added 18 points. Miller finished the night with 12 points and pulled down 11 rebounds.

Chaffey wins opener in Covina tourney

Chaffey High advanced to the second round of the Covia Christmas Tournament via a 78-60 victory over Northview Saturday.

In other prep action Walnut dropped a Nogales tourney contest to Wilson 65-53 and San Dimas was eliminated from the Schurr Tourney due to a 52-51 loss to Mark Keppel.

Randy Johnston growled loudest for Chaffey's Tigers, scoring 20 points, his tops for the year. Center Mark McQuaid was right behind with 18 points, foward John Mattke added 15 points and Scott Davis came off the bench for 11 points.

Northview's Pete Shpack, Bob Courter, and Ron Miller each scored 10 points in the losing effort.

After gaining a four point lead at the end of the first quarter, Chaffey pulled away in the second period to lead a 10, 38-28. The Tigers never looked back and wagged their tails to increase to eight at the end of three and finished on top by 18.

Phil Florez and Kyle Richards each tallied 16 points en route to leading Wilson over the visiting Mustangs.

Pete Beattie came off the bench to sink 11 points.

Mini-guard Kelly Bowlin led an attempted Mustang comeback, scoring eight of his game leading 20 points in the fourth quarter. Eric Spindler scored 13 and hauled down 16 rebounds. Center Hans Myer pitched in 11 points and nine rebounds, while Pat Flaherty collected 10 assists.

The Mustangs found themselves behind by eight at the outset of the initial quarter and, although staying close throughout the rest of the game, could not make up the difference.

"We're jinxed I guess" said a disappointed San Dimas coach Bob Baiz following his teams loss.

"They caught up with us in the third quarter". They, Mark KeppelHigh, did it mainly behind Gus Gomez, who scored eight of his 12 points in the decisive third.

Down by five, Gomez sank three quick buckets.

The winless Saints (0-7), led 27-22) at half and were outscored 14-8 in the fatal third stanza. The two teams fought to a stalemate in the final period.

Doug Nottingham, who contributed 13 points last night off bench, scored a game high 17 points in a substitute role. No other Saint reached double figures.

San Dimas will have a vacation to think things over before Hacienda league starts January 7.

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins' offensive line coach, Monte Clark, is the No. 1 choice to replace Dick Nolan as head coach of the San Francisco 49ers, The Miami Herald reported Saturday.

"We have one name on our list," said Lou Spadia, the president and general manager who announced Friday night that Nolan was fired. "If we can't get him we'll have to make up a new list."

Braves' publicist Mike Shaw said McAdoo met with General Manager Bob MacKinnon after he arrived at Memorial Auditorium.

"I don't know what was said," Shaw said in a telephone interview during the game.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Lemon, former Cleveland Indians' pitching star and former manager of the Kansas City Royals, was named pitching coach of the New York Yankees Saturday.

Lemon, 55, succeeds Whitey Ford who has been advised by doctors not to resume his duties because of a circulatory ailment.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina eliminated Brazil in 1976 South American Davis Cup competition Saturday as Elio Alvarez and Roberto Cano defeated Luiz Tavares and Carlos Kirkmayr 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

McKay team wins first pick in draft

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tampa Bay won the right Saturday to pick first in the National Football League draft of college players, and the new National Football League franchise was expected take for either Leroy Selmon or Chuck Muncie.

The Seattle Seahawks, the other NFL expansion team, will choose first in the veteran allocation draft.

The draft of college players will be Feb. 3-4 in New York, and the special expansion draft of NFL veterans will be Jan. 23-24 in New Orleans.

Two envelopes were tossed into a football helmet held by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who asked Hugh Culverhouse, owner of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, and Herman Sarkowski, managing partner of the Seahawks, to draw one each.

The ceremony took place at Three Rivers Stadium before the American Conference playoff game between the Baltimore Colts and the defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

Culverhouse said the decision on who would be picked would be left to Tampa Coach John McKay and personnel director Ron Wolf.

"Right now, I know they're very high on Leroy Selmon, and I know they're very high on Chuck Muncie, but it's really not definite yet who we'll pick," Culverhouse said.

Selmon is an All-American defensive lineman from Oklahoma and Muncie an All-American running back from California.

Both Culverhouse and Sarkowski said that either of the No. 1 picks, college or pro, would have been okay with them.

"Going into this we had the feeling we couldn't lose," Culverhouse said.

"We feel the quality of the player will be about the same with either first pick," Sarkowski said. "The only difference with the college draft is that you have complete control over who you select."

The veteran draft will give each team 39 players from current NFL rosters. No more than three players may be chosen from any existing team and each team can protect 30 players.

Both Tampa Bay and Seattle begin play in the NFL in 1976.

Seattle will get first pick in a special expansion draft of NFL veterans, which will be Friday, Jan. 23-24 in New Orleans. The college draft will be held Feb. 3-4 in New York.

Hugh Culverhouse, owner of Tampa Bay, gained the No. 1 pick by selecting out of a football helmet held by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle. The drawing was held before the American Football Conference playoff game between the Baltimore Colts and Pittsburgh Steelers.

Herman Sarkowski, managing partner of the Seattle Seahawks, selected the other envelope in the helmet, entitling his team to the first in the veteran alloction draft.

"We would have been quite pleased either way," said Culverhouse. "Going into this we had the feeling we couldn't lose."

Culverhouse said it was unlikely his team would trade it top pick. The decision on who to pick would be made by Tampa Coach John McKay and Ron Wolf, the club's personnel director who once was with the Oakland Raiders, the Culverhouse said.

"Right now, I know they're very high on Leroy Selmon, and I know they're very high on Chuck Muncie, but it's really not definite yet who we'll pick," Culverhouse said.

Selmon is an All American defensive lineman from Oklahoma and Muncie and All American running back from California.

Sarkowski also said he would have been equally pleased with either choice. "We feel the quality of the player will be about the same with either first pick," he said.

TOUCHDOWN COMING — Texas defensive end Tim Campbell blocks punt by Colorado's Stan Koleski in third quarter of Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl game at Houston Saturday. Campbell picked up ball and took it in for a touchdown in Texas' 38-21 victory.

Texas rallys for bowl win

HOUSTON (AP) — Ninthranked Texas made only one halftime change—attitude—before rallying with 24 third-quarter points to defeat 10th-ranked Colorado 38-21 in Saturday's 17th Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

"I thought we would be playing the second half for pride, but it turned out we were playing to win," said Texas Coach Darrell Royal. "I thought we could do some things in the second half, but I never thought we could reach the magnitude that we did."

What the Longhorns did was rally from a 21-7 halftime deficit with a Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl record of 24 points, aided by Colorado miscues.

"The mistakes were bad and the game just got away from us," Colorado Coach Bill Mallory said. "Texas forced some of those mistakes and this gave them good field position."

Colorado played near-flawless football through the first half with two touchdown passes by quarterback David Williams and a one-yard scoring plunge by Terry Kunz.

But the Buffaloes went to pieces in the second half when they lost possession twice inside their own 40 and another time on a blocked punt.

"You can't give a team like Texas good field position or play with mistakes," Mallory said. "They are just too good. You have to play the entire game like we did in the first half."

Texas linebacker Bill Hamilton recovered a fumble at Colorado's 34-yard line on the first play of the third quarter to set up Jimmy Walker's three-yard touchdown run seven plays later.

After being pushed back to their 25 on the next series, the Buffaloes tried to punt but Texas defensive end Tim Campbell blocked the kick, chased it into the end zone and recovered it for a touchdown.

That made it 21-19, with Colorado clinging to the lead. But Texas' gimpy-legged quarterback, Marty Akins, passed to fullback Earl Campbell for the two-point conversion and a 21-21 tie.

Raymond Clayborn recovered another Colorado fumble at the Buffs' 44-yard line. Six plays later, Russell Erxleben kicked a bowl-record 55-yard field goal to put the Longhorns ahead for good, 24-21.

Texas' Johnny Jones scored on a six-yard run with 3:15 left in the third quarter to complete the Longhorns' record outburst. Ivey Suber ran seven yards for a fourth-quarter insurance touchdown.

Earl Campbell, Texas' bruising fullback, finished as the game's leading rusher with 95 yards on 19 carries and was named the outstanding back. His younger brother Tim received the outstanding lineman award, marking the first time brothers had received the honors.

Akins, who was a close second to Earl Campbell in the voting, started the game despite a knee injury received against Texas Christian in November. Although slowed by the injury, Akins played all but the final minutes and, in the second quarter, hit Alfred Jackson for a 21-yard touchdown pass that cut Colorado's lead to 14-7.

Colorado, which ended its season with a 9-3 record, had taken a 14-0 lead on Kunz' one-yard dive and a four-yard touchdown pass from Williams to Dave Logan.

After Jackson's touchdown reception for Texas, Williams came back to hit tight end Don Hasselbeck for a 25-yard touchdown play to give Colorado its 21-7 halftime lead.

Texas, which finished the year 10-2, returned the opening kickoff 86 yards to the Colorado 14, but came away empty-handed when Erxleben missed a 25-yard field goal.

Gralyn Wyatt fielded the opening kickoff and ran 10 yards before handing off to Joe Bob Bizell. Bizell turned his back to the onrushing Buffaloes, faked to one runner and handed off to Clyborn who scooted to the Colorado 14 before being pulled down by Mike McCoy.

John Tranquada voted Sagehens' MVP gridder

Tranquada, a 1973 graduate of South Pasadena High School who is a three-year letterman on the Sagehen team and a physics major, was singled out by the players and coaches because of the consistent excellence with which he carried out his duties as either a center or linebacker.

He also won honorable mention as a lineman on both the All-Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) and the All-NAIA District 3 teams.

Scott Borg, a junior geology major from Watsonville, was named the outstanding lineman, and Levi Henry, a sophomore from Los Angeles, was the outstanding back. Borg recently was named to the conference and district defensive first team and Henry was named to the offensive second teams by both groups.

Gentlemen's clubs being wiped out by economy

LONDON (AP) — St. James's Club, the most elegant mansion in Piccadilly, famous for its vintage port and even more vintage members, has closed its doors forever.

Last month the Guards passed the silver salver for the last time in the pale blue dining room and merged with the Cavalry Club. The splendid Italianate palace that was the United Service Club now stands empty in Pall Mall. The United Hunts Club is in liquidation, and dukes and earls and masters of foxhounds must seek elsewhere for a stirrup cup called "hangman's blood," the house speciality.

Gone are the Beefsteak, the Portland, the Union and the Royal Aero. The Devonshire is up for sale. The Authors Club has sold all its paintings, books and furniture to meet its debts. The Carlton is faced with taking in members who do not belong to the Conservative Party, an even bigger survival decision than admitting the party leader, Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, who happened not to be a gentleman.

Before World War II some 120 clubs were sheltered in the gracious Georgian mansions around the Court of St. James, where a well-born chap could get away from worries, women and anything that even faintly smacked of business to a genteel atmosphere of good cigars, mulled claret and obsequious servants. Now less than 40 survive.

It's getting so a toff can hardly find an exclusive leather chair to doze in by the fire over his port after a hard day at the House of Lords. White's, older than the Bank of England, still hangs in there. So do Brooks's Pratt's, Buck's and the Reform, where Phineas Fogg set out from the smoking room to go around the world in 80 days. But none has a waiting list into the next decade, and talking business is pretty much the order of the day, no matter what the confounded rules say.

"Members are being taxed out of existence. They can't afford to belong anymore," lamented Richard Edmonds, secretary of Boodle's, London's second oldest club, founded in 1762. It stays solvent by allowing women to dine in the annex and encouraging members to use the paneled premises for private parties and functions in the quieter evening hours.

Financial woes accumulate. London's rising real estate costs are pushing members further into the suburbs, so most clubs are crowded at lunch and empty after dark. Clubs that used to invoke progressively stiff hourly fines for members tarrying over the card table after midnight now have special dinners to insure there is "life after six."

"Labor costs are the big club killer," said Tony O'Connor, secretary of the Cavalry club, noted for its cuisine and fine cellar. It used to have a staff of 120 and now gets by with 90. Gone are the retainers who washed the coins before change was given and ironed the newspapers in the smoking room lined with portraits of field marshals.

Legends living and dead have become part of the furniture at most clubs.

"Put two bottles of port on the bed table and call me day after tomorrow," the Earl of Guilford told a retainer at Brooks's. Lord Arlington once bet 3,000 pounds (6,000) on which raindrop would first reach the bottom of White's window.

The Travellers, for robust chaps who have ventured 500 miles in any direction from London, heard a priceless report on a member's visit to Niagara Falls: "Beastly place ... couldn't hear myself think."

The Eccentrics, drawing on Britain's largest manpower pool, have two clocks in the bar, one going counter clockwise for those who can't face the morning after. At the Oriental, founded for viceroys, governors of India and other civil servants on furlough from outposts of Empire, an old colonial type fell asleep every night over his cigar and port and had the club record for setting his chair afire 14 times in the same year.

"Take that member away. He's been dead for three days" is the order supposedly given to a waiter one day at The Athenaeum.

More than legend may be involved here. The scientist Michael Faraday died in his chair at the Athenaeum. And more recently a member was found dead beneath his newspaper at the Cavalry Club. Rumor to the contrary, it was not yesterday's paper.

But it was the Guardian, not the Times, which shows how the winds of change are howling through clubland.

Dramatic exterior displayed in home

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Dramatic living interest, both indoors and out, has been included in the design of this impressive split-level home. An ornamental iron fence, supported by stuccoed columns, support an extension of the rafters at the front of the home. Only part of these rafters are covered with roofing to form a more interesting exterior.

A front door opens from the roofed porch to a wide entry. The entry appears even larger due to its high ceiling. The entry, family room, bedrooms and garage are on the same level.

Doors open from the garage to the entry and rear hall.

The family room is completely separated from the remainder of the house. This is a wonderful location for informal family living. Sliding glass doors open from this huge room to a rear patio which will enlarge the entertaining and play space in this particular area.

The kitchen, dining and living room are on the second level of the house. Another patio - at the same level - is accessible from both the kitchen and living room - an ideal situation for outdoor entertaining. The U-shaped kitchen eliminates the traffic through that portion of the kitchen where the majority of the work is done. The kitchen has an abundance of storage. This includes a pantry and broom closet. An eating bar plus other cabinets separates the kitchen from the dining area. If preferred, a wall could be constructed to completely separate the two areas.

Stairs lead up to the third level of this home where a short hall serves all bedrooms and the family bath. The elegant master bedroom suite is completely separated from the other bedrooms as well as the remainder of the house. The dressing room features a generous amount of wardrobe space, a pullman lavatory plus a dressing table. Sliding doors open to a sun deck.

This same basic exterior is also available in a three bedroom plan, at a different price structure, and is illustrated in our book, Prize Homes. Complete working drawings for plan 41139 can be purchased for $13.73 for the first set and $8.48 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until March 30, 1976. Please allow at least three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is available for $1.06. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes - $1.59; Prize Homes - $1.59; Hallmark Homes - $1.59; Town & Country Homes $1.59; Homes by Hiawatha - $1.59; Ranch & Modern Homes - $2.39. All six books - a $10.34 value - for only $8.22. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20 cents per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404 - PO, Northridge Ca 91324.

Federal aid won't solve home problem

Federal support of the housing market will not guarantee the long-run health of the slowly recovering industry, reports John J. Balles, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

Speaking to members of the Morggage Bankers Association of Northern California, he said that federal support programs only tend to get the federal government more deeply enmeshed in the operations of the housing market.

He called this approach self-defeating because it offered shortrun solutions that in the long run only aggravate the industry's underlying problems.

"I would prefer to see a more direct attack on the basic cause of housing's woes — the prolonged inflation of the past decade which has pushed market interest rates to unprecedented highs. Housing is always the most sensitive sector in the economy to high interest."

Bales said the economic recovery is proceeding on schedule and will continue in 1976. He cited strengths in the consumer and inventory sectors and in residential construction.

But the banking official also warned that housing may not be as strong as it has been in earlier recovery periods.

Housing starts averaged 1.25 million units at an annual rate during the third quarter of 1975 and were even higher in early fall. This is a marked improvement over the one million unit rate experienced during the first half of the year.

Balles said his bank's economic forecast projects a one-third increase in the average level of starts next year — or close to 1.6 million units.

Nevertheless, housing has its trouble spots. The inventory of unsold and uncompleted units remains high. Despite the obvious improvement in home sales since last spring, the inventory of unsold single-family housing has declined only moderately to about 375,000 units. This represents an 8 ½-month supply at recent sales rates. Besides, analysts note that multiple-family housing starts are still only about one-third the level reached during the 1970-1973 boom, he said.

"A more important question concerns the cost and availability of credit — the lifeblood of housing. As you well know, money has been generally available this year, but at very high costs by historical standards," Balles said.

"With the last decade's increase in mortgage rates from roughly 5½ per cent to 9½ per cent, the monthly payment on a typical 30-year, $30,000 mortgage has jumped by half because of that factor alone."

He said the continuation of very high mortgage rates reflects the heavy competition for funds in long-term markets and the lender's demand for a substantial premium to offset the effects of inflation. In the future, the competition for funds could become even stiffer, with corporations, state and local governments, and above all the Federal Government, entering the market with very heavy borrowing demands.

"It's no accident that housing's problems, and the intensified federal efforts to support housing, have gone hand in hand with the intensified deficit spending of the past decade. The basic difficulty has been the failure of federal budget makers to find the funds to pay for the growing responsibilities

$20,000

More and more American families are moving up the income ladder, despite the recession. The Conference Board points out. The number of families earning $20,000 or more a year has risen from only 6 million in the mid-1960s to over 12 million today.

Real estate

No strike threats with these workers

The largest single work force in the nation is not bothered by withholding taxes, has no labor troubles and everyone is "boss."

It is the millions of after-hours and weekend do-it-yourselfers doing remodeling and maintenance work on their homes. For example, mentioning only a few of the major modernization jobs done by homeowners last year, 1.5 million remodeled their kitchen; the same number updated a bathroom; almost one third of a million added a new room to the exterior, and almost a million finished a room in the basement.

This group of amateur "professionals", last year, did $13 billion worth of home improvement which can be translated into the buying of a vast amount of materials, products and tools from the local building supply retailer.

Considering all home modernization throughout the country, done by the homeowner or professional, this year will close out with about $26.6 billion. An estimate for 1976 is $27.8 billion, continuing an ever-increasing trend from the $22.3 billion reported in 1973.

These figures are taken from studies conducted by the Bureau of Building Marketing Research (BBMR) an affiliate of Building Supply News, serving 90 per cent of the building material retailers in the country. Questionnaires were sent to 2,500 homeowners.

Answers from the 75 per cent who responded were projected according to national census data to arrive at the total figures reported.

Other major projects, done solely by the homeowner, included: an added garage, enclosing a porch or breezeway, expanding attic living area, adding a bathroom.

The study also reported on 31 categories of minor remodeling/maintenance jobs including such work as interior painting (over 10 million do-it-yourselfers); exterior painting (nearly 6 million); carpeting (over 2 million); wallpapering (4 million); wall paneling (over 2½ million); lighting fixtures (3.3 million); storm windows/doors (1.2 million); additional insulation (1.5 million).

The average remodeling expenditure last year, on a national basis, was $532. The largest average cost, on a regional basis, was $632 in New England while the lowest was $439 in the Mountain States.

Reviewing some of the major jobs, done solely by the homeowner, the average cost of adding a garage was $1,404; added exterior room, $2,424; remodeled kitchen, $752; updated bathroom, $345; room in basement, $715; enclosed porch/breezeway, $393. These costs do not include a labor estimate for the time spent by the do-it-yourselfer.

While all remodeling jobs done by the homeowner represented $13 billion, $13.6 of the grand national total was done by the professional or a combination of each. Nevertheless, D-I-Y activity is on the rise with 55 per cent of the jobs reported in 1974 and 68 per cent expected in the future.

Weekly Wall Street

A healthy holiday market

NEW YORK (AP) — Declining interest rates and hopes that a yearend rally was beginning on Wall Street combined to produce a healthy Christmas week advance in the stock market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 15.43 to 859.81, moving once again within hailing distance of its closing high for the year of 881.81, reached on July 15.

Big Board volume shrank to 54.23 million shares in the holiday-shortened week from 84.63 million in the five full sessions of the previous week.

Analysts described the economic news background as generally favorable. But they said the primary upward influence on stocks appeared to come from within the market itself.

Early in December, they noted, buyers had pulled back to let some of the predictable yearend tax selling run its course.

As the number of trading days left in the year dwindled down to a handful, those same investors then seemed to move in gradually, accumulating stocks on the theory that the temporary pressure of tax selling had pushed many issues down to bargain levels.

"It's a rally in anticipation of a rally," as one broker put it.

A growing factor in the market's length late this past week appeared to be hopes that interest rates might be headed down.

The principal source of that optimism came from the bond market, where prices continued a strong rally that has had the effect of driving down yields on interest-bearing investments which compete with stocks for investors' funds.

In addition, the Federal Reserve announced late Wednesday that it was making a slight reduction in the amount of reserves it requires member banks to keep against longer term time deposits.

It wasn't so much the amount of money pumped into the economy by that move that encouraged investors, analysts said, but rather the gesture itself.

Wall Streeters said the Fed seemed to be signaling that if it were leaning either way from its present credit policy, it was toward the more stimulative side.

Among other plus factors mentioned by analysts during the week were President Ford's signing of an energy bill and a measure to extend this year's tax cuts through the first half of 1976, and a court ruling in favor of a key part of the saveNew York City plan agreed on a few weeks ago.

The over-all count on the NYSE showed 1,263 gainers against 483 losers among the 2,044 issues traded. There were 49 new highs for the year and 36 new lows.

Airline stocks were a particular bright spot, with Pan American up ½ at 5½ at the top of the active list; Braniff ahead 1⅜ at 9¼, and Eastern ⅜ higher at 4¼, among others.

Brokers said investors seemed to be figuring that the new energy law would ease the pressure of rising fuel prices on the industry.

The bond market rally meanwhile boosted utility issues, which like bonds are usually bought for the income they yield. Consolidated Edison of New York rose ⅞ to 14¼; Virginia Electric & Power ⅛ to 13¾, and Southern Co. ⅛ to 14.

I-T-E Imperial jumped 4¾ to 18⅞. Gould Inc. sought to buy 2.5 million of the I-T-E shares it doesn't already own, offering $20 apiece for them.

MARKET UP — The stock market rose over the holiday-shortened week with the Dow Jones average closing at 859.81 Friday, up 15.43 from the week prior. The Associated Press average rose by 4.5 over the same period, to close at 268.9.

Business briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Atlantic Richfield Co. and Oil Shale Corp. have announced they are pulling out of a four-company oil shale project in Colorado.

The withdrawal left Shell Oil Co. and Ashland Oil Co. as the remaining partners in the project. Both said they would continue the venture but at reduced levels.

Atlantic Richfield and Oil Shale cited rising costs, unavailability of capital and lack of government support as the reasons behind their withdrawal from the project.

Shell said each partner in the venture had invested $15 million in the project so far.

U.S. composers to be featured

The Los Angeles Master Chorale and Sinfonia Orchestra, conducted by Roger Wagner, will present a program of music by American composers in the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 17.

A highlight of the event will be the appearance of Aaron Copland, one of the most famous figures in American music, who will conduct four of his own compositions with actor James Stewart as guest narrator.

The "Missa Carminum," a choral work by young composer Paul Chihara, which was commissioned by and is dedicated to Roger Wagner and the chorale, will be given its world premiere.

The 120-voice chorus will perform Lalo Schifrin's "Space Madrigals." Claudine Carlson, mezzo-soprano, will be guest soloist.

NOSTALGIA TIME — Lucy Wheeler of Covina and William King, history instructor at Mt. San Antonio College, look over some of the 40 panels of historical scenes that make up MSAC's Bicentennial exhibition, "Vintage Years." The display is on view through Jan. 5 at the Pomona Public Library, after which it will tour schools in the area.

MSAC exhibit now at library

"Vintage Years," an exhibition of scenes and people of the past in the Pomona and San Gabriel valleys, is on view through Jan. 5 at the Pomona Public Library.

This is the Bicentennial exhibition of Mt. San Antonio College. In mid-January it will move to Hollencrest School, West Covina; on Feb. 23 to Walnut High School; and on April 2 to the MSAC library.

The exhibit includes dozens of photographs, maps, sketches and other memorabilia of the area.

One of the college's major projects in celebration of the nation's 200th birthday, "Vintage Years" will appear in various libraries, schools, shopping centers, banks and business establishments throughout the year.

The exhibition shows the area the college now serves as it was from the late 1700s to World War II. Artifacts, photographs, area maps and writings depict a rich heritage and more gentle, less hectic times. "Vintage Years" stresses the roots which provide stability and the people and events that shaped the history of the valleys.

A 92-page catalog of the exhibition, compiled by MSAC history instructor William King, will be on sale in the Community Services Office and the SAC Book Rac. Copies are $2 each.

Solon to star in film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Julian Bond, a state legislator in Georgia, will play a black newspaperman in "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys," an NBC movie.

Arthur Hill will play Judge Horton, who presided over the trial of a group of blacks charged with rape in a controversial Depression-era incident. The film will be made in Georgia.

Perceptive

In 1886, Joseph Hobson Jagger won over two million francs at Monte Carlo in eight days of playing the roulette wheel. He came to be known as "The man who broke the bank at Monte Carolo." An expert on spindles, Jagger suspected one of the roulette wheels of a faulty spindle and watched it for over a week. Thereafter, he bet on the numbers turning up with more than just mathematical probability and won his fortune.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When I use eggs in anything I make, I never throw away the shells. I put them in a cup of water and let them soak for about 12 hours. I strain the water to remove the shells and use this water on my house plants. — LIZ.

DEAR POLLY — Water is becoming more expensive and in shorter supply, so we could all save by catching the water we run to get hot or cold water and then use it for watering plants and shrubs. Those who have lots of plants could even catch the rinse water from the washing machine and use that on the plants. — DOROTHEA.

DEAR POLLY — Before leaving on a vacation, prepare a complete meal, wrap carefully in foil and freeze. On returning it can soon be ready for the table, with no fuss and worry about what the family is going to eat. A pleasant surprise for all. — D.L.H.

DEAR POLLY — When freezing cooky dough, always mark on the package the temperature at which the cookies should be baked, and the length of time. This eliminates having to get out the recipe for this information when you are ready to bake. — ANN.

© 1975 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY — Tie empty thread spools onto ends of the strings of children's pull toys to make them easier to grasp and pull. — SUE.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — I have found wh... using a pizza mix dough, rolling it on a floured board with a rolling pin rather than spreading it on the pan with the fingers makes the dough thin and crisp. — DEANNA.

DEAR POLLY — I buy flat sheets and then use a curtain ring on each corner of a sheet to make it fitted. This way I rotate all my sheets from top to bottom and they last much longer. — MYR...LE.

DEAR POLLY — I have some expensive bone-colored dress shoes with leather toes and sides of webbing. While walking where the streets had just been tarred, I got a spot on a shoe. To cover this black spot, I rubbed a piece of chalk on it each time I wore the shoes. In a short time the spot disappeared completely. The chalk seemed to dissolve the tar. I also went over the webbing with the chalk and it cleaned that nicely, too. — DORA.

TV WEEK

Progress Bulletin

POMONA, CALIFORNIA

WEEK OF DECEMBER 28 - JANUARY 3

'PLANNING AHEAD PAYS OFF'

For 120 million North Americans — four million of them from Southern California — the annual Tournament of Roses is merely a pleasant two hour stint before the family television set, watching and enjoying the beauty and pageantry of one of the world's most spectacular extravaganzas.

But for those who make such a telecast possible it represents months of planning and preparation, sleepless nights and an invest- Pasadena claim the preparation of next year's event begins as soon ment of several hundreds of thousand dollars. The city fathers of Pasadena claim the preparation for next year's event begins as soon as the last floral decked float crosses the finish line; and the same is true for television executives and technicians who annually send out their electronic signals in living color.

As early as January 22nd, officials of KTLA — the first station to ever televize the Rose Parade — were critiquing their 1975 telecast and determining how they could make their 30th annual broadcast even better in 1976.

In 1974 KTLA had ended their coverage with the highest share of viewers in the market (Neilsen Overnight Ratings) and had gone on to win the first and only "Emmy" award ever given by the Los Angeles Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for a telecast of the parade. They determined that what had made their telecast so unique was the hosting job of Dick and Jeri Enberg. Enberg, the "voice" of the California Angels and Los Angeles Rams, is well known to Southland audiences for his thorough preparation and the accurate and articulate manner in which he describes what he sees. It was there and then that KTLA decided they wanted the Enberg's behind their microphones for the bicentennial edition of the Pasadena Rose Parade.

Throughout the Spring, Summer and Fall more meetings and thinking occurred. KTLA's camera locations could not be improved upon. Klaus Landsberg, the now legendary genius of television technique had selected and secured the most advantageous camera angles nearly three decades ago, much to the envy of every other station covering the parade.

But little things could be improved upon. The addition of a street level mini-camera for extreme close-ups and the improvement of curb side microphones to pick up the sounds of marching bands and the excitement of the crowd were a few of the innovations to be incorporated. Staying with the parade for the full two hours without breaking for commercial interruption was another. However, the thing that pleased them most was having the Enbergs back to anchor the whole thing. They knew that no one could compete with the Enbergs' reputation for doing their homework and their intelligent and enlightening commentary. As far back as early October the Enbergs began their preparation by researching and studying the history of the parade and by getting involved with the technical people to coordinate their ideas. A visit to a float builder gave them an opportunity to see several of this year's entries in the structural stage of development. Dick picked up tid-bits on the mechanics of float building and even drove one of the floats to get a better understanding of the driver's view point; while Jeri garnered information about the flower varieties used to cover the floats and how they are preserved and attached. Other visits and interviews with parade officials and participants have given them insights into the intricacies of the event which through their system of well organized notes and recall faculties will be shared with viewers on New Year's morning.

KTLA is even offering something special for those who may not be quite awake when the first marcher steps off at 8:30AM. The station will repeat the parade telecast in its entirety immediately following the parade at 10:30AM and again at 8PM. If you miss any of these 1976 broadcasts, stay tuned. On January 2nd the people at Channel 5 will begin planning to present an even better telecast for the 1977 edition of the Tournament of Roses.

KATE SMITH IS GRAND MARSHALL

Kate Smith, who has been described as the personification of America, will be Grand Marshal of the 87th Pasadena (Calif.) Tournament of Roses. The Rose Parade and the Rose Bowl football game will air on NBC New Year's Day.

In making the announcement, Tournament of Roses Presi-

Kate Smith, the popular singer who has entertained several generations of Americans and who has become symbolic of this country, will be the Grand Marshall of the 1976 Tournament of Roses. Joining Kate will be Rose Queen Anne Martin and her Royal Court, including (l-r) Carol Hennacy, Margaret Charvat, Lisa Pedersen, Edythe Roberts, Martha Caranahan and Caren Ashton.

dent Ralph S. Helpbringer said: "I understand that President Franklin Roosevelt said of Miss Smith, 'This is Kate Smith, this is America.' "

During her 44-year career, the popular singer has introduced more than 700 songs, including "God Bless America," with which she is closely identified. She is the recipient of more than 19 gold records, signifying sales of a million or more copies. Smith will be in the forefront of both the world-famous Rose Parade and the 62nd Rose Bowl football game New Year's Day, the beginning of America's Bicentennial year.

Helpbringer said: "In the Bicentennial year, I can think of no one more fitting, more universally loved and respected, than Kate Smith. She is a legend."

Smith will be the third female Grand Marshal in Tournament of Roses history. Mary Pickford was selected in 1933, and Shirley Temple, at age 10, served in 1939.

'BONNIE AND LEROY': HOPE IN POLITICS

Feel down-in-the-mouth about the state of the nation? Got the post-Watergate blues about politics? "Bonnie and Leroy" may make you feel better. Subtitled "An Alternative to Watergate," the 30-minute special airs Tuesday at 9PM on KCET, shows how a Sacramento couple is working quietly "within the system" to bring about change without compromising their ideals.

Bonnie and Leroy Chatfield are products of the turbulent protest years in the 1960s, working for eight years with the United Farm Workers Union. Then Leroy got involved in Gov. Brown's campaign for governor, and when Brown was elected Leroy was appointed to his staff. Bonnie, meanwhile, took a job as a researcher and speechwriter for Democratic legislators. At that point, filmmaker Ken Rosen of Profile Products set out to make the documentary—one in a series called Human Documents by Channel 28—about how this couple was continuing to work in politics despite all the post-Watergate cynicism. Then Leroy was appointed by Brown to the controversial Agricultural Labor Relations Board, adding to the story because his decisions on the board so far have not always been viewed with favor by his old allies with the United Farm Workers. As a board member, Leroy rules on heated disputes involving the law that guarantees farm workers the right to organize.

Rosen says the couple are part of a new "people's politics," characterized by persons "pragmatically involved in the problems of the 1970s." For their part, Bonnie and Leroy both acknowledge that public skepticism about politicians is not without a sound basis, but contend that the battle for cleaner politics is worth fighting. "I know some politicians whose only interest is getting reelected, and they will do whatever is most expedient," Bonnie says. "But I know some good politicians who really do have the interest of the people at heart."

EARL HOLLIMAN: HE WANTED TO ACT

From the time he was 6, Earl Holliman, who co-stars on NBC's Police Woman (Tuesdays, 9PM), knew he wanted to be an actor, and from the time he was 13, he has worked at it actively. First, he appeared on stage as a magician's child-assistant entertaining at Army camp shows; next as a 14-year-old hitch-hiker to Hollywood where he tried to break into films; then as a 15-year-old sailor in the U.S. Navy (his false birth certificate was discovered and his career at a Los Angeles radio school to which the Navy had sent him was cut short), and eventually as a 16-year-old high school actor with the lead in the school play.

Once Holliman attained the legal age, he rejoined the Navy and during duty at the Norfolk Naval Base, appeared in leads at shows given at the Base Theatre. Upon discharge, he returned to Hollywood where he studied drama at USC and at the Pasadena Playhouse. He also learned the ins and outs of meeting casting directors, landed a one-line role in a film called "Scared Stiff" and an extra role (one of 1500) in "The Girls of Pleasure Island."

Later, Holliman moved on to such films as "The Bridges at Toko-Ri," "Giant," "Gunfight at OK Corral," "Summer and Smoke," and "Don't Go Near the Water." On television, he appeared on Playhouse 90, in the acclaimed two-man drama, "The Sea Is Boiling Hot," with Sessue Hayakawa, and, in time, as the lead in two television series — Wide Country and Hotel de Paree.

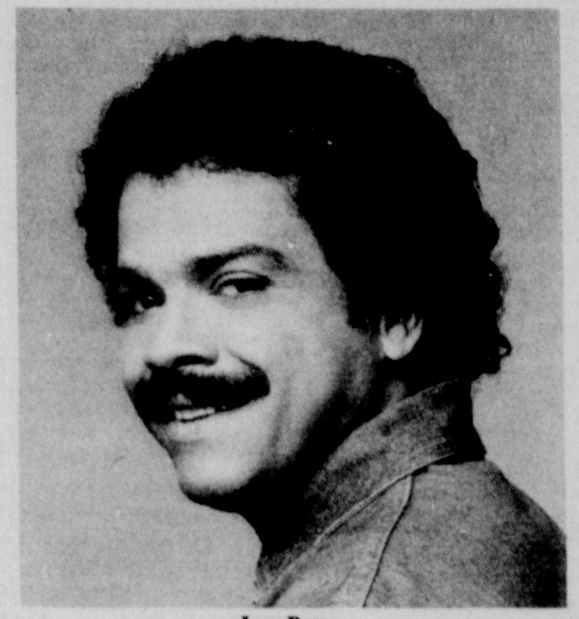
CLOSE-UP

THE 'IN' TENANTS



Jose Perez

Take four guys who unfortunately get snagged on the thorn while starting down life's primrose path and what do you have? One of the most unusual comedy series to hit the tube in many a season — the ABC half-hour comedy series, On the Rocks (Thursdays, 8:30-9:00PM.)

The scene is set in a surprising locale — Alamesa, a minimum security institution situated somewhere in the Southwest. The inhabitants of this jug are in a difficult situation and like everyone, need humor in order to survive. They are an unpredictable crew of men who are incarcerated for light crimes ranging from grand theft to property damage.

Although life is not always a bed of roses for the "in" tenants of Alamesa, the men try to make the best out of the circumstances. With their freedom curtailed, and lots of time on their hands, these temporary shut-ins find fun in winning little victories over the establishment and get hilariously involved in beating the system in amusing, unusual ways.

The leader of this convivial group is Hector Emilio Fuentes, played by Jose Perez. Puerto Rican born, Perez is best remembered for his brilliant performance on television as the attendent in Bruce Jay Friedman's "Steambath". Perez was also a regular in Calucci's Department.

Fuentes has come back to Alamesa for a return engagement with a set of reflexes designed to make life inside more tolerable. A generous soul, he is kind enough to pass on some of his acquired knowledge to his three roomates.

Hal Williams plays the role of De Mott, who did a stint with Fuentes before — the class of '68. De Mott enjoys reminiscing about the good ol' days with Fuentes. Williams has gone from one extreme to the other in his roles. Before appearing in On the Rocks, he played Smitty, the hip black policeman on Sanford and Son.

Cleaver, the eternal optimist, is portrayed by Rick Hurst. A cheery soul who always seems to know where the silver lining is, Cleaver makes the best of his situation, although at times he gives the impression of not being quite "with it."' Hurst has been seen in countless commercials. Although he may come across the television screen as a man with a lower than low IQ, he has his master's degree in fine arts.

Rounding out the closely-knit assemblage of low-risk inmates is young, vulnerable, first-timer Nicky Palik, portrayed by Bobby Sandler. Palik may seem wide-eyed and innocent, but he is aware of the happenings on the inside and tries to make the most of his new digs with the help of the leadership and guidance of the ever-inspirational Fuentes. Sandler, in addition to being an excellent actor, has been seen on many variety shows as a juggler.

As in all walks of life there are the adversaries. Within the confines of Alamesa, these are the guards. Mel Stewart is the hard-nosed, no-nonsense officer, Mr. Gibson. He believes in treating the "in" group equally — with utter contempt. Stewart, an accomplished actor, was seen as Lionel Jefferson's uncle in All in the Family.

On the other hand, there is Mr. Sullivan, who believes in giving the guys a break, although at times he may appear a little too soft — which he is. Tom Poston plays Sullivan and is probably best remembered as one of the regulars on the Steve Allen Show for which he received an Emmy Award.

Sounds zany? Yes, and typical of the day-to-day life of these frustrated men. The are wily, antic and resourceful, making the best of their incarceration.

"On the Rocks" was created and written by Dick Clement anl Ian La Frenais. John Rich, who produced and directed the first 85 episodes of All in the Family, is the producer and director. A John Rich Production, On the Rocks is taped before a studio audience in Hollywood.

Life in a minimum security prison hasn't got these fellows down. They are constantly dreaming up ways to beat the system. In front is Jose Perez who stars as Hector Fuentes, wiliest of the group. The others are (l. to r.): Rick Hurst as Cleaver; Hal Williams as De Mott, and Bobby Sandler as Palik.

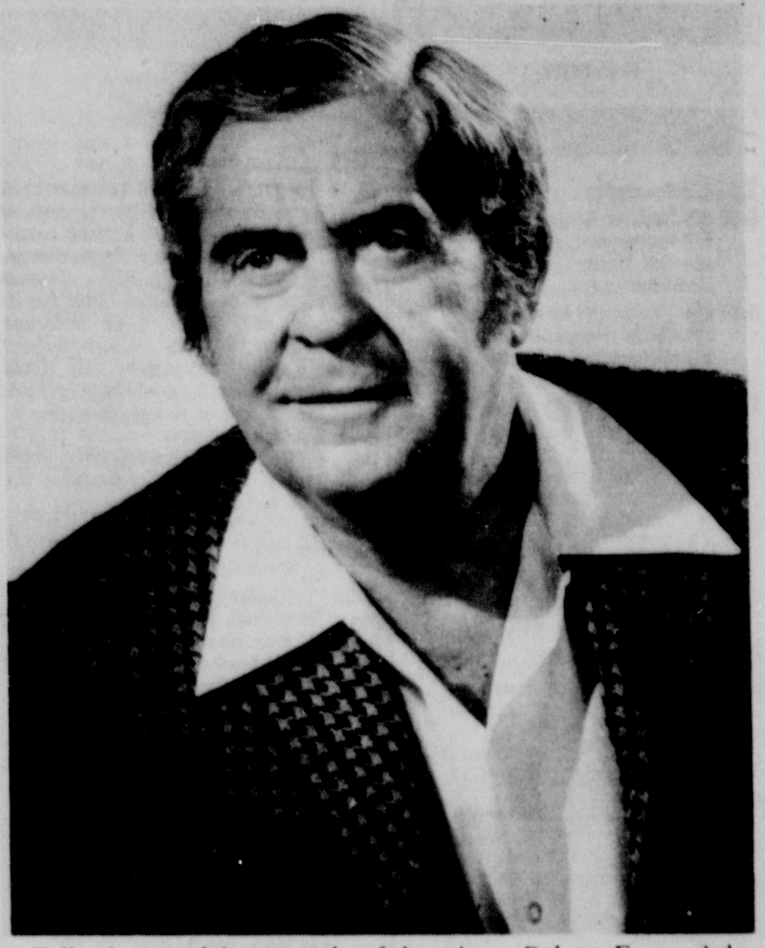
ROBERT FORWARD TURNED TO ACTING



Following a violent attack of boredom, Robert Forward has turned to acting — and acting he is. Forward has done guest appearances on Police Woman, Baretta, Six Million Dollar Man, Switch, and six Marcus Welby, M.D.'s. And he's done a feature film as well.

Bob was not down on his luck or scuffling for a job when boredom set in. On the contrary, he was sitting in his own communications consulting firm (and his clients were paying regularly) when the gloom rolled in. "I had spent nearly 30 years in the creative end of television, radio and films and I was getting farther and farther away from it," Forward recalled, lighting a cigarette in his compact Universal Studios dressing room. "I was bored with myself more than anything. I knew I could do a lot of things reasonably well, and I decided right then to get back into creating. I hadn't done any acting since my college days and I remembered enjoying it. So here I am." Forward has travelled one of the most diverse roads in the broadcasting business on his way to becoming an actor. He produced his first live television show on W6XAO, the Don Lee experimental TV station here in 1946. In 1949 at KTTV, Bob, with William Cameron Menzies as his consultant, developed the technique of using three hidden cameras to photograph live dramatic programs with full color, motion-picture type sets, which improved the black and white picture quality. At the same time, he initiated the first television newscast in the country to use film of local news stories, shot and broadcast the same day. At radio KMPC, he organized the use of mobile units and helicopters for 24-hour on-the-spot live news coverage. He also innovated the concept of the one-minute radio editorial, now widely used.

And so Bob has worked in virtually every facet of the business and that includes as a producer of filmed television. He produced NBC's The D.A. which he created, for Jack Webb's Mark VII company. It all came about when Forward was asked if he'd like to write a script for Adam 12. Three scripts later he was busily researching new story ideas for a series which he took to Webb. It was the raw foundation for The D.A. And so, after working in management, as a writer, a director, packager and producer, Robert Forward now is a working actor. Says Bob, "It is proving the most rewarding of all my 30 years in the business. I think I've finally found a home."

Canada will recognize America's 200th Birthday with a special seven-unit contingent in the 1976 Tournament of Roses Parade, airing on NBC New Year's Day. This marks the first time an entire parade segment has been devoted to a special theme in this way.

In addition to floats representing Calgary, Nova Scotia, the City of Montreal and the Province of Quebec, the Canadian contingent in the 1976 Tournament of Roses Parade will include a special appearance by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police's full Musical Ride, the All-Canada Pipers Band, and the Canadian Scarlet and Brass Band. The parade will air New Year's Day on NBC.

Eight organizations will be represented for the first time in the 1976 Tournament of Roses Parade, on NBC, New Year's Day. New groups to have floats include the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Barnum Festival, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the City of Holland, Mich., the city of Montreal, the state of Pennsylvania, the National Square Dance Convention, and United Airlines.

The Municipal Band of the City of Geneva, Switzerland, is one of 12 bands that will make their first appearances in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Parade, on NBC New Year's Day.

"The Search for Green Eyes," a poignant drama about a Vietnam veteran's search for the child he fathered during the war, will be presented this season as a two-hour motion picture on ABC. Paul Winfield, who won an Oscar nomination for his moving performance in the film, "Sounder," stars in the drama which is filming in Manila, The Philippines. Rita Tushingham, an English actress who won critical acclaim for her performances in such motion pictures as "A Taste of Honey," "The Knack" and "Dr. Zhivago," also stars. Set in 1972, "The Search for Green Eyes" traces the search by a young, black soldier for the Vietnamese wife and child he abandoned when he was shipped home. His quest forces him to face some of the frightening effects that war has on people — especially children.

"The Crime of the Century," two-hour film special for CBS based on the notorious Brink's robbery of January 17, 1950, and its ultimate solution by the FBI, is now shooting at The Burbank Studios. Cast starring 13 actors — all male with the exception of one femme — are Darren McGavin, Leslie Nielsen, Michael Gazzo, Art Metrano, Bert Remsen, Jerry Douglas, Philip Kenneally, John Perak, Steve Collins, Hank Brand, Lawrence Haddon and Jenny O'Hara.

John Hart replaces Tom Snyder as anchorman of NBC Sunday Night News beginning December 28. The change was made to lighten Snyder's busy work schedule, which presently spans six days a week. Snyder increased his responsibilities last August when he became newscaster for the Monday-through-Friday editions of NBC News Update.

Hart, a veteran of 18 years in journalism, became an NBC News correspondent last February. He is based in Washington, D.C., and covers politics primarily. Before joining NBC News, Hart had been with CBS News for 14 years and had been anchorman of the CBS Morning News in Washington and New York and CBS News special reports.

NBC Sunday Night News airs from 6:30-7PM.

"Now a sensible insurance plan that pays from the very first day of hospitalization!"

ROY ROGERS DALE EVANS

Roy + Dale

- Pays you, not the doctor or hospital, unless you tell us to.

FIRST DAY HOSPITAL PLAN

THE INSURANCE PLAN THAT PAYS UP TO

$1,200.00 A MONTH

from the very first hospital day and every day after for 24 months up to a maximum $28,800.00 for each covered hospital stay.

NATIONAL INDEPENDENCE INSURANCE COMPANY—EST. 1925

"Dear Folks,

We enjoy entertaining at hospitals . . . and we do a lot of it. But each time we do, we come away more grateful for our own good health.

One thing we've learned. Good health can never be guaranteed. And once it's gone, it takes time and money to get it back . . . sometimes a lot of money.

The cost of hospital-medical care has tripled in ten years. That's what our Department of Labor says. Who can afford costs that are going up like that? Not too many of us. Have your other insurance benefits increased like that? Has your salary? Not likely.

Think a moment. What if you were suddenly hospitalized? Or someone in your family? Would your group hospitalization pay all the bills? Would Medicare? The truth is that in many cases, they would not.

If you're like us, you want the best health care for your family . . . the best money can buy. But that sometimes takes a lot of money . . . extra money most of us don't have.

That's why we strongly recommend you look over the benefits you can get from First Day . . . available to all Californians who want that extra margin of supplemental health care protection for their family.

Good Health,

Roy + Dale

We're being paid for our endorsement of National Independence and the fine plans they offer. First Day is something we believe in."

Your First Day Hospital Policy pays up to $1,200.00 a month, ($40.00 a day). And . . .

- Pays from the very first day of any covered confinement.
- Pays regardless of any other coverage you have.
- Pays up to a maximum of $28,800.00 for each hospital stay.
- Pays direct to you, not the hospital or doctor, unless you tell us to.

Don't be caught short!

Many group insurance plans like the one you probably have at work do not pay all the bills.

And if you doubt it, ask anyone you know who's been in the hospital lately.

Many medical plans don't pay for a whole list of things. Outside specialists. Transfusions. Special nurses. Surgery. Medicines. Maternity. A private room. Taxi or ambulance to the hospital. And much more.

That's why you need this additional protection that pays you and your family cash benefits for every covered hospitalization.

During these days of tight money what could be more important!

(These pre-existing conditions are not covered until the policy has been in force for one year.)
- War or any act of war; any mental or functional nervous disorder, or the use of narcotics.

Optional Coverages–

$10.00 a day
$300.00 total cash benefits

- NO DEDUCTIBLES
- NO WAITING PERIODS
- YOU CANNOT BE TURNED DOWN
- THIS PLAN FOR PEOPLE UNDER 64. 65 AND OVER, SEE PAGE 5

Here's how First Day works for you:

IT PAYS • • •

- up to $1,200.00 a month ($40.00 a day)
- up to a maximum of $28,800.00 for each covered hospital stay
- from the very first day of any covered confinement
- regardless of any other coverage you have

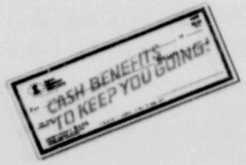
Why you need First Day.

The First Day Hospital Policy gives you benefits to help pay for the extras many other plans may not pay. And if you don't have the good fortune to belong to a group plan or Medicare—our plans can be even more of a godsend, because they provide sorely needed help in paying your medical bills while you are hospitalized.

How claims are paid.



Most claims are handled in a matter of days, and we make the check out to you, not to your doctor or to the hospital, unless you request otherwise. We pay this cash to you so that you may use it where you think it will do the most good.

You may decide to use it to help pay medical bills. Whatever you do is strictly up to you.

When you reach age 65

National Independence can pay you benefits even if you have Medicare or Medi-Cal. Last year, the average personal health care bill for people over 65 was above $1,000.00, nearly three times that for people 20 years younger. (Social Security Bulletin May 1974)

That's why folks 65 and over need this additional insurance protection in addition to your Medicare benefits when you reach age 65.

If you are now 65 or over, see the next page for an insurance plan designed especially for you.

You don't have to pay premiums after you've been hospitalized 8 weeks.

You will not have to pay the premiums that come due for you and all insured members of your family for as long as you, as policyowner, are confined to the hospital for a covered confinement beyond an initial eight-week period. This "waiver of premium" benefit continues for as long as benefits are payable.

Act now—"Later" may be too late! Mail the Enrollment Form today.

Time is precious. Get your Enrollment Form in the mail today. Remember, once you suffer an accident or illness, it's too late to get the coverage you need for that confinement.

4 Points to Remember

1. You have the right to examine this policy for 10 days. We will send your First Day hospital policy by mail so that you can examine it carefully. If you decide that you don't want to keep the policy, simply return it within 10 days of the date you receive it and we will promptly refund your money.

2. A renewable for life clause is in each of these plans. It guarantees that as long as you continue to pay your premiums, your protection under this policy cannot be cancelled for any reason whatsoever. But you can cancel at any time.

3. Your rate can only be increased if there is a general rate increase on every single policy of this class in the state of California. It cannot be increased individually because of how much or how many times you receive benefits from us—or because of advanced age. We will issue you only one policy of this class.

What's more, the regular monthly renewal premium shown (for age at time of enrollment) does not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to another.

4. We provide fast, courteous service when you submit a claim. At National Independence we care about keeping our policyowners happy.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR BARBRA STREISAND

Is it true that you are highly influenced by the men in your life?—A.S., San Mateo, Calif.

● No man can take over my life. I've had the same manager for 14 years, the same lawyer, the same press agents. I make my own decisions and they help me. But I resent all the implications that the man I've been going with, Jon Peters, is my Svengali. I think it's very sexist to suggest I am so weak-minded. And it's a drag to find the public actually believes my life is the same as my screen image. Every man in my life has to be a "Funny Girl" hero to the press. It's just not true!

FOR JIMMY BRESLIN, author

I understand you made a memorable statement about Governor Nelson Rockefeller's failure to go to Attica Prison during the riots. What was it?—John Rogers, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● I said that when Rockefeller was a kid, he went to the Museum of Modern Art with his governess. If he had gone to the movies like other kids, he would have known that during a riot the governor of the state always shows up at the prison.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

As Lucy, you're always in incredible situations. Does this ever happen to you in real life?—L.R., Fort Worth, Texas

● How's this one? Years ago I decided to give an old-fashioned Halloween costume party. I put an awful lot of planning and effort into it. Two hours after the guests should have arrived, it became horribly obvious that no one was going to show up. The next morning, I made some phone calls to find out what happened. I found out I'd forgotten to mail the invitations!

FOR OLIVIA NEWTON-JOHN

I'm nuts about you and wonder what you do in your spare time. I'm hoping our paths might cross—C.R., San Mateo, Calif.

● They might, if you like horseback riding. When I'm home (in Malibu) and not working, I ride whenever I have the time. It's my favorite sport, and my best way of relaxing. I'm also a dog lover, and it breaks my heart when I see strays. I wish I could work out a system so that people would go to pounds and become "foster owners."

FOR BILLY GRAHAM

Do you ever visit Richard Nixon and his family?—Dede Fuson, La Porte City, Iowa

● Yes. In August I had dinner with the former President and Mrs. Nixon. And before my October trip to the Orient I stopped for a brief but enjoyable visit.

FOR KATE SMITH

As a perpetual dieter, how do you avoid overeating at lunch?—B.C., Anniston, Ala.

● I make what I call my "London Smoke" concoction—a half-glass of homogenized milk mixed with a half-glass of diet cola. It's filling and delicious!

FOR BUD GRANT,
head coach of the Minnesota Vikings football team

I often wonder why pro quarterbacks hold the ball for field-goal kickers. They could be injured. Is this why your quarterback doesn't?—Ed Murphy, Teaneck, N.J.

● My main reason is this: When you decide to attempt a field goal, it means the quarterback has failed to take the team down the field. He's usually feeling negative at that point. Why should he be made to hold the ball when someone else can do the job?

FOR BING CROSBY

Which Christmas gift did you treasure most of all?—B.G., Canton, Ohio

● Every present is precious, especially when it comes from dear ones. But I'll never forget the time Dad came home with a new Edison phonograph (I was a lad then) and some records. It was the first time I'd heard such singers as Caruso. I was overwhelmed by the sound. Looking back, it seems that's when I must have decided I wanted to be a singer, too.

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist

What is the funniest thing you've ever said?—Barb Banski, Kenosha, Wis.

● When I turned to best-selling novelist Arthur Hailey ("Airport," "Wheels," etc.) and announced, "I have written everything you've ever read."

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

How long has Guy Lombardo been playing? It seems to me he's been around forever.—S.R., North Bergen, N.J.

● His New Year's Eve broadcast this week will be his 48th. When Lombardo gave his first, on radio in 1927, he felt sure it would also be his last! He's 78, and seems to be as active now as he was when he started out, playing for concerts, hotel and club dates and one-night stands. Unlike most musicians, Lombardo was raised in moderate luxury. His father, a tailor, told his seven children not to follow in his footsteps because "The last one to get paid is always the tailor." In the beginning, Lombardo recalls, he could not broadcast lyrics that had the word "hell" in them, due to the strict censoring rules. He and Lillebell have been married over 40 years. Incidentally, Lombardo's first book, "Auld Acquaintance," was recently published.

An Englishman Looks at Our Bicentennial:

Uncle Sam and "The Mother Country"– Through 200 Years of Thick and Thin

By Geoffrey Bocca

The New York cabbie said, "You sound like a Britisher." I confessed it. He went on, "You limeys are taking over everything here. A few years ago, if a guy didn't have an English secretary, he wasn't anything. Your brain-drain doctors have taken over our medicine. Now it's English au-pair girls, and real estate deals with the English. Now I'm driving one in my cab. How do you get away with it?"

"First of all," I said, "you have to lose a war," and I collapsed on the seat in delight at my own joke. It is not often a Briton gets the chance to use that hoariest of postwar clichés, for the simple reason that Britain almost never loses a war. Since World War II alone, Britain has won no fewer than three wars which other countries considered unwinnable, guerrilla wars–in Kenya, Malaya and Borneo. The American War of Independence has been England's only total defeat since the Norman Conquest of 1066. And even then (or so we Englishmen like to tell ourselves) it took men with British names to do it.

So Americans must understand that the British do not feel bad about that war. One cannot say a love-hate relationship exists between the two countries because there is so little hate on the British side. In 1972, during one of the many peaks of controversy over Vietnam, a Harris poll recorded that 49 percent of Americans supported Government policy, 43 percent opposed it and the rest were undecided. Some weeks later, a similar poll was conducted in Britain by Gallup. The result: 48 percent in favor, 44 percent opposed. Not identical, but almost. On almost every major issue, the thinking of most Americans and most Britons is the same.

One of the least noticed facts of life –as unnoticed as the comfort of an old slipper–is the pro-Americanism of the British, both officially and in the streets. Britain gives the U.S. no headaches–not in the U.N., not in NATO, not in foreign policy generally. Anti-American riots in Britain are always synthetic, the work of professional agitators, using what Peter Simple in the London Daily Telegraph calls "Rent-a-mob."

Not infrequently the British lean over to the extent that they defend America even while America is busy attacking herself. Much of the British press, including such influential columnists as Bernard Levin and Peregrine Worsthorne, were defending Richard Nixon long after he was abandoned by the U.S. press (their point of view: Why pick on Nixon when such tyrants as Brezhnev deserve so much more censure?).

There may be an exception, however: If a poll were to be taken today in Britain on the question, "What do you think of the American Bicentennial?" the answer might well be something like the following:

29% I think Americans are better at the decathlon.
21% I thought Buffalo Bill wiped out the bisons.
10% Is it like our Guy Fawkes Day?
8% How do you spell it?
32% Don't know.

The British attitude to United States history is not so much ambivalent as vague. My schoolboy memories are that the War of Independence was one of history's "Good Things." The unspoken inference was that a band of English country gentlemen, under that great English general, George Washington, gave a deserved thumping to one of England's more forgettable German kings. It was always stressed that Washington was a victorious officer of British troops against the French at Fort Pitt, and that at the beginning of the War of Independence, Continental officers continued to toast the King.

"Britain gives the U.S. no headaches—not in the U.N., not in NATO, not in foreign policy generally. Anti-American riots in Britain are always synthetic, the work of professional agitators, using what Peter Simple in the London Daily Telegraph calls 'Rent-a-mob.'"

"Occasionally, when I find myself in the U.S. in the summer, American friends ask how the British feel when America celebrates July Fourth. The only answer is, they don't feel anything at all."

Education about the War of 1812 was almost nonexistent because English schoolboys were busy fighting Napoleon. In 1812 both the British and the Americans presumed in advance that the depleted English forces in Canada would be no match for the Americans, but that the American fleet had little hope against the Royal Navy. In fact, the reverse happened. The British sacked Washington, and American ships proved superior to the sophisticated British fleet.

As things happened, 39 years later, the maritime shame actually deepened. In 1851, one of the carnival features of the Great London Exposition included a world yachting championship off the Isle of Wight, sponsored by the Royal Yacht Squadron. What was to become invincibly "America's Cup" was won by the American yacht, America, to the incredulous dismay of British sportsmen. A royal aide informed Queen Victoria of the result. "Really?" asked the Queen. "Who came in second?"

The American Civil War caused deep heart-searching in Britain. The upper classes could contemplate slavery with equanimity. Voiced by the thunder of The Times of London, they were pro-South. The working classes, who had real economic reason to be pro-South, weren't. Lancashire depended deeply on Southern cotton, and thousands were thrown out of work by the Federal blockade of Southern ports. But they were also revolted by slavery. The Irish emigration explosion caused by the potato famine of 1846 was two-directional. It hit Liverpool and Glasgow as hard as it hit New York and Boston. The social and political ferments were similar on both sides of the Atlantic, and produced parallel thinking.

But throughout the Civil War there was always the danger of a "flash fire" that would bring England into the war on the side of the South. Outright war nearly began in the fall of 1861, when a hotheaded naval officer created an incident which became notorious as the Trent affair. What happened was that two distinguished Southerners, James Mason of Virginia and John Slidell of Louisiana, had boarded the British mail steamer, Trent, to press Confederate interests in London and Paris. Captain Charles Wilkes of the U.S.S. San Jacinto got wind of the mission, boarded the Trent off Havana and took off the two diplomats.

The incident caused fury in England. An American observer in London wrote William Seward, the Secretary of State, "The people are frantic with rage, and were the country polled, I fear 999 men out of a thousand would declare for war." As the English press fumed, 11,000 British troops embarked for Canada to the strains of a volunteer band playing "Dixie."

Fortunately both sides were blessed with brilliant diplomats. The American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Charles Francis Adams, and the British Ambassador in Washington, Lord Lyons, soothed ruffled feathers. While feisty Yankees were just as keen to take on the British as vice versa, Abraham Lincoln preached "one war at a time." Seward backed down gracefully, released Mason and Slidell to pursue their missions in Europe, and even offered the British troopships landing facilities in Maine, an offer rejected with equal politeness. But it was what Wellington would have called a near-run thing.

A year later, pro-Southern feeling in high places was still strong in England. William Gladstone declared in the House of Commons: "The leaders of the South have made an Army; they are making, it appears, a Navy, and they have made what is more than either—they have made a nation." The speech created a sensation on two continents. It so happened, however, that Gladstone was Chancellor of the Exchequer (Treasury). The Foreign Secretary, Earl Russell suggested to Gladstone that he stick to counting his pounds, shillings and pence, and stay out of the foreign policy biz.

Had General Lee's 1863 offensive succeeded, it is probable that Britain and France would have recognized the Confederacy's independence; but Gettysburg settled that, and the war ended with Washington and London still on speaking terms.

Between the Civil War and World War I, Britain and the U.S. pretty much left each other alone. The American press enjoyed what was called "tweaking the lion's tail," rather the way India and the former Empire countries do today; but the British (provokingly, we hoped) never seemed to notice. Emigration enriched both countries. The U.S. acquired, to name just one, Andrew Carnegie. Culturally, Britain got Henry James (New York), T. S. Eliot (St. Louis), and Ezra Pound (Hailey, Idaho). Industrially, we acquired Sir Hiram Maxim (Sangerville, Me.), inventor of the machine gun. Sir Gordon Selfridge, builder of Selfridge's of Oxford Street, London, one of the world's biggest department stores, was born in Ripon, Wis. in 1858.

World traveler and novelist Geoffrey Bocca writes frequently for FAMILY WEEKLY about matters concerning his home country, England, and his adopted country, the United States. His most recent book is "Giselle" (Putnam, $8.95).

President Woodrow Wilson brought the U.S. into WWI in March 1917. At the end of that year, Field Marshal Earl Haig uttered his famous prayer, "God grant us victory, before the Americans arrive." To further that end, he left 750,000 British soldiers dead and wounded in the quagmire and on the wire of Passchendaele.

The period between the wars saw British tastes and attitudes consumed by Hollywood. Hollywood society was practically dominated by Britishers like Ronald Colman, Merle Oberon, Leslie Howard, Cary Grant, George Arliss, Herbert Marshall and Gladys Cooper. Mock Tudor villas, rustic country houses and magisterial castles blossomed in Beverly Hills. Aspiring actors often pretended to be British to get started. Robert Cummings was one. Some went even further, moved to Britain and became virtual Britons, like Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Tallulah Bank-

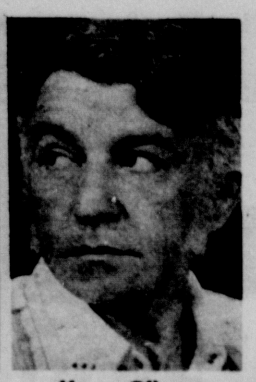
Nashville Stars on "Nashville":

Loretta Lynn

Ronee Blakley

Hank Snow



Henry Gibson

See any resemblance? Some people in Nashville are saying that the resemblances are too marked to be coincidental . . . that "Nashville" stars Blakley and Gibson were meant to portray singers Lynn and Snow.

Too Close for Comfort—Or Not Close Enough?

By Susan Toepfer

As most people know by now, most of the big film critics loved a movie called "Nashville." A lot of moviegoers did, too—and some didn't.

But what about the people on whose lives and livelihood the movie was based—the country singers who make the real Nashville their home?

What follows are some of the comments these stars made to FAMILY WEEKLY after seeing the movie.

In case you didn't see it, "Nashville" is director Robert Altman's self-proclaimed survey of American society. As 24 characters race frantically through the film, the dominant portrait is one of self-indulgence, confusion, hypocrisy, insensitivity, violence and greed. If the movie can be said to have a star, it is Ronee Blakley as "Barbara Jean," a pathetic, emotionally shattered country singer whose assassination brings the film to a violent conclusion. Another memorable character is Henry Gibson's temperamental, tyrannical "Haven Hamilton"—a country star with political ambitions.

LYNN ANDERSON

I was personally affronted by the music. They didn't make it clear that it was tongue-in-cheek. They didn't say it with a smile.

Parts of the movie were painfully true—realistic to the point of hurting people. Other parts were blatantly overdone. There are some performers who are egomaniacs and some performers who are pious to the point of being ridiculous. But you find that in any business.

The movie was filled with a lot of cheap shots. I think they tried to make a composite of several people, but there was a blatant characterization of Loretta Lynn, and Henry Gibson was obviously meant to look like Hank Snow. That blonde has been said to be anybody from me to Tammy Wynette to Connie Smith. I wouldn't be insulted if it was me because a performer is a performer and I do show my best side to an audience. But I hope I'm not that awful to people offstage!

The producer, writer and director obviously had a preconceived notion that Nashville and all it stood for was trash. They left a lot of hurt feelings because everybody opened doors for them, accepted them, helped them—and didn't expect a kick in the chops! Maybe now country music has taken such large steps there's some resentment going on. The movie may just show that Nashville has reached its stardom.

But it was really such a shallow story, so rambling and sensationalized with no purpose, no moral. To me, it was just an exploitation of the boom in interest in country music by someone who didn't understand what he was exploiting. And the part I hate most is that the uninitiated will think all of us must be bad or that all of us create that horrible music they had. I hope to God my music doesn't sound like that!

CARL SMITH

I thought it was great! Fabulous! I haven't enjoyed a movie like that in ages! I've been here 25 years and I've seen it all. Maybe it hit too close to some people. There's no doubt the major characters were Loretta Lynn and Hank Snow. The film is exaggerated a little in terms of what they would do, but the main characters are based on them. It's definitely about Nashville.

JEANNE PRUETT

I think it's a rip-off. It's the only shot some people will ever have at seeing Nashville, and all they're getting is a bunch of dressed-up, eccentric people parading around in a circus atmosphere. The film people deny that the movie is referring to real entertainers, but it is. Everybody knows Barbara Jean (the Ronee Blakley character) was Loretta Lynn. Loretta Lynn worked hard, long hours to get the stardom she's now accorded. It's not fair for her to be treated like that.

As for the music, those songs never would've made it out of Nashville. I'd be hard pressed to name the one I hated most. The whole movie was just a put-down.

MINNIE PEARL

I'm afraid a lot of people who love our music will be offended by this film. The music is terrible. I know they did a bad job with the Opry. There was a plastic look about the fans that turned me off. They took a group of regular Opry fans who were scared about bein' in a movie and they had them do the scene over and over. It showed on their faces.

Also, they left out the most important part of Nashville: the fellowship and love that exist between country singers and their fans.

Carl Smith

Jeanne Pruett

Webb Pierce

Minnie Pearl

Roy Clark

WEBB PIERCE

I think Altman just had a nightmare, and he filmed that instead of our town. I don't think he'll ever be able to come back here again—he'll get hanged!

Loretta Lynn and Hank Snow drop more at a poker game than a guy like Altman makes in a year. There are rotten people everywhere—and a lot of them down here—but it's about 25-percent better than in the rest of the country. If you're gonna pick on somebody, pick on somebody dead. They don't know nothin' about it.

ROY CLARK

There was some great acting, particularly by Henry Gibson, but I couldn't figure out what was happening until the end. I kept waiting for it to settle down to "boy meets girl." I liked the music, but I didn't think much of the lyrics. In fact, I sorta resented the songs. It was quite evident that they were written by non-country songwriters.

As for similarities to real country stars, the only one I was conscious of was the character Henry Gibson played. Before I saw the movie, I did a talk show with Henry and the physical resemblance between him and Hank Snow is remarkable. I asked him off-camera if he'd patterned the character after Hank, and he said he honestly didn't. So maybe it was just one of those strange coincidences.

People have said that Ronee Blakley was supposed to be Loretta Lynn. I've known Loretta 15 years. There's a physical resemblance, but nothing Ronee did in the film resembled her. The girl in "Nashville" was too aware of what was going on.

LORETTA LYNN

I haven't seen it, but people told me I coulda sued. They didn't mention my name, but the things that went on, they might just as well have.

I don't care if they have me kinda crazy, because I am. I don't care if they have me goin' in and out of hospitals, because I do. But when I hear they're cartin' my dead body off and havin' an unknown take my place—that I don't like!

HANK SNOW

I'm not a moviegoer. The last movie I saw was "Love Story." I have better things to do than to go see a movie where somebody's supposed to be playing me. I wouldn't even go out of my way to listen to the sound track.

No . . . unlike the guy in the movie, I don't think I have any political ambitions. But I do like to watch politicians. And I'm not pompous at all. I'm just a quiet, bashful country boy.

Virtually everyone prides himself on s sense of humor, whether he has one not.

A woman's preference for humor epends on how attractive she is.

Men and women tend to have differ- t ideas about what is funny.

You can tell a lot about a person's nse of humor by the way he votes.

An atmosphere of humor or verbal owning around is all right after hours, ut it detracts from efficiency in the fice.

ANSWERS

True. A Harvard University study hows that less than 2 percent of a epresentative sample rated themselves elow average when asked to judge eir own sense of humor. Most people ould rather confess to a streak of rceny than confess that humor just oesn't seem very funny to them.

True—according to psychological tudies conducted at the University of ondon, which yielded some interesting ndings. Subjects were 200 young dies, 18 to 29, who were asked to rate emselves on attractiveness using a ve-point scale. Each was then asked to dicate her preference for a series of 2 cartoons and jokes. Results: "Over- ll, the girls who rated themselves high in attractiveness tended to regard risqué jokes as less funny than those rating themselves low in attractiveness." It's suggested that the attractive girl gives a lower rating to risqué humor because she is tired of being regarded as a sex object.

3. True. Some psychologists report that men tend to favor hostile or sarcastic wit—humor that has an aggressive bite to it. Women, on the other hand, "tend to stress humor as a stratagem for pure fun and amusement." Women were found to prefer nonsense wit, outlandish mirth-for-its-own-sake type of humor, to a far greater extent than men did.

4. True. According to university studies, many jokes and humorous situations that tickle one voter's risibilities and cause him to "roll in the aisle" won't even rate a smile from a person of another political persuasion. It was found, for example, that this is particularly true of virtually all types and varieties of ribald humor. Ultra conservatives found this brand of humor the least funny, while citizens whose political preference inclined toward the liberal direction tended to rank such humor as highly diverting.

5. False. A psychological study has shown that "humor, by minimizing friction and lightening the atmosphere, makes an undeniable contribution to good relations among workers, and even between workers and management." And, as one sociologist observes, a touch of humor, even if it has no bearing on the work at hand, does much to relieve excess tension.

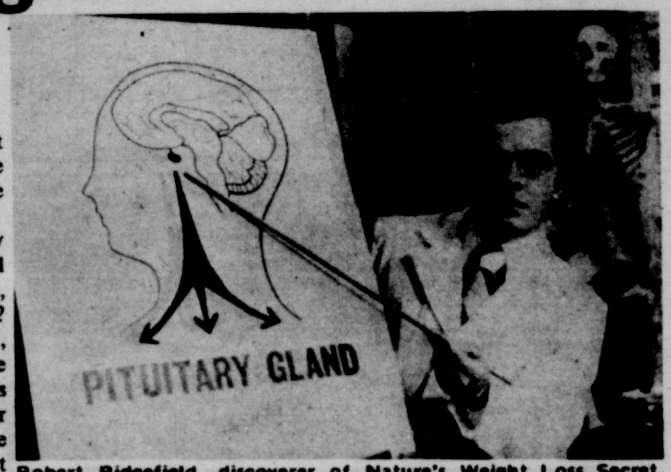
Learn Nature's Weight Loss Secret Of Glandular Control

How to Command your Pituitary Gland to order up to 756 times its own weight in fat to leave your body every single day

©1975 C.P.C.



Robert Ridgefield, discoverer of Nature's Weight Loss Secret, points to the gland that will make you thin. Your pituitary gland, weighing a mere 1/60th of an ounce, can command up to one pound of fat (756 x 1/60th of an ounce = one lb.) to leave your body every single day. Since all of us have a pituitary gland, everyone—5 lbs. or 105 lbs. overweight can learn nature's weight loss secret of glandular control. The article below will explain how you can reap the benefits of this amazing scientific breakthrough by losing as much as 14 lbs. in two weeks.

By Joan Woodward

Use your head! Millions of overweight Americans could have slimmed down a long time ago by doing just that. For years, people with weight problems have desperately searched for ways to shed pounds. Ironically, even as they frantically searched, they were carrying the perfect weight loss secret right in their own head – their Pituitary Gland.

Allow me to explain. By learning Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you can command your pituitary gland (nature's built-in fat evacuator) to order up to 1 pound of fat to leave your body every day. You'll continue to shed pounds until you reach your ideal weight – and then stay fat free forever. This weight loss secret works for everyone, whether 5 lbs. or 105 lbs. overweight.

But, best of all, you lose weight while eating the foods you love. In fact, you must eat to lose weight. That's the key to this weight loss secret.

As a reporter for the newsletter "Total Fitness Today", my job is to check out weight loss plans being developed across the country. Since I have a weight problem, I take a special interest in these assignments. When I heard about this revolutionary new weight loss secret, I decided to investigate.

I set up an appointment with Robert Ridgefield, the discoverer of Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control. I started with tough questions.

HOW DOES THE SECRET WORK?

Q. How does the secret work?

A. The secret works by making food your ally instead of your enemy. There are two types of food in everyone's daily diet – 'triggers' and 'blockers'. By eating 'trigger' foods, you trigger or turn on your Pituitary Gland (nature's built-in fat evacuator). Once triggered, your Pituitary Gland secretes a fat evacuating chemical fluid. This fluid is transported throughout your body and transforms your body from a fat producing machine to a fat evacuating system. Your Pituitary Gland will work safely and naturally to evacuate fat 24 hours a day – even while you sleep.

Q. If these 'trigger' foods are in everyone's diet, why isn't my Pituitary Gland evacuating fat?

A. Unfortunately, even if your diet consists of 95% 'trigger' foods, it only takes 5% 'blocker' foods to prevent your Pituitary Gland from evacuating fat.

Q. How can I trigger my Pituitary Gland?

A. Not by willpower, not by concentration, not with exercise, but by eating. Only by eating 'trigger' foods and avoiding 'blocker' foods can you trigger your Pituitary Gland to evacuate fat. Remember, the Weight Loss Secret is a nutrition plan, not a diet.

Q. What are these 'trigger' foods, and how much can I eat?

A. These 'trigger' foods are the every day foods you love: juicy sirloin steaks, hearty helpings of beef stroganoff, spicy ham, double cheeseburgers, meatloaf, barbecued chicken, omelets, vegetables; like broccoli smothered with hollandaise sauce, cantaloupes, fruit cocktails – even desserts like strawberries with whipped cream, pumpkin pie, chocolate pudding, ice cream, and your favorite wines, liquors–even beer! You need not drastically alter your eating habits to get rid of the 'blocker' foods, because they don't make up that big a part of your diet.

WHY DOES THE SECRET WORK?

Q. You've told me how it works, but all weight loss methods look good on paper – they just don't work in real life. Why is this one different?

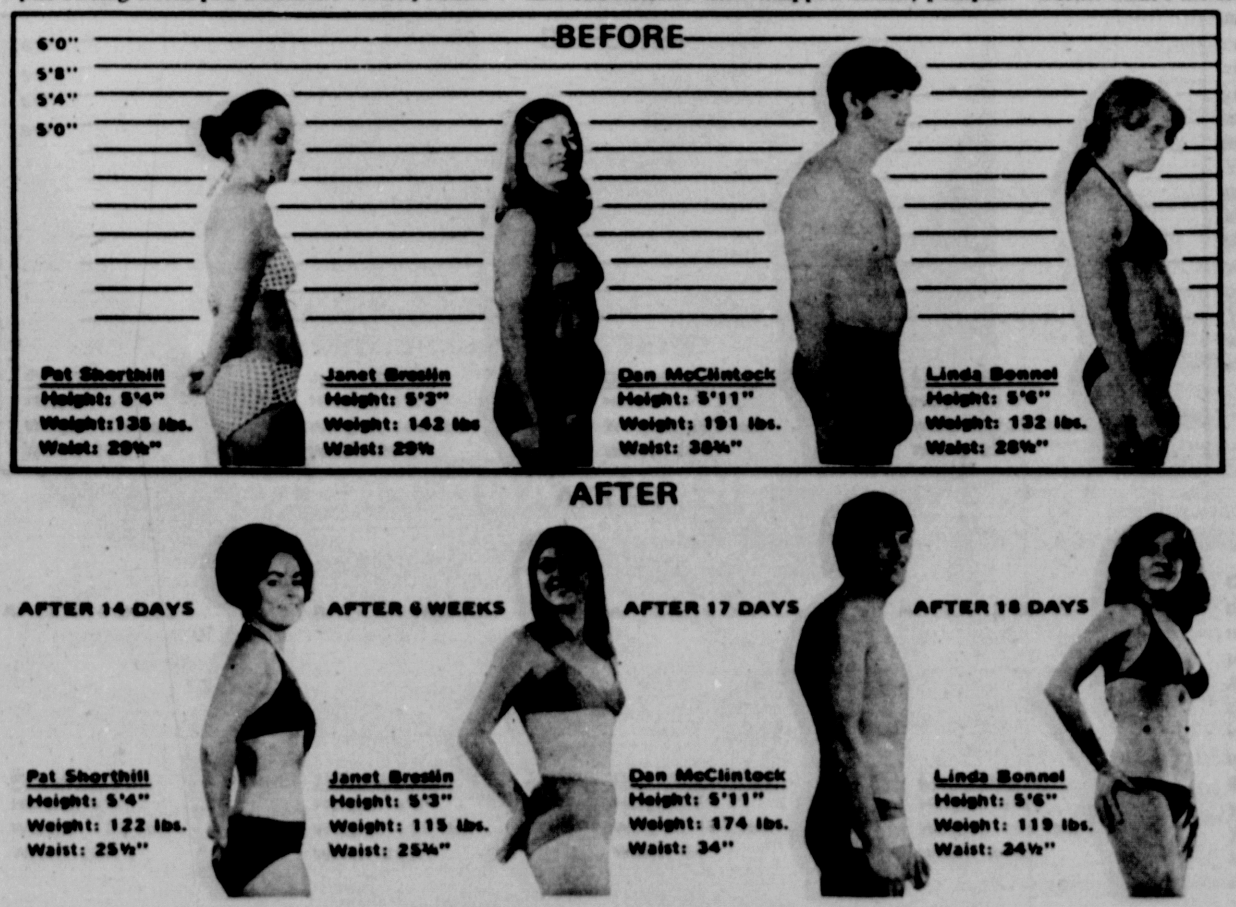
A. In order to understand why the secret works, you must first know why other methods fail. They fail for two reasons. First, other methods work against human nature, and therefore are doomed to failure from the start. People with weight problems obviously love to eat. Starvation is sheer torture. No one in their right mind is going to torture themselves for very long. Strenuous exercise is difficult, worklike, and boring. Diet pills leave you weak, nervous and prone to illness. Second, with most methods, the results, if any, come too slowly. So most people lose hope and quit.

Q. You're right about why they fail. I know, because I've tried them all, without success. But, why does glandular control work?

A. Again, two reasons. As I said, people are overweight because they love to eat. With Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you must eat to lose weight. Therefore, overweight people will use it. It's as simple as that. The Weight Loss Secret has none of the drawbacks of other methods. There's no starvation, no willpower, no boring exercises, no health ruining diet pills, no weird fad dieting. It doesn't leave you weak and nervous. In fact, it makes you feel healthier and more vibrant than before.

Q. You said there are two reasons why this secret works. What's the second reason?

A. Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control always succeeds because it gives fast, steady and permanent results. You start losing weight the first day. You can lose up to 14 lbs. in two weeks. With these kind of results, rather than losing hope and quitting, you will be encouraged to continue and lose even more. You will reach your ideal weight and be fat free forever.



WHAT WILL THE SECRET DO FOR YOU?

By learning Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you will:

- Lose all the weight you want, as much as a pound a day, while eating the food you love.
- Lose inches off your waist, hips, thighs, and banish ugly cellulite bumps.
- Never go hungry.
- Increase your energy and vitality.
- Look and feel younger.
- End your up–down roller coaster weight cycle by staying fat free forever.

After I lost my weight, my boss, Timothy Voros, the Chairman of the Board of Consumer Publishing, decided to try the secret. He lost 22 lbs. in 22 days. He was so impressed, he grabbed up the exclusive world wide rights to this revolutionary new weight loss secret. He then commissioned Mr. Ridgefield to author the text and ordered a small press run to be printed. This book is not available in any bookstore anywhere in the world. But, you can learn the secret right now by ordering the book direct by mail.

"You can lose all the weight you want, quickly, and keep it off permanently while eating the foods you love."

Q. One last question. You call the Pituitary Gland nature's built-in fat evacuator. Why is that?

A. The Pituitary Gland was evolved by nature as a survival mechanism to keep man slim and fit. Just as your heart pumps blood, your lungs breathe the air, your Pituitary Gland evacuates fat. Because it's natural, it's 100% safe.

At the end of our conversation, I asked Mr. Ridgefield if I could talk with people who had successfully used the secret. He did better. He introduced me to four people who were going to start the weight loss secret the following Monday, and asked me if I would like to join them.

I took a before picture of Pat, Janet, Dan and Linda. I then followed their progress every day and had an after picture taken. As you can see from the photos, their results were amazing. But, they weren't the only ones to achieve results.

I lost 4 inches off my waist, 3 inches off my thighs and 14 lbs. in 14 days. My whole life has changed. My clothes fit great. I look and feel younger. I've found new self-confidence. But best of all, my love life has improved. The Weight Loss Secret can do the same thing for you.

HOW CAN YOU LEARN THE SECRET?

If you wish to learn Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, simply do this: Write "Weight Loss Secret" and your name and address on a piece of paper and send it along with $6.95 in cash, check or money order. (Make checks payable to Consumer Publishing.) If you have Master Charge, BankAmericard, or American Express, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. name of card B. credit card number C. card expiration date.

Mail your order to: CONSUMER PUBLISHING, 401 Market Ave., N., Dept. C–50, Canton, Ohio 44702.

Mr. Voros is personally backing this book with a 100% no risk guarantee. After following the weight loss secret, you must lose all the weight you want, while eating the foods you love. You must feel healthier, happier and look 10 years younger. If this does not happen, or if you are dissatisfied in any way, just send your book back. You'll receive every penny of your money back – no questions asked.

Remember, only a small press run of Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control has been printed. To make sure that you get your copy, why not order right now, while you're thinking about it. If you have any questions, feel free to call me, Joan Woodward, at (216) 455–1474.

People and You

ow to Turn Stress Around— nd Make It Work for You

nless you become a hermit, hances are you'll never totally scape stress. Psychologists Patricia lacDonald and William Johnson of Vhitworth College in Spokane have iscovered ways to help you cope. hey suggest you: 1) Realize that nany people create stress for hemselves by being unrealistic bout the time, strength and ability hey have. For example, the idea of aving all 28 members of your mmediate family in for a holiday inner may be appealing, but ealistically are you and your spouse ble to cope with such a situation?

2) Don't feel guilty when you allow for your emotional and physical needs. Say the experts, if you sacrifice the extra sleep, solitude, exercise or artistic expression you crave, you eventually make it easier for tension and anxiety to affect you. 3) Think through your attitude toward change. Does change automatically cause you to feel tense because you assume change means trouble? Adjusting to a new job, to a new neighborhood, to children leaving home for kindergarten or college can be either a problem or an interesting new experience depending on how you look at it. Even if you can't conquer this habit, just realizing that change makes you anxious can be useful. Another Whitworth College psychologist, David Erb, believes stress shouldn't be eliminated. When you're under stress, he says, your senses and mind are geared for action. The trick is to keep your stress at the most productive level and to pace yourself. Just as your body needs rest when doing physical work, your mind and emotions also require rest from pressure in order to achieve. —By Shirley Sloan Fader

head and Ben Lyon.

How Goldwyn, Mayer, Zanuck, Selznick and the rest fell for this unconscious con job can only be explained by a massive social inferiority complex. Hollywood, in the thirties, kissed the feet of the British Empire, with "Gunga Din," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "The Charge of the Light Brigade," "Northwest Mounted Police," "King of the Khyber Rifles." As for a movie called "The Sun Never Sets," it was so imperial-jingoistic, even the British felt nauseated.

When the war began in September 1939, the Empire's most influential colony, Hollywood, went to war, too. It produced streams of movies that were pro-British, pro-war and anti-German: "The White Cliffs," "Mrs. Miniver," "Nurse Edith Cavell," "That Hamilton Woman," "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," "Beau Geste" and "Eagle Squadron." In the period between September 1939 and the U.S. entry into the war in December 1941, I cannot think of a single isolationist or pacifist movie out of Hollywood, and only one very covertly anti-British film, "Drums Along the Mohawk." Even when War of Independence themes were touched on, the British were usually called "Hessians," referring to the German mercenaries the British used in the war.

The U.S. was the British Empire's first important lost colony. Not another was lost for a century and a half, when Ireland finally flew the coop. (In the interim, the Empire had increased to include most of Africa and much of Asia.) Today, Britain has lost the whole bunch and couldn't care less. A century ago, at the height of Britain's glory, a young man labored seven days a week in the mines, a girl seven days a week at the spinning jenny, and they lived on gin. Today the young coal miner and his Lancashire wife leave their color TV sets only when they climb into the car, ferry over to the Continent and drive to Spain for a vacation.

Occasionally, when I find myself in the U.S. in the summer, American friends ask how the British feel when America celebrates July Fourth. The only answer is, they don't feel anything at all. As for Thanksgiving, I doubt if 15 percent of the British people, if polled, would know what the pollster was talking about. In other words, the confident prediction of this writer is that, on the other side of the Atlantic, America's 200th birthday will be almost as much a non-event as, say, the Rose Bowl. British newspapers will be filled with news of the cricket matches against West India. The Queen will send a telegram of congratulations to President Ford, and in both countries, for different reasons, a good time will be had by all, providing the weather holds.

IT'S ONLY AN ANIMAL

Dying in a steel-jaw, leghold trap. An animal that feels pain much like we do. Imagine having your fingers crushed in a car door. Nobody opens the door for 24 hours. That's what happens in a steel-jaw trap. Less than half the states have laws requiring trappers to even check traps every 24 hours. No one has cared much. It's only an animal.

Every winter millions of fox, lynx, raccoons, minks, otters, muskrats, beavers, badgers, bobcats, skunks, and other animals suffer in these primitive traps. Why? Because humans think fur coats are "glamorous and chic." There is nothing glamorous about being clamped in a trap for hours or even days, exposed to the weather, without food or water, in pain and fear, waiting for the trapper and death. Some even chew or wring off their toes or paws to escape. But then, they're only animals.

This trap hasn't changed much since the days early fur traders and mountain men used it to nearly wipe out the beaver in this country. That was well over 100 years ago. Today trapping is a sport... .a hobby. . .a recreation. Few people trap for survival. The reasons have changed but the trap has not. The pain and suffering it has inflicted on wild animals over the years is impossible to comprehend. Still, little has been done about more humane traps. Again, the victims are only animals.

It is time to change, time to stop making excuses for this needless suffering. It is time to outlaw the steel-jaw trap.

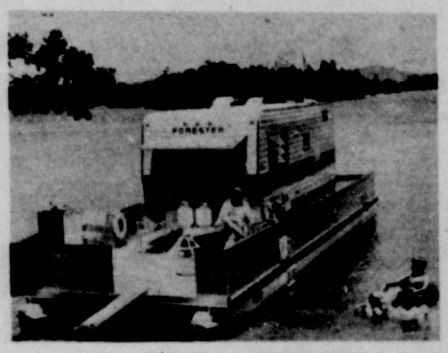
SHIRLEY BASSEY
"The Swiss are sensible"

What's it like being typed the "new Judy Garland?" "Of course I'm flattered by the comparison," Welsh singer Shirley Bassey told FAMILY WEEKLY. "Every female singer dreams of mesmerizing an audience the way Judy Garland did. Most singers want to be great actresses as well. I gave up films some years ago—I was either too light or too dark-skinned for most roles. I'm not sure I'm as much of a show-biz personality as Judy was. I love performing and 'communicating' with an audience, but I live in Switzerland —not only to escape the enormous taxes in England but also to get away from adulating fans and the clannish set of stars who live in England. Switzerland is not only a beautiful country but a sensible one. You can't make a career out of politics there because terms in office are short and you can't be re-elected. There isn't time to become corrupt. I don't even know the name of the President!"



SEAWORTHY CAMPERS
First signs of overpopulation

Camping has become one of America's favorite pastimes in recent years. There are six million recreational vehicles in operation and an estimated 50 million people who go camping. All this interest, however, has had one serious side-effect—campsites are terribly overcrowded, thereby diminishing a camper's enjoyment and dreams of privacy. So designer-engineer Richard Reed set out to create a new way to use campers. Since people naturally head for water spots, says Reed, it seemed logical to invent a way they could use their vehicles as houseboats. The solution to the problem became Camp-A-Float, now available for rent at several wilderness lake sites. The amazing amphibious transformation is possible within 15 minutes, claims Reed, simply by driving the camping vehicle on board his specially designed five-ton cruiser, where it's mechanically positioned and secured.

Was the publisher of the Washington Post really a shy girl? "Perhaps it is not surprising that Katharine Graham grew up less than aggressively self-confident, being a child of two such formidable parents as Eugene and Agnes Meyer. Eugene had made millions on Wall Street and then devoted years to government service. But his fame rests largely on the fact that he transformed the Washington Post, which he acquired in 1933, from an unimpressive scandal sheet. Agnes was a dynamo of wit, charm, beauty, intelligence and social commitment. She has been likened to a galleon in full sail, all guns firing; but warmth and mothering were in short supply. All the Meyer children (there were five) were expected to be brilliant, charming, witty and slightly eccentric. Kay, growing up, believed that she alone of the children was failing to achieve these goals. She was the quietest, perhaps even rather stolid. She did not join the great wide-ranging intellectual battles; the showing off, the singing, that characterized the Meyer table. Katharine Graham, now chairman of the Washington Post Co., today admits that for years she thought of herself as 'a Mongolian.' She has referred to her younger self as a peasant in almost every interview she has given. Of course, peasants are strong and durable, and it was Kay who would end up the only Meyer child of large accomplishment and influence." From "The Women of Watergate" (Stein and Day, $8.95), by Madeleine Edmondson and Alden Duer Cohen.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

SPEAK UP!

I'm growing hard of hearing,
Or so I'm told now ofter.
But I find it more cheering
To think they're speaking softer.

I hear as well as ever,
Though words come through a jumble.
It's just too bad, however,
So many have to mumble.

No hearing aid I'm seeking,
To vibrate on a bone.
Let others, who are speaking,
Go get a megaphone.

A young wife took one of her husband's white shirts to the laundry to see about the removal of an ugly red stain from the left pocket, where a ballpoint pen had leaked. The laundryman studied the sinister smear a moment, then said quietly: "Nice shot, lady."

"Well, Sir," said the doctor, "it looks as though you need help."

"I do, I do . . . Get me down from here!" screamed the chicken.

One of the fringe benefits of having twins is the delightful things other children say about them. One little girl, who appeared to be four or five, walked around the stroller looking our identical boys over carefully. Then she asked, "Which is the real one?"
